MWD proposes recreational area above La Verne

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Live Oak Reservoir above La Verne could become the valley's next recreational area, if a proposal by the Metropolitan Water District is approved by government agencies.

The MWD says it wants a buffer ring around the 80-acre reservoir and is offering 90 acres of land along the periphery to the Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation Department to go with a limited use of the lake.

The county and the water district already are working on a proposal to combine land and water for recreation, but how far they can go depends on the state Health Department.

Bernie Tom, coordinator of the project for the MWD, says the Health Department is objecting to the proposal because health officials think use of the reservoir would pollute the water.

The reservoir collects water from the Colorado River, as well as from Northern California, and then sends it south to the MWD's Weymouth plant in La Verne, where it is treated before it reaches customers.

La Verne City Manager George Caswell pointed out that even if the water is used for recreation, it will undergo purification at the Weymouth plant before it is distributed.

Tom said no body contact would be allowed with the water. The reservoir would be used only for "put and take" fishing, model boating and possibly rowing. The land around the reservoir could be developed for picnicking, bike and horse trails and for overnight camping by supervised groups, he explained.

Caswell presented the proposal to the La Verne City Council Monday, and got a highly favorable reception. The council has been looking for open space in and around La Verne for years now, and the 265-acre open land of the MWD reservoir seemed to fit that purpose.

The MWD, in offering the reservoir and the buffer area for public use, wants to establish a protective area around the reservoir.

If the project is undertaken, the county plans to build an access road to the reservoir from the northwest.

According to Tom, the main obstacle to the project is the jaundiced look the Health Department has been giving it. That look can color the attitude of the county.

He said that if the state disapproves the use of the reservoir, the county will probably not be interested in developing the rest of the recreational area.

"Let's face it," he said, "the priority of recreation money in the county is going where there is some water. If the state won't permit the use of the water, the money may go elsewhere."

Another problem identified by the coordinator is that connected with fluctuation of the water level in the reservoir.

"The water can go up or down 15 to 30 feet during a weekend," he explained. "This makes it virtually impossible to use the reservoir for boating. What's more, when the water level goes down 20 feet, the circumference of the lake shrinks 160 feet. That's a lot of fluctuation."

But the La Verne council is ready to move in if the county doesn't, even if use of the reservoir is restricted.

"If the county doesn't want to take over this open space, then the city will give it strong consideration," Mayor Mike Morales said. "The only thing we have to be sure of is that we have adequate access to the recreation area."

Councilman Robert Neher, an open space proponent, called the proposal "good news." But he also cautioned the council about adequate roads, because he felt the recreational area is likely to generate more traffic than a local park.

INJURED IN SPILL

Britain's Princess Anne lies unconscious after her horse fell on her during horse trials Wednesday near Blandford. Boots in foreground are those of her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, who also was competing in trials.

Horse fell on her

Princess Anne suffers concussion in spill

BLANDFORD, England (AP) — Princess Anne's horse fell on her during a riding competition today, briefly knocking her unconscious. She was taken to a hospital, where a preliminary examination showed she suffered a concussion but no broken bones, officials said.

Anne, 25-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, is one of Britain's hopes for an equestrian gold medal at the Montreal Olympics this summer. She also fell from horses during competitions in 1973 and 1974.

She was riding Candlewick in the Portman horse trials near Blandford when the latest mishap occurred.

Witnesses said Princess Anne's husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, also riding in the event, went to her aid and was with her when she regained consciousness.

Ambulance attendants rushed onto the track and covered her with blankets until an ambulance arrived to take her to the hospital at nearby Poole.

The queen was celebrating her 50th birthday at Windsor Castle and was not present at the trials. The princess is fourth in line of succession to the throne.

Ex-Pomona man killed in hang glider crash

A former Pomonan, reportedly the best hang glider flyer in his club, fell about 1,000 feet to his death while soaring out of the Azusa Canyon mouth to the San Gabriel Mountains Tuesday afternoon.

The victim, Phillip Francis O'Brien, 24, 1414 Eastbury Ave., Covina, was pronounced dead on arrival at Glendora Community Hospital. He suffered a variety of injuries, including multiple fractures.

O'Brien was among a group of hang glider enthusiasts who had gone to Newman's Point, a cliff off Glendora Mountain Road, to fly their gliders. Also in the group was O'Brien's 5-year-old son, Shawn.

The young man reportedly was at about a 1,000-foot altitude when his glider was caught by turbulent winds and flipped upside down. It plunged into a rocky field near the entrance of the Azusa Canyon Riding Stables at 8605 San Gabriel Canyon Road.

There were two witnesses to the accident. Gerald J. Hughes, 32, of Glendora, told sheriff's deputies he was watching the glider from the stable area as it soared out of the canyon. He saw it flip over and heard O'Brien's cries as it neared the ground and plunged to the earth near Highway 39.

Hughes and the other witness, Steven Callahan, 33, Anaheim, removed the victim from the wreckage of the 36-foot glider and tried to assist him until county Fire Department paramedics arrived.

The victim was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. O'Brien of 1395 Casa Vista Drive, Pomona. He attended St. Joseph Catholic School in Pomona, Damien High School in La Verne and St. John Bosco High School in Bellflower.

O'Brien reportedly had flown from Newman's Point Sunday, soaring to an altitude of 3,500 feet. But he had been warned against the location by friends who said the winds were too treacherous.

The victim had been hang-gliding for more than three years and had taught others the sport. He was planning to enter a national competition of gliders next month.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Dad freed, babysitter booked in home blaze

ANAHEIM (AP) — A man initially accused of attempting to burn his three children has been freed, and the children's babysitter has been arrested instead, police said.

Bonnie Kay Branson, 26, was booked Tuesday for investigation of arson, theft and attempted murder. Ronald Irwin Nadelberg, 31, was released by authorities.

Five persons, including Nadelberg's three small children, were hospitalized briefly for smoke inhalation after fire broke out in the Nadelberg home Monday night.

Investigators alleged that Miss Branson, who lived in the home, had stolen money from Nadelberg's estranged wife, Karen Ann Nadelberg, 28, and set the fire while Mrs. Nadelberg was at work in an effort to cover up the crime.

Police said they believed the babysitter tied her legs and arms together and gagged her own mouth in an effort to mislead detectives.

The Nadelberg children, Timmie Sue, 4; Ronnie Lee, 3; and Abraham, 22 months, were found huddled in a smoke-filled bedroom, firemen said.

The youngsters, the babysitter and a passerby were taken to Anaheim Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released. The children were returned to their mother.

S.S. checks will rise 6.4% in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today that 36.3 million persons receiving Social Security or Supplemental Security Income benefits will receive a 6.4 per cent cost-of-living increase beginning with their July checks.

The Social Security Administration said the average benefit for a retired worker will increase from $204 to $218.

The maximum benefit for a person retiring at age 65 in 1976 will increase from the current $364 to $387.30, while minimum benefit will increase from $101.40 to $107.90.

For an aged widow, the average benefit will increase from $195 to $208.

Supplemental Security Income payments will increase for an eligible individual from $157.70 to $167.80, while the payment for an eligible couple will go up from $236.60 to $251.80. Recipients living in states that pay a supplement to Supplemental Security Income checks will get an increase only if the state acts to pass along the higher federal payment.

The cost-of-living increase is automatic, based on a comparison of the average monthly Consumer Price Index in the first quarter of 1975 with the first quarter of 1976.

The Social Security Administration said the 6.4 per cent increase will cost $5.3 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Twister leaves one dead, 29 hurt in trailer parks

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — "You could hear those trailers folding up," said Jessie Marsh, who lived in one of two trailer parks devastated by a tornado which killed one and injured 29.

The twister rampaged along a 100-yard-long path through the parks Tuesday night, destroying or heavily damaging at least 20 house trailers and smashing a number of cars.

"It came out of nowhere," said Marsh. "After it happened, there wasn't a lot of panic. Everyone was running to help."

The sheriff's office said Mrs. Glenn Randall, 35, was killed when her trailer was blown into an open sewage pond.

Twenty of the injured were treated at a hospital and released, officials said.

Authorities set up temporary housing for the homeless in a dormitory on the campus of Northwestern State University here.

Jim Perry, who lived in one of the trailers, said, "You could hear them hollering, but there was no panic. Everyone just tried to help until the crowds came."

The tornado first hit Cooper's trailer park, ripped through Carter's trailer park nearby, then headed away from the city, said a spokesman for Natchitoches' Civil Defense agency.

"There's not too much left to the area but debris," he said.

Police said another tornado damaged a service station and grocery store in Atlanta, a tiny Winn Parish town about 20 miles east of Natchitoches.

A number of trees also were uprooted, but no injuries were reported at Atlanta.

First smog alert called

The first smog episode of the season brought some irritation to residents of the West End Tuesday, but the immediate area around Pomona was spared.

Air pollutants caused a first stage episode of 20 parts per million parts of air late in the afternoon in Upland, Montclair and Cucamonga, according to the San Bernardino County Air Pollution District.

Smog may return to the valley again this afternoon, and this time there is a good chance it will cover the Los Angeles County part of the valley.

Air pollution officials say the smog is caused by warm weather, coupled with lack of movement.

Weather

Continued warm today with chance of light smog throughout the valley. High today 86, low tonight 49, high Thursday 82. The high Tuesday was 86 and the overnight low was 49. Thursday's sunrise 5:12, sunset 6:28.

Rubber workers strike industry's 'Big Four'

CLEVELAND (AP) — The United Rubber Workers struck the rubber industry's Big Four nationwide today despite a last-minute Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. offer that included an unlimited cost-of-living adjustment.

The relatively calm strike was marred when firebombs were thrown at a Marysville, Ohio, plant. No injury was reported in the incident at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. facility. Plant manager Gary Cormany said the firebombs, confirmed by a sheriff's deputy, ignited blazes outside the plant's fenced entrance and near the gatehouse inside the fence.

Master contracts that expired at midnight with Firestone, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., B.F. Goodrich Co. and Uniroyal Inc. covered about 60,000 of the URW's 190,000 members.

Peter Bommarito, URW international president, said Firestone's proposed total hourly wage increase of $1.15 over three years, 60 cents of it in the first year, "is short on what we need for a cost-of-living wage catchup for 1976 alone."

Firestone said its offer was "in the best interests of the employes, the country's continuing economic recovery and the company." Any settlement with Firestone would set the pattern for the rest of the Big Four.

The strike, the second nationwide shutdown in U.S. industry within a month, was expected to have little immediate effect outside the Big Four. Auto makers said they had stockpiled enough tires to last up to four weeks, depending on the type of car and the rate of production.

But the car makers also said a lengthy strike would cut into operations at some point because assembly lines require such rubber parts as hoses, floormats, belts, and gaskets as well as tires.

Bommarito said the URW's total economic demands represented a 42 per cent increase over the current average package of $9.05 per hour that includes wages of $5.50.

Negotiations with Firestone broke up at 2 a.m. and were scheduled to resume this afternoon.

Besides the strike, the URW also launched a worldwide plea for a consumer boycott of Firestone products.

S.D. hires replacement for fired city attorney

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

George W. Wakefield, city attorney for West Covina and legal counsel for the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG), is the new San Dimas city attorney.

The City Council voted 5-0 Tuesday night on Wakefield's appointment following an executive session. The council also agreed to change its meetings from Monday to Tuesday nights to fit into the new attorney's schedule.

Wakefield will succeed Norm Oliver who had served as legal counsel to San Dimas for 12 years.

Oliver was fired April 8, charged with collusion with three fired planning commissioners by Mayor Marvin Ersher and Councilmen Terry Dipple and Phil Wax. Councilmen Jim Lough and Jim McLean dissented from the vote for termination of Oliver.

Ironically, Wakefield was one of five attorneys suggested by Oliver to assume his tasks as legal adviser to the council which fired him.

In addition to the five submitted by Oliver, the council also interviewed Eugene Demchuk of the firm of Maroney, Demchuk and Brant in Upland and Graham Ritchie of Los Angeles.

Wakefield is a partner in the law firm of Burke, Williams and Sorensen in Los Angeles. The firm specializes in legal work for municipal governments, counties and public agencies.

He serves as city attorney for the cities of Alhambra, West Covina and Azusa and is general counsel for SCAG, the regional organization that distributes federal and state funds. He is active in the city attorneys' section of the League of California Cities and has worked with the County Supervisors Association of California.

Wakefield began his career as a deputy in the Legislative Counsel Bureau in Sacramento, the bill drafting agency for the state legislature. From 1942 to 1967, he was employed in the County Counsel's office of Los Angeles County, and served as chief deputy counsel for Los Angeles County from 1957 to 1967.

During that time, he also served as the county's legislative representative in Sacramento.

In 1968, he joined the Los Angeles law firm and has since that date served as city attorney for West Covina and Azusa. He also serves as general counsel for the redevelopment agencies in the two cities.

Wakefield resides in Pasadena.

The council, meanwhile, agreed to change its regular meeting nights to accommodate the work load of Wakefield. Rather than meeting on the second and fourth Mondays of the month, the council will convene on the second and fourth Tuesdays.

Ersher explained that the change must be done by city ordinance effective in June and until that time the council will convene on Monday during May, adjourn for lack of a quorum and reconvene on Tuesday.

The San Dimas Planning Commission currently meets on the first Tuesday and third Wednesday. If it is agreeable to commission members, their meetings will change to the first and third Wednesdays.

The council will meet Monday, April 26, as usual.

CMC gets $100,000 donation from bank

The largest corporate pledge ever made to Claremont Men's College was announced today by President Jack L. Stark.

Security Pacific National Bank informed college officials that the bank intends to contribute $100,000 to CMC over the next five years.

Richard J. Flamson, president of Security Pacific Corp., presented Stark with a $20,000 check, representing the first installment on the pledge, at a recent dinner.

In making the presentation, Flamson said the bank's gift indicates the continuing interest and support of the college's educational program.

In addition to their fiancial support, bank executives have held numerous meetings with both students and faculty. The sessions, both on the campus and in the bank's corporate headquarters, have served to acquaint economic majors with current trends in banking and finance and to discuss career opportunities.

Drugs linked to pool drowning

A young Claremont man, found floating in the family swimming pool April 5, drowned as the result of "acute heroin-morphine intoxication," the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office reported.

The victim was Paul Michael Passarelli, 19, who was found in the pool fully clothed by his brother, Louis Christopher Passarelli. Attempts to revive the victim failed and he was pronounced dead by a physician summoned there.

Passarelli's death was ruled to have been accidental after the autopsy results were made final, a coroner's spokesman said. A fight he had been involved in 40 minutes before had nothing to do with it, the autopsy showed.

Bill assuring citizen arms hits setback

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state Senate committee is blocking an attempt to put the right to bear arms and a ban on future gun-control laws into the California Constitution.

But the author, Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, said Tuesday he would seek the single vote he needs to get the bill to the Senate floor, and try again next week.

The vote of the 11-member Senate Judiciary Committee was 5-2 with four members not voting.

The proposed constitutional amendment would guarantee every Californian "the right to keep and bear arms" except as restricted by present laws.

These include the registration of purchases from gun shops, a waiting period for gun purchases, bans on gun ownership by felons and insane persons, and mandatory prison sentences for felonies involving guns.

Any future restriction would require a new constitutional amendment and public vote.

Richardson said the bill is aimed at neutralizing such movements as the handgun ban amendment.

The initiative would ban most private ownership of handguns, exempting only collectors, gun clubs and specified members of law enforcement and military organizations.

Voting for the bill were Sens. Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach; George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach; Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville; Robert Presley, D-Riverside, and Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles.

Voting against it were Sens. David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, and Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park.

Absent or not voting were Sens. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland; Omer Rains, D-Ventura; Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, and George Zenovich, D Fresno.

It is SCA 49.

Former Pomonans Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Tate are both critically ill in Hoag Presbyterian Hospital at Newport Beach.

Tate is in a coma following a heart attack at the family home in Newport Beach on Thursday. Mrs. Tate is suffering from terminal cancer and is a patient in the same hospital.

Tate was the used car department manager for Tate Motors for 30 years prior to his retirement. He is the brother of Warren R. Tate, owner of the Tate Motors dealership in Pomona and now a Newport Beach resident.

Mrs. Tate owned the Ora-Addies women's apparel shop in Pomona for many years and was active in many organizations.

Hayakawa pulls ahead of Finch in GOP poll

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former college president S.I. Hayakawa tops a list of Republican candidates seeking the U.S. senatorial nomination, a statewide survey of GOP voters reported Tuesday.

About one in three Republicans surveyed by the California Poll in late March said they favored Hayakawa, the noted semanticist who vaulted into the public eye in 1968 when he opposed a student strike at San Francisco State College.

Hayakawa for the first time moved ahead of former Lt. Gov. Robert Finch, who was favored by 28 per cent of the 337 Republicans surveyed. Congressman Alphonzo Bell was in third position with 11 per cent, followed by former lieutenant governor and state senator John Harmer with 5 per cent.

Hayakawa apparently benefited by Congressman Barry Goldwater Jr.'s decision in February not to enter the senate race. Although he was never an announced candidate, Goldwater was a strong favorite and Hayakawa trailed in third position.

However, the poll found that Goldwater's withdrawal has left more Republican voters — nearly one in four — undecided about which candidate to support.

The survey also found that Hayakawa is better known among Republican rank-and-file than Finch, Bell or Harmer. More than two thirds of the survey said they "knew something about" Hayakawa, but only 52 per cent knew something about Finch, a former Nixon cabinet member.

Forty per cent of the survey said they had never heard of Bell, and 64 per cent said they had never heard of Harmer.

News briefs

Brown receives Bradley backing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The presidential candidacy of California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has gained the official support of Mayor Tom Bradley.

The governor flew into Los Angeles Tuesday to accept Bradley's enndorsement, and heard the city's chief executive praise him for bringing "a new spirit to Sacramento."

Bradley said he believes Brown can bring to the people "a new sense of confidence and faith in the governmental structure and in the elected leaders of the country."

The occasion brought two longtime political adversaries together. Bradley and Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally, who have frequently endorsed rival candidates, this time joined forces behind Brown, as have other black lawmakers.

Plan curbing plea bargaining gains

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state Senate committee has approved severe restrictions on plea bargaining, the practice of allowing an accused person to plead guilty in return for more lenient treatment.

The bill by Sen. Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, was sent to the Senate floor Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The vote was 6-2, the minimum majority in the 11-member committee.

Carpenter said it would ban the promise of a lighter sentence in return for a guilty plea. It would continue to allow the dropping of other charges against a defendant who pleaded guilty, provided the reasons were entered in the record.

PUC deadlocks on smog plan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A proposal aimed at easing Los Angeles' air pollution during periods of heavy smog has stalled before the California Public Utilities Commission.

It would require Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to provide natural gas to Southern California Edison Co. for electrical power generating, in exchange for fuel oil, when smog gets heavy in the Los Angeles region.

The measure deadlocked on a 2-2 vote Tuesday with President D.W. Holmes absent because of illness.

Panel okays age limit for judges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State judges would have to retire when they reach 70 years of age under legislation approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The constitutional amendment and an enabling statute, both by Sen. Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park, requires approval by two-thirds of both houses and a majority of the voters.

Present law does not require judges to retire at 70, but encourages them to do so by giving them larger pensions — 65 to 75 per cent of their salary, instead of 50, in many cases.

Mandatory retirement was endorsed by the state Judicial Council. Its spokesman, John Smock, said Tuesday that Song's legislation would permit able judges to continue to serve on assignment after retirement, as they can now.

But he said mandatory retirement would spare chief judges from the distasteful job of kicking senile judges off the bench.

Officials study quake forecast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officials are studying what they call the first credible prediction that the Los Angeles area could be shaken by a major earthquake.

Stephanie Bradfield, spokeswoman for the State Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, said a quake forecast from the California Institute of Technology issued Tuesday "is the first prediction from what we call a credible source" the state has received since its Earthquake Prediction Council was established 3½ years ago.

The council was created after alarmist predictions came from soothsayers and amateur seismologists, including forecasts that half of California would slide into the Pacific Ocean.

The council was formed to judge credibility of predictions and Ms. Bradfield, as she prefers to be called, said it would meet "within the next 10 days" to discuss the prediction made by Dr. James Whitcomb, a Caltech geophysicist who said there is "evidence that an earthquake somewhere between magnitude 5.5 and 6.5 may occur within a year" near the 1971 Sylmar quake that took 64 lives.

She said the council, made up from people of the top seismological laboratories in the state, "will tell us whether or not they feel it will happen and the chance."

Whitcomb predicted that the temblor, which he estimated would register 5.5 to 6.5 on the Richter Scale, would center near the origin of the 1971 San Fernando Valley quake that killed 64 persons.

Whitcomb said his forecast is based on a slowdown of seismic waves — vibrations from small quakes or blastings — observed over a wide area north of Los Angeles. Such changes in the velocity of seismic waves have been known to precede quakes.

Using the same wave-velocity method, Whitcomb predicted that a quake would occur in the Riverside area in 1974. There was such a jolt, but of smaller size than he estimated.

While local Los Angeles authorities expressed little alarm at the report, the state spokeswoman said the OES as a result of the prediction council's March 30 evaluation of socalled "Palmdale Bulge" data sent letters to all local government agencies in the state, "urging them to review and update emergency plans."

Spotlight on area crime

Student attacked in sleep

A Los Angeles youth was reported in fair condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital after he was attacked while asleep in his room Tuesday at Webb School in Claremont.

The victim, Chauncey J. Medberry IV, 16, suffered a possible skull fracture, scalp cuts and a broken finger in the incident. Forty-nine stitches were needed to close the gashes in his scalp.

The youth told Claremont police he was asleep in his room in the dorm of the private school at 1175 W. Base Line Road when he was awakened at 3 a.m. by someone beating him. He said he grappled with the person who was striking him with an object of some kind.

The attacker fled out the door and was seen walking down the hall by a youth in the next room who had been awakened by the noise. He was able to give only a vague description.

Meanwhile, Medberry went to the dorm's bathroom and washed the blood from his head and face before authorities arrived. He was unable to offer any reason for the attack or to name a suspect, police said.

Late Tuesday night, however, an unidentified intruder was seen near the dorm bathroom. He appeared to be carrying a metal cylinder in one hand and fled from the building when he was seen.

The intruder was described as white, 15 to 20 years old, with long, blond hair. He wore a windbreaker, dark trousers and tennis shoes.

Gas station holdup

Two men, after threatening an attendant, grabbed money and fled in a robbery Tuesday afternoon at the Go Lo Self-Service Station, 1724 S. Euclid Ave. in ONTARIO, police reported.

Ruben Espaza told police that two men, both dressed in khaki shirts and white windbreakers drove their pickup truck into the station and tried to start the gas pump to fill the truck's gas tank.

He said he explained to the men that he had to reset the gas pump to get it started. He said the men then accused him of being a "smart aleck" and paid him for the gas.

He said as he gave them change, the men demanded $5. He said they threatened him and he gave them $5.

Kidnaped, let go

Two ski-masked men, for no apparent reason, kidnaped a 13-year-old UPLAND youth riding his bicycle home from school and then dropped him off unharmed in Lytle Creek Canyon Tuesday afternoon, police reported.

Police said the youth was riding home from school about 12:45 p.m. Tuesday when two men in a green van pulled up beside him. The youth told officers the men grabbed his bicycle threw it in the back of the van and forced him into the truck. He said the men drove him to Lytle Creek and let him go.

He described the men as whites, 18 or 19. He said one of the men was wearing a green ski mask, a blue striped T-shirt and blue jeans. The other man was wearing a yellow ski mask with blue dots, a brown leather jacket, and blue jeans.

Decorator died of strangulation

NEW YORK (AP) — Nationally known interior decorator Michael Greer, whose professional credits included work at the White House for three presidents, was murdered by strangulation, the medical examiner says.

Doctors walk off job

LOS ANGELES (AP) — About 1,200 residents and interns at the three main Los Angeles County hospitals walked off their jobs this morning, doctor spokesmen said, but the immediate effect on medical services was unknown.

Pickets went up at County-USC Medical Center at about 8:30 a.m. and picket lines were to be formed at Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital and Harbor General Hospital, said Larry Kilty, executive director of the Joint Council of Interns and Residents of Los Angeles County. He said emergency care would continue during the strike.

"The strike will go on as long as the county continues to act irresponsibly about settling the issues of patient care," Kilty said.

Won't mince words—Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Promising to "not mince words," President Ford said today his political critics who question the nation's military superiority are dealing in "complete and utter nonsense."

Kidnaped banker safe after $150,000 paid

NEWHALL, Calif. (AP) — A bank president was safe at home today, and authorities sought kidnapers who collected $150,000 ransom for his safe return.

James D. McMahon, 50, of Valencia, was found bound and gagged Tuesday afternoon at a motel in the San Fernando Valley area of Los Angeles after a telephone tip from an anonymous woman caller, investigators said.

McMahon, president of the Santa Clarita National Bank in Newhall, a suburban community northeast of Los Angeles, did not show up for work Tuesday morning. A clerk at the bank later took a call from a man who said McMahon had been kidnaped.

The caller demanded $100,000, said sheriff's spokesman Chet Ballew.

Raymond Hale, 49, the bank's operations manager, told deputies he collected the amount and, following the caller's instructions, took it to a nearby drug store.

Hale said he there received a call at a pay phone that instructed him to go to another location. After a number of such calls and moves, he delivered the money. But he got another call demanding an additional $50,000.

Hale obtained an additional $50,000 from a Sepulveda branch of the bank and delivered that, deputies said. He was then instructed to return to the Valencia branch and wait for a call that would tell him where to find McMahon.

'You got 'First Mama'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford tried out for the first time her own, portable Citizens Band radio.

"You got 'First Mama,'" she told nearly any citizens band radio enthusiast willing to talk and tuned to Channel 12 here Tuesday.

Two CB operators who called the First Lady identified themselves as "Starship Enterprise" and "Peg Leg Charlie."

Mrs. Ford spoke in a crisp voice but halted occasionally to consult a list of citizens band radio terms.

She said she picked the handle "First Mama" at the suggestion of comedian Flip Wilson. A "handle" is an identifying name used in CB conversations.

The radio was a gift from her family, arranged by daughter Susan.

Mrs. Ford was in San Antonio campaigning for her husband, who faces Republican challenger Ronald Reagan in the May 1 Texas primary.

'By George, she got it'

NEW YORK (AP) — While Henry Higgins was worrying about getting to the church on time, Eliza Doolittle was in the hospital having stitches for a gash on her head.

Christine Andreas, who plays Miss Doolittle in the current Broadway production of "My Fair Lady," was sitting in her dressing room shortly before curtain time Tuesday night when a chunk of plaster fell from the ceiling and struck her on the head.

She went to New York Hospital and her understudy, Vickie Patrik, filled in as the tutored, Cockney flower vendor.

Seymour Krawitz, spokesman for the production, said he expected Miss Andreas to return by today's matinee performance.

Governor's trial delayed

BALTIMORE (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Herbert F. Murray has granted a four-week delay in the start of Gov. Marvin Mandel's trial on political corruption charges.

The judge met for several hours Tuesday with prosecutors and lawyers for Mandel and five codefendants who were indicted on charges of participating in a scheme involving mail fraud, bribery and other activities prohibited by federal racketeering statutes.

Arnold M. Weiner, the governor's lawyer, had requested a three-week postponement of the May 3 trial date, saying the last-minute activities of the state legislature had thrown the governor behind schedule in his review of legislation.

TV series on America?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Norman Lear, one of commercial television's most successful producers, is beginning to research a possible public television series, titled "Portrait of America."

Henry Loomis, president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, announced Tuesday that eight one-hour programs are tentatively proposed.

Lear is the producer, among other programs, of "All in the Family."

Gets year in prison

CHICAGO (AP) — Former President Nixon's Illinois campaign manager was sentenced to one year and one day in prison after he pleaded guilty to a charge of bank fraud.

William H. Rentschler, 50, of suburban Lake Forest, was named in a 23-count indictment in November 1973 for allegedly bilking 28 financial institutions out of $1.4 million.

Twenty-two of the counts were dismissed after he pleaded guilty Tuesday before Judge Alfred Y. Kirkland.

Backseat driver required

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California issues millions of drivers licenses each year — but there's only one which requires a backseat driver at all times.

The Department of Motor Vehicles said Tuesday the license was issued to a man with no peripheral vision. The license requires that his wife be in the car at all times.

While the wife is a non-driver, the DMV said she is "great at nagging her husband about potential hazards."

Ford gets $11,631 tax refund

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, who paid $94,568.93 in 1975 federal income taxes, only waited a couple of weeks to get a refund check of $11,631.07 from the Internal Revenue Service.

Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, released on Tuesday a detailed report on Ford's income tax return, showing the President made $251,991.24 last year and had taxable income of $204,605.83.

Nessen said Ford's tax forms were filed earlier this month and that he received his refund check during the past week.

When asked why Ford "seems to get speedier service (from the IRS) than the rest of us," Nessen gave no answer other than to smile.

Nessen said Ford paid $38,200 more in federal taxes in 1975 than he did the previous year.

Gross income included the President's salary, his $50,000 expense account and $1,991.24 in savings account interest, small dividends and a net return on rental property the Fords own in Virginia, Michigan and Colorado.

"The President hopes this will be a model for the degree of detail on tax information that all candidates should issue to the voters whom they are asking to elevate them to the presidency," Nessen said.

Nessen said $106,200 tax was withheld from Ford's weekly paycheck.

Ford claimed $750 personal exemptions for himself and his wife and three of his four children. He did not claim son Steve, who is working parttime on a ranch in California.

When the federal taxes are added to state and local tax payments of $11,941.91, Nessen said, they accounted for 42 per cent of the family's gross income — the same percentage as in 1974 when the Ford's gross income was some $104,000 lower because the President had earned a White House salary for only five months of the year.

The Ford's 1975 state, local and other taxes was nearly double the 1974 figure of $5,985. The President's higher income largely accounted for that, Nessen said.

Of his $50,000 expense account, Ford deducted $23,000 as business expenses. The largest single item in this category was the cost of buying and mailing 35,000 Christmas cards.

60 flee hotel fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Firemen evacuated some 60 residents of a Hollywood-area hotel that was damaged slightly by a predawn blaze which engulfed a recording studio next door, causing damages estimated at $250,000.

One worker in the one-story Pro Audio Co. also managed to escape the fire without injury, fire department spokesman Bill Baird said.

He said some 75 fire fighters fought the blaze, which broke out at 3:30 a.m. and caused slight damage to the third floor of the Colehurst Hotel.

Cause of the fire is under investigation, Baird added.

Arm break adds to Martha's illness

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Mitchell, who has been under treatment for a painful bone cancer since last fall, now is a patient at the Hospital for Special Surgery. She was admitted after breaking her arm.

Mrs. Mitchell, 57, entered Sloan-Kettering Memorial Cancer Center here last November. She was released from the center several weeks ago, but rehospitalized at Special Surgery for the fracture. Hospital officials would not say when she entered Special Surgery.

She previously underwent surgery there on a broken hip.

Mrs. Mitchell's physician, Dr. Klaus Mayer, confirmed that she is hospitalized, but declined to say anything else about her condition.

Mrs. Mitchell and her husband, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, have been separated since 1973.

A report in the May issue of McCall's magazine pictures Mrs. Mitchell as thin, weak and fighting for her life in self-imposed silence.

Many other health program changes proposed

Panel urges heroin treatment program in S.B. County

By L.T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

San Bernardino County supervisors should consider asking the federal government to allow the use of heroin to treat addicts as an alternative to the present methadone program.

This is one of the recommendations made by the county Grand Jury's health care services agency committee in an interim report to supervisors.

The report, released this month, also recommends that methadone treatment be conducted on the clinic premises and no client leave the treatment area with additional dosages.

Regarding the heroin use, the committee reported that methadone is a stronger and more addictive drug than heroin, thus making it more difficult for addicts to discontinue the use of methadone than it would be to cure their addiction to heroin.

"Methadone merely makes an addict functional so that he does not have to engage in criminal activity in order to support his habit. However, the treatment does not assist the client to restore himself to a normal state of health. The purpose of the program seems oriented toward protecting society rather than rehabilitating addicts.

"This (heroin) concept has been used successfully in Great Britain and has recently been recommended by the California state health director," stated the report.

Regarding the restriction of methadone treatment to the clinic premises, the committee stated that law enforcement and probation officers reported methadone is being sold and dealt throughout the community.

"The committee recognizes the necessity for the clinics to remain open on a seven-day-a-week basis if this recommendation is followed but feels the advantages outweigh the inconvenience and additional expense.

"There is considerable danger of accidental ingestion by someone other than the client when dosages are allowed to leave the clinic," the committee noted.

The committee also suggested the methadone clinic counselors be allowed to make home visits, handle job referral and placement of clients and assist in the formation of educational goals designed to help the client restore himself to society.

"During repeated visits to the methadone clinics there was little evidence of counseling to clients. The staff is not being utilized to its fullest potential and a valuable resource is being wasted. The staff is more than ample to meet the increased requirements for counseling."

The committee recommended the program's director be required to follow the county's affirmative action program when hiring counselors so they can more closely reflect the racial backgrounds of the clients.

"The majority of the clients of the methadone program are Mexican-American, yet only one of the counselors is a Chicano. In addition to language barriers, the sociological factors relating to the Chicano lifestyle can only be understood by a person who is intimately involved with that culture."

The Grand Jury's study group also recommended a committee be formed to screen applicants to the methadone program. This should consist of the program director, a physician, probation officer and a minority representative.

"It is the feeling of the committee that the current method of selecting clients is too lenient and allows for considerable abuse of the program," the report stated.

In another area of county health care, the committee recommended the health care services agency make greater use of physician assistants and nurse practitioners in the county to alleviate problems caused by the lack of qualified physicians in remote areas.

Specifically, the committee suggested these persons be included on the staffs of ambulatory care clinics.

Members asked county supervisors to direct the health care services agency to review the physician assistance training program at the County Medical Center with the intent of revising it so the physician assistants may be used wherever feasible within the county.

"Since the inception of the program at the County Medical Center in January 1971, not one graduate has been hired by county government. There are several area within the county where physicians assistants can be used," the report stated.

The committee also noted that studies have clearly indicated the use of a physician assistant and nurse practitioner can enable a physician to increase his productivity by 60 per cent at less than 40 per cent the cost of a physician.

In its opening statement, the committee noted the health care services agency appeared to be functioning satisfactorily under the agency system and there were numerous examples of cooperation between its departments which have increased the effectiveness of services to the public.

"The committee has become increasingly aware of the low priority given by the Board of Supervisors to the fiscal needs of the health care services agency. We realize that all areas of county government are being forced to operate under considerable budgetary restrictions, but feel the area of health care is one that, for the safety of the citizens of the county, should not be compromised," it stated.

County supervisors received the reports for study. No action has been taken.

Alger books now popular

NATICK, Mass. (AP) — Horatio Alger Jr. is very much in vogue on university campuses, according to Max Goldberg, president emeritus of the Horatio Alger Society.

"Students are now reading the Alger books as part of sociology courses," Goldberg said. "Just a couple of weeks ago, I had a college student from Ohio visit me. His thesis is going to be on Alger.

"Our Horatio Alger Society now has thousands of members," Goldberg added.

Pomona to re-examine inn denial

Pomona City Council will reconsider its denial of a dance permit for the Do Drop Inn, 905 W. Second St. because it was presented with a petition signed by 268 persons supporting the owner's request for the permit.

The council two weeks ago denied the permit unanimously on the grounds that police officials recommended against issuing the permit because of police problems in the area.

Attorney Ken Davis, representing owners Phillip and Lois Brevard, noted that the city has granted similar permits to more than a dozen Pomona establishments, all of which serve alcohol while the Do Drop Inn does not.

"They just want a dance permit for two nights a week," said Davis Monday night.

Davis intimated that the Police Department's recommendation might be racially biased because of the low percentage of black police officers and the high percentage of black customers at the restaurant.

The new hearing was scheduled for May 10.

CGS alumni to honor 3

The Claremont Graduate School Alumni Association will honor a former CGS president and two alumni at its annual dinner Saturday night.

To be honored are Robert J. Bernard, CGS president emeritus; Bhekh Bahadur Thapa, finance minister of Nepal; and Jerry Voorhis, author, former executive of the Cooperative League of U.S.A. and former congressman.

The dinner will be at 6 p.m. in the Claremont Colleges Faculty House. Reservations may still be made both for dinner and for a concert by the Romeros in Garrison Theater at 8:15 p.m. The alumni association has reserved a block of seats for the performance.

Bernard will receive a special award of appreciation for his work over the last half century for CGS and the other Claremont Colleges. He was assistant to James A. Blaisdell, founder of the group plan, from 1917 to 1927, when Blaisdell was Pomona College president.

When the group was organized in 1925, Bernard became secretary of the central organization, now Claremont University Center. He was managing director of the center from 1944 to 1959 and was president from 1959 to 1963 when he retired.

Thapa and Voorhis will be given the annual Distinguished Alumni Award.

Thapa earned a Ph.D. in economics at CGS in 1966. While a student, he was also secretary of finance and secretary of planning for the government in Nepal. Since graduating, Thapa has become both minister of finance and minister of general administration of Nepal.

Voorhis was a member of the first graduating class at CGS, earning a master's degree in education in 1928. He was headmaster of Voorhis School for Boys in San Dimas for 10 years after graduation and became a congressman in 1937, serving 10 years.

From 1947 until he retired in 1970, Voorhis was executive director of the Cooperative League. He is the author of seven books, including "The Strange Case of Richard Milhaus Nixon."

A display depicting the history of the graduate school has been set up at Honnold Library on the campus and will be on view for alumni from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7:30 to 8 p.m. Saturday.

Prices Good Thru Tuesday, April 27. While Stocks Last! We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities. No Sales to Dealers.

CHAFFEY COLLEGE will offer the differential aptitude test (DAT) twice for community as well as campus participation during the spring quarter.

The four-hour test will be held in the Chaffey College Career Center from 8:15 a.m. to noon on Saturday and from noon to 4 p.m. on May 13, a Thursday.

The DAT is designed to measure a person's capacity to profit from study courses or training required for careers a person is considering.

The Chaffey College Career Center is open to both students and the general public without charge. Career counseling services and career search aids are available from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and 6 to 9 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

Additional information on the center may be obtained by calling the coordinator, Betty Gerdner, at 987-1737.

AZUSA PACIFIC COLLEGE'S Circle K Club will sponsor a spaghetti dinner in the college's Turner Campus Center on Sunday from 5:30 to 8 p.m..

Entertainment will be provided by The Session, a contemporary vocal and instrumental music group. The dinner is $2 for adults and $1.25 for children under 12. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

CITRUS COLLEGE student body membership fees were increased from $10 to $12.50 last week.

This is the first increase in student fees at the college in over 20 years and was prompted mostly by a doubling in insurance premimums. Among the services covered by the fee are health services, accident insurance, student awards and scholarship, student aid and a wide range of activities in the fields of music, art, drama, speech, journalism, vocational technology and athletics.

The Office of Continuing Education at CAL POLY POMONA is sponsoring a two-day workshop Saturday and Sunday at Kellogg West for couples and single people who want to learn practical communication techniques to develop more satisfying intimate relationships.

The workshop will be conducted by Carol and John Bacheller, counselors who have trained with Dr. George Bach, author of "Creative Aggression."

Persons interested in information on the workshop, "Constructive Use of Conflict in Intimate Relationships," may call 595-7511, ext. 272.

LOMA LINDA UNIVERSITY Medical Center will begin a weight control program on Sunday at 7:30 p.m., according to V. Joyce Lim, coordinator of the medical center health education department.

Participants will meet for four consecutive nights and then once weekly until July 26. The initial fee of $10 is due the first night of the course.

The course will stress cooking, meal planning, exercise and motivational aspects of proper eating.

The public is invited to the classes in the Fellowship Hall of the Loma Linda University Seventh-day Adventist Church in Loma Linda.

The CAL POLY POMONA Recreation Club will sponsor a competitive car rallye and pancake breakfast open to the public on Sunday.

Scheduled on the campus, the breakfast will begin at 9 a.m. and the rallye at 11 a.m. The rallye is expected to last three hours and required two-man teams. Prizes will be awarded.

Proceeds will be used to assist with costs of student participation in educational conferences off the campus. For registration or other information, interested persons may call the Cal Poly Pomona recreation office, 598-4623.

Valley briefs

STREET LIGHTS — Street lights in various unlit areas of Alta Loma have been ordered turned on, said San Bernardino County Supervisor Daniel Mikesell.

"It is a long standing county regulation that new subdivisions be initially equipped with street lights. This policy has been uniformly applied by the county Planning Commission. As time passes and people move into a new area, it is only natural for them to request that lights be turned on," he said.

READING SPEED — A free demonstration on how persons can increase their reading speed will be given April 28 at 7 p.m. at the West End YMCA.

Ron Rosenwasser, a reading specialist and president of Educational and Industrial Research, Inc., will give the demonstration.

Reservations may be obtained by phoning the YMCA office at 986-5847 or Rosenwasser at (213) 559-5700.

R.H. man admits slaying

Charles Anthony Rector, 22-year-old Rowland Heights man, is scheduled for sentencing May 7 on a charge of second-degree murder in the slaying 3½ years ago of Lee Thierman, 21-year-old Whittier resident whose body was found dumped along Grand Avenue near the Diamond Bar Country Club.

Rector pleaded guilty before Pomona Superior Court Judge Howard D. McClain who scheduled his probation hearing and sentencing for May 7. The young man was ordered to remain in custody in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Authorities said that Thierman was shot to death June 4, 1972, inside a Hacienda Heights residence by Rector who feared the victim was going to inform about the group's drug use. The body was found by a passing motorist.

Shortly after the slaying, Thierman's wife, Kathy Ann Thierman, 18, and a friend, William Michael Lanz, 21, were charged with the murder but those charges were dismissed when then Pomona Municipal Court Judge Norman Vroman ruled evidence against them was insufficient.

Police hand out 1,000 Easter gifts

Richard Tefank, president of the Pomona Police Officers Association, reported that police officers distributed more than 1,000 Easter baskets this year in Pomona.

The candy-filled baskets are passed out each year by Pomona police officers, who solicit the candy from local merchants.

Tefank said the association hopes to expand the program next year to reach children in all parts of the city.

Full bilingual program gets push in Pomona

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

A full bilingual program is top priority for preschool through 12th grade students in Pomona's public schools.

In a unanimous vote Tuesday night, the school board agreed to hire a bilingual-bicultural program expediter as soon as possible, step up efforts to determine students' languages by checking homes, recruit a qualified staff and begin immediately to plan the program.

In a second unanimous vote, the board instructed the administration to return to the May 18 regular board meeting with personnel, program and budget estimates.

The direction was clear. The board intends the full bilingual instruction to begin in September in compliance with board and state policy and the U.S. Supreme Court Decision (Lau vs. Nichols) which requires public schools to instruct children in the language of the home.

Board actions followed requests made by Rafael Chavarria, spokesman for Pomona Unified School District's Concerned Parents Committee. He asked that the district make a commitment to use all available resources to recruit Mexican-Americans for employment for the bilingual program next year, and also to achieve ethnic balance on the district teaching staff.

Currently the district employes 78 Spanish surnamed teachers. However, when testing for bilingual abilities, "that number dwindles rapidly," admitted Ray L. Thomas, assistant superintendent of educational services.

David Evans, assistant superintendent of personnel services, said approximately 30 new teachers would be recruited for next year, probably all for the bilingual program.

Chavarria also asked the board to establish a Mexican-American parent task force to interview and make suggestions in the final hiring of personnel.

His last suggestion was that by next September, the district implement the full bilingual-bicultural program in five elementary schools and all senior high schools, that the staffs be bilingual-bicultural and the programs meet state law requirements for non and limited English-speaking students.

Evans told the board he "needed all the help" he could get, that he would be working with the district's Affirmative Action Committee in selecting the new people, but certainly would work with a parent task force.

Alfred Ramirez of Pomona cautioned the board that "these programs have to be met fiscally, by the taxpayer. No one who is rational and sensible opposes services that meet legitimate needs."

But, he charged, bilingual programs do not. Ramirez said Spanish surnamed children of school age who do not speak English are not American born.

However, all board members were in agreement on the importance of the bilingual program, and on meeting the requirements of the court decision.

"I confess my impatience (with the district's not implementing a full bilingual program) and I can understand the impatience of some of the parents," said board member, Allen Braswell.

He read minutes from a June 12, 1973 board meeting which stated: "The need to provide all learners with an early opportunity to experience academic success through their home language . . . thus insuring educational survival" shall be the district's bilingual-bicultural commitment.

"That was three years ago," Braswell continued, "and virtually no effort has been made to implement that commitment. I do not blame the parents who are angry. I join them.

"I personally am committed to this program for next year. I do not want to wait. I am ready to move. We need to make a hard decision now to implement what this board passed three years ago."

The board agreed. The audience applauded.

Board President Mary Montes said she felt the position of program expediter was an extremely important position.

"I would like that person to be responsive to the superintendent, with line staff authority. I think it would be desirable if that individual held a valid teaching credential."

Board member Gene Whitlock disagreed. "The expediter should have free access to the superintendent, but we should not destroy the intra-departmental confidence," he said.

Existing bilingual-bicultural programs in Pomona's public schools, set up eight years ago with federal funding, were never criticized in the discussions. However, it was evident from attitudes of both parents and board members, that the federal programs fall far short of what is desired for Pomona's non and limited English-speaking children.

Chino water hike plan awash in criticism; decision stalled

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Faced with protests from some angry residents, the Chino City Council Tuesday night postponed action on proposed water rate increases until May 4.

Councilman Angel Martinez moved to table action on the matter after seven residents told the council that water rates already are too high.

"A lot of people are very unhappy about this," said Martinez. "We should postpone the increases until we can discuss it at a study session."

The council agreed to the delay, although Mayor Bob McLeod and Councilwoman Eileen Carter felt the city's operating costs for water have risen and increases are necessary.

"We surely can't do without water," said Mrs. Carter. "It's customary for people to complain about new costs and then in the next breath demand more service."

Homeowners would be facing a 22 per cent boost in water rates if the increases eventually are approved. A monthly increase from $9.22 to $11.26 for average homeowner's using 3,000 cubic feet of water has been proposed by John Gerardi, public works director.

"Low users" of only 800 cubic feet of water will not be subjected to an increase. Their bills will remain at $3.50 per month. Commercial and industrial users' rates will jump $7 to $31.86, light agricultural users' rates would go up $24 to $107.86 and heavy agricultural users would pay $34 more, or $155.86.

Light and heavy agricultural users who water during nighttime "non-peak hours" would have slightly lower rates — and this was protested by several homeowners.

"Those users will have the availability of lower rates," said Ron Calvert, a Chino resident. He emphasized the fact that city officials would be unable to monitor whether they actually are watering during nighttime hours.

And Calvert said those heavy users should pay for an additional water meter that would record whether they are watering at night.

"The average homeowner pays through the nose, and larger users get a discount rate," complained Robert Wagner, another resident. "It's inconceivable the meter reader can monitor rates on night users."

Users will pay a quarter of a million to the city to cover $188,000 in costs, Wagner declared.

$4,000 cash in seven months

Witness tells of gifts to defendant

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

A wealthy Ontario woman testified Tuesday that she had given murder trial defendant Samuel Jones a total of $4,000 in cash over a seven month period preceding the death of Raymond Meras and was paying for his attorney in West Valley Superior Court.

Mrs. Frances Taffolla of Ontario said that about two weeks prior to the slaying of Meras, an Ontario drug counselor, she had given defendant Jones $3,000 in cash. She also said she had given him approximately $1,000 more since meeting him at the Friendly Corners Bar in Ontario.

Jones is accused of slaying Meras who was found shot to death in his Sunkist Street home on Nov. 26. Police believe that Meras was shot to death and robbed of approximately $300.

Mrs. Taffolla told Judge Clifton L. Allen and the jury that she had inherited a large sum of money and also had won a settlement in a personal injury suit. She estimated she had $140,000 in the bank. She said that after meeting Jones in the Ontario bar she had given him cash, gifts, and paid for many of his meals.

Asked by Deputy Dist. Atty. James Faust how often she gave Jones money she said "every payday." She explained that she gave him from $10 to $150 every two weeks when her husband got paid.

Following Mrs. Taffolla's testimony, Ontario Detective Roy Cole took the stand to testify that during the murder investigation he had asked Mrs. Taffolla how much money Jones had a few days before the murder. He said she told him that Jones had no money at all.

Further, Cole rebutted testimony given by Mrs. Taffolla that the .22 long rifle shells she found in Jones room would not fit a .22 Derringer. Cole picked up the small two barrelled gun and easily dropped two .22 long rifle shells into the chamber.

In earlier testimony a San Bernardino County pathologist testified that Meras had died of a .22 caliber gunshot wound in the head. A criminalist testified that the bullet that killed Meras was a .22 long rifle.

Pomona family flees blaze; house ruined

A Pomona mother and her three young children escaped unhurt late Tuesday when fire virtually destroyed the home they were buying at 2433 Alder St.

Pomona Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes said the house was valued at $18,500. The loss estimate was $17,200 with $15,000 to the structure and $2,200 to the family's furnishings.

Fowlkes said it appeared the fire had started when clothes piled too close to the water heater ignited.

The occupant, Rosemary Johnson, told firemen her 5-year-old son ran to her to report fire in the hallway. She said she opened the door to the water heater room and flames exploded. She said she quickly got two other children out of the house. There were no injuries.

Fowlkes said there was a delay in reaching the Fire Department to report the fire because apparently someone tried to place the call through the long distance operator. He urged homeowners to post the Fire Department number and to dial direct in an emergency.

Five truckers help fight fire

A new pickup truck loaded with auto parts caught fire on the eastbound San Bernardino Freeway at White Avenue in Pomona Tuesday and five truckers stopped to fight the blaze with their portable extinguishers.

According to Pomona Fire Department reports, the truck was owned by Fair City Ford, 611 E. Holt Ave., Pomona, and driven by Kenneth Keen

Firemen said a lighted cigarette flipped out by Keen may have set the blaze.

Loss estimates were approximately $800 to contents and $800 to the truck. There were no injuries. Time of the fire was 4:27 p.m.

Support for school bond issue sought

By DAVID READER
PB Correspondent

A citizens meeting to discuss community involvement in the upcoming Central School District $10 million bond election will be held at 7 p.m. on Thursday at the district offices in Cucamonga.

District Supt. Donald R. Sperry, who made the announcement at the Board of Trustees meeting Tuesday evening, said that the main purpose for the citizens meeting will be to select a committee to go out into the community and solicit support for the passage of the bonds.

In a related matter, Central Teachers Organization President Andrew Carlmark read a letter of CTO support for the bond election, and offered the services of the group in aiding the passing of the bonds.

The board also adopted a statement of philosophy concerning the building program that would result from a successful bond election.

The statement, drafted by board President Patton Lewis, included the following points:

— The available existing school buildings in the district have reached their "saturation point" with the present average daily attendance of almost 2,000 students.

— The rate of new homes being built in the district will mean an increase in student attendance of 200 per year for the next several years.

— The district and board of trustees have an obligation to provide classroom facilities consistent with state standards.

— The facilities to be built would not be substantially in excess of the standards set by the state, so as to not put a burden on the district's financial capabilities.

In a progress report to the board on the coming district school budget, Supt. Sperry stated that currently there were "too many unknowns" with regard to estimates in expenditures.

The board approved the repair of a school bus engine at the cost of $1,750. It also agreed to allot $1,179 for the repair and maintenance of the industrial shop equipment at Central Junior High.

The board also approved the continuing of membership in the California School Board Association at the cost of $561.75 for the coming year.

School sex discrimination policy rejected

Because Walnut school board members believe a proposed pupil policy to avoid sex discrimination is too broad to be enforced, they returned it Monday night to administrators for rewording.

The proposed policy was: "No student in the Walnut Valley Unified School District shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded or be subjected to discrimination in any education program or activity."

An example of what worried board members about the policy was contact sports.

The board named Marshall Manthorne assistant principal-teacher for Chaparral Intermediate School, to open next fall in Diamond Bar.

Manthorne has been teaching elementary grades in the district for the past six years. Currently he teaches a class for the educationally handicapped at Walnut Elementary School.

Union wants to study it

Ontario delays refuse truck plan

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

The Ontario City Council Tuesday night delayed for at least two weeks a decision on changing from two-man to one-man refuse collection vehicles.

The city's administrative staff has urged the council to approve the one-man collection vehicles because they are safer, cheaper to operate and provide greater productivity than the two-man rear loader trucks.

Roger Hughbanks, city manager, said the recommendation followed a year's study on trash collection.

The matter was included on the City Council's Tuesday night agenda but Alex Rubalcava, staff representative for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, requested a continuance for at least two weeks so union members could hold a "meet and confer" session with the city staff.

"The union position is that when we agreed to this (study), it was to jointly look into this and then come to a mutual agreement," said Rubalcava. "This has not happened. In two or three years we have met once. We want to meet with city officials and come up jointly with an agreement."

In response, Hughbanks said he was willing to discuss with employes any concerns they may have in implementing the one-man collection service.

Union and city offcials agreed to meet before the next City Council meeting. The matter is then expected to be on the next council agenda.

The city presently has three one-man side loaders and six two-man rear loaders for collecting refuse. City administrators propose changing to nine side loaders and retaining only one rear loader for special refuse collection within the next three years.

Officials stressed in their reports that conversion to one-man loading operations will not require the removal of any permanent employes. As the side loading vehicles are introduced, the refuse department may reduce its personnel through normal attrition or transfers to other city departments.

In other action, the council authorized the San Bernardino County Real Property Division to sell two, five-unit apartments and a duplex structure located within the city-county complex now being developed. The structures will have to be removed to allow for future city and county buildings.

The council also approved a request by the Pomona Community Chorus to hang a banner on Euclid Avenue to publicize a choral festival with Roger Wagner to be held May 8.

Departing Upland school chief appoints two new principals

By STEVE TABOR
PB Correspondent

In one of his final acts as superintendent of the Upland School District Bill R. Plaster named two new principals during a special school board meeting Tuesday night.

The board approved both appointees, Frank Migaiolo and Miss Roberta Rowland. Migaiolo was assigned the principalship at the Magnolia Elementary School and Miss Rowland was assigned to the Sycamore Elementary School.

Migaiolo's credentials include a B.A. degree from Fairmont State College and an M.A. degree from West Virginia University. He also has an administrative credential from Cal State Los Angeles and he has done graduate work at UCLA.

He has been a teacher in the Upland Schools since 1965 and was, at one time, an acting principal in the Upland schools.

Miss Rowland comes to the Upland School District after teaching in the Los Angeles Unified School District. She received her B.A. and M.A. Degrees from Cal State Los Angeles and has done graduate work at UCLA.

Miss Rowland has also been acting principal of Robert Hill Lane Elementary School in the Los Angeles Unified School District. She was a coordinator for Early Childhood Education Title I program and the Mentally Gifted Minors program all in Los Angeles.

The two new principals will assume their positions on July 1.

During the special meeting Plaster submitted his resignation from the superintendent's position of the Upland School District. Plaster had been superintendent of the 11-campus district since January 1973.

Plaster resigned the position to take the superintendent position with the Fountain Valley School District. He will begin his work with the Fountain Valley Schools July 1.

Another prophet fated to be right?

The United States is not the only democracy to have been admonished by Alexander Solzhenitsyn, that latter-day Jeremiah passionately warning against the snares of detente.

The exiled Russian writer, who now lives in Switzerland, took the British to task in a recent lecture over BBC radio, and many were the sins and shortcomings he detailed.

Not only did Britain, and all of Western Europe, countenance the enslavement of millions of their fellow Europeans by Soviet communism after World War II, "whenever a new tyranny came into existance, however far away — in China, say, or Laos — Britain was always the first to recognize it, eagerly pushing aside all competitors for the honor."

Tank columns rolled in East Berlin, Budapest and Prague, but not once did the British government recall its ambassadors in protest from any of these places.

"But when five terrorists—who had actually committed murder — were executed in Madrid, then the British ambassador was recalled and the din reverberated throughout the world. What a hurricane burst forth from the British Isles!"

And what of Europe today? asked Solzhenitsyn. "It is nothing more than a collection of cardboard stage sets, all bargaining with each other to see how little can be spent on defense so as to leave more for the comforts of life."

Europe, he says, has of its own accord abandoned not only its strength and influence in world affairs but its intellectual influence as well. "Modern society is hypnotized by socialism. It is prevented by socialism from seeing the mortal dangers it is in.

"And one of the greatest dangers of all is that you have lost all sense of danger, you cannot even see where it's coming from as it moves swiftly towards you . . .

"But the greatest danger of all is that you have lost the will to defend yourselves."

Solzhenitsyn expressed little hope that the West would heed the warning voices of the oppressed peoples of Eastern Europe. "Experience," he acknowledged sadly, "cannot be transmitted. Everyone must experience everything for himself."

In that respect, Solzhenitsyn may be less akin to the Biblical Jeremiah than to the Greek prophetess Cassandra, who carried the curse of never being believed.

But Cassandra, we tend to forget, was also fated always to be right.

Garbage in . . .

To paraphrase poet Robert Frost, something there is that doesn't love a computer. Something there is, also, that's delighted whenever these electronic marvels come a cropper, as they did by projecting a victory by Rep. Morris K. Udall, (D-Ariz.), over Jimmy Carter in the Wisconsin primary.

Computers of course, are no more infallible than their human operators. As computerologists say, if you put garbage in, you'll get garbage out.

The reason the computers of two television networks misfired in Wisconsin was due not to a misinterpretation of information on the part of the computer but to a lack of complete information to work with. The Udall victory forecast was upset by a late surge of slow-counted Carter votes from rural areas.

Our delight, however, is tempered by the sober realization that this nation's security is dependent in great part upon intelligence fed into computers about the capabilities, intentions and activities of potential adversaries.

We wonder how much garbage is going into them.

Joyce Hifler

Think on these things

Little girl, with your solemn brown eyes and sometimes quiet manner . . . I often wonder if I should have spanked you more . . . for even now it seems that I could not have loved you more . . . not that love stops when spanking begins or instruction stops when wisdom begins . . . for a mother is a mother and she has things to say to you . . . very often, whether you want to hear it or not.

When I see you doing the same silly things I did as a girl . . . I want desperately to say, "Must we do these things all over again!" . . . and then I remember you have the same right to decision, you need the same space in which to grow and breathe . . . and the teaching has not all been one way . . . for your common sense has often given me new insight . . . and new reason to love you more . . . if that is anyway possible!

Ethnic communities

Dear Editor:

Sometimes all of us seem to be arguing against what we have and want. Actually supporting what in reality we don't want. For example the other day the Democratic Presidential candidate "Jimmy" Carter talked about not destroying "Ethnic Communities." Immediately he was given such a "hard time" for what he said, he had to apologize. Insisting he used the "wrong words."

Wonder why? America is by choice one ethnic community after another. I'm from Philadelphia with just about six years here in California. Decidedly a city of ethnic communities. The Italians in South Philadelphia fight for the right to live together as Italians. In Chinatown the Chinese there do the same. There are decidedly Jewish communities. Roman Catholic communities with their church insisting they attend the parish church and parochial school. Necessitating Catholics living together in a community of their faith.

In Philadelphia there is a Puerto Rican ethnic community. Even communities of people whose ancestry goes back to England or Germany. Though I personally believe in the integration of all the people having served an Episcopal Church in Philadelphia with almost half of our 1000 members Negro — black — I soon learned Negroes wanted to live together in their own ethnic communities. The fortunate living together in better communities. The less fortunate living together "on the other side of the tracks."

As one travels through Pennsylvania one comes again and again on certainly the equivalent of ethnic communities. The Amish wanting to be together as such. Someone from the city would be "language uncomfortable" in the upstate Pennsylvania Dutch communities. The state of Utah is a community completely under control of the Mormons where if you are not a Mormon it is difficult to obtain work. And they are one of the fastest growing "Ethnic Communities" among our nation's religious groups. In Hawaii one is surprised to find native Hawaiians, Chinese and Japanese each as separate groups banding together in what could be considered "Ethnic Communities."

I believe the various "Ethnic Communities" in our nation want this. Despite their too hasty objection to what "Jimmy" Carter said. And all he said was he felt the government should not deliberately "break up" such communities. I live in an apartment house complex of senior citizens. Here youths under sixteen years can't live. While I believe it ridiculous to so separate senior citizens from junior citizens under 16 the parents of such youths would be subject to the law if brought here. Yet there is an excellent rapport between the senior citizens and the college and high school students. Isn't it much more important that we do things together. Rather than that we live together. I think so. — W. Hamilton Aulenbach, D.D., Claremont

Kissinger's cruise missile

WASHINGTON — A secret study suggests that the Pentagon is squandering $500 million on a cruise missile system because Secretary of State Henry Kissinger wanted it as a bargaining chip at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

The General Accounting Office study reports that in 1973 the Air Force had abandoned its air-launched cruise missile and the Navy had downgraded its sea-launched cruise missile.

But then Kissinger proposed that a long-range, air-to-surface missile "made sense strategically and would assist the U.S. in the SALT negotiations." The Defense Department immediately took a new interest and the unmanned, jet-powered, subsonic missile.

Apparently Kissinger wanted to build the cruise missile system merely so he could offer to scrap it. It has already cost the taxpayers about $250 million for Kissinger to make this point at the SALT talks. The final cost, according to the GAO's calculations, could surpass $500 million.

Yet except for its use as a diplomatic ploy, the expensive missile has stirred little enthusiasm in the Pentagon. The secret GAO study questions "whether a valid need has been established for a long-range missile."

The Strategic Air Command, which is supposed to be equipped with cruise missiles, "has not expressed an operational requirement for the system." And the Navy hasn't yet found a use for its cruise missiles except to deploy them as a reserve force on attack submarines.

To add to the cost, the two services are developing separate but similar missiles. The Pentagon is supposed to save money by stopping the duplication of weapons.

Government fuddling has also added to the cost of developing the cruise missile. The Defense Department, for example, hasn't gotten around to providing the Defense Mapping Agency with the missiles' mapping requirements.

Nor has the Energy Research and Development Administration been given the data it needs to complete its work on the nuclear warheads for the cruise missile. The delay, of course, will increase costs unnecessarily.

But if the cruise missile has dubious value for defense, it already is being used for diplomacy. A State Department spokesman acknowledged that the missile has been mentioned at the SALT negotiations. But he claimed "nothing substantive" has been discussed. "The negotiating points," he added, "are very closely held."

WATCH ON WASTE: The price of a first-class stamp has more than doubled in four years. Only a few months ago, the price jumped again from 10 to 13 cents. Postal authorities predict that in another five years a stamp will cost 23 cents.

Other postal charges are also going up, up, up. The cost of special delivery shot up this week from 60 to 80 cents. The fee for registering mail climbed from 95 cents to $1.25. And money order fees rose from 25 to 30 cents.

Yet as mail rates have gone up, the service has gone down. Mail users might be excused for wondering, therefore, where their stamp money is going. Here are a few specifics:

— The postal plight hasn't restrained the top officials from raising their own salaries. Postmaster General Benjamin Franklin Bailar, for example, upped his salary from $60,000 to $63,000 at the same time that he was explaining how necessary it was to increase the price of stamps another three cents. In the western states region alone, more than three dozen postal officials wangled promotions for themselves.

— As a bicentennial project, the Postal Service shelled out $120,000 for two 28-foot motor vans, which were supposed to be outfitted as traveling exhibits. The postal authorities unhappily concluded, however, that the mail service was in such bad grace that it wouldn't be a good time for postal displays. As a result, the bicentennial vans have been quietly set aside for use as "emergency" post offices in areas hit by natural disasters.

Investing in South Africa

Despite a natural reluctance to discuss the venture publicly, the huge Joseph E. Seagram and Sons company is now seriously considering a $10 million investment in KwaZulu, one of minority white-ruled South Africa's Bantustans.

The word is that the proposed project involves the construction of a distillery, in partnership with a South African corporation. The plant would employ perhaps 100 people and aim primarily at the export market.

Apparently anticipating opposition to this venture from those concerned about African liberation in the U.S. and Canada (Seagram is a Canadian corporation with a U.S. subsidiary), Seagram has tried hard to project an image of social concern. It sent a team of investigators to South Africa and hired an American consulting firm, headed by noted black psychologist Kenneth Clark to examine the issue and propose a set of conditions which would make such investment acceptable to the critics.

Such efforts, designed to find "clean" ways of investing in South Africa today, ignore reality by pretending that it will be possible to run a non-apartheid operation in an apartheid system; or, more seriously, that such an operation will serve to advance the cause of freedom by undermining apartheid.

Here's Dr. Clark's criteria for the investment:

"The joint venture board of directors should make clear by public statement that this joint venture is an affirmative action which is being developed in ways consistent with the positive future of South Africa and all its people. In no way should it be seen or interpreted as an acceptance or reinforcement of apartheid or present forms of racial inequities."

It is precisely because it is impossible to meet those criteria that Seagram and other corporations ought not to invest in any sector of the racist South African economy.

Investment in the Bantustans is a new form of foreign investment in South Africa. It appears to be proposed as a way of meeting the mounting criticism that aid to the South African economy is supporting racial oppression and exploitation. Even voices inside South Africa, who have until now urged investment as a spur to economic growth and ultimate social change, have now come to recognize the falseness of that view.

The Seagram decision involves much more than one $10 million project. It comes at a critical time and will serve as an important symbol in the period just before us.

Only a few years ago, in solidarity with the struggle for liberation in South Africa, black workers at the Polaroid plant in Boston demanded that Polaroid stop doing business in South Africa. They spearheaded a struggle which united community, church and other groups in the U.S. around the slogan of American corporations out of South Africa.

But Polaroid devised a strategy which promised better jobs, better training, more scholarships and "progress" for its workers in South Africa . . . and many people accepted the "practicality" of the so-called Polaroid experiment.

In the years since the Polaroid experiment, life has gotten worse, not better for the workers of South Africa. It is important that the same arguments should not be allowed to prevail again. There is no way to improve apartheid. It must be abolished.

Just in jest

Now and then in the sex discrimination free for all that is raging these days the men may actually win a round. Unfortunately, however, one round doesn't constitute a victory, for usually it's the women who end up scoring the most points. And that's just what happened recently.

A Superior Court judge ruled that lower prices for women on so-called "ladies nights" constitutes discrimination unless similar price concessions are made available to the men.

But never underestimate the power of women where sex and discrimination are involved. While the men were rejoicing over their apparent victory, another judge promptly took the wind out of their sails by ruling that when ladies of the evening are arrested for their somewhat questionable activities, it becomes an act of discrimination if their male companions are allowed to go free.

Discourage the dealers

Editor's Note: During his hospitalization, top state officials are filling in for Earl G. Waters. Today his guest is Robert Presley, State Senator, RIverside County.

Misuse of narcotics in California causes all the people of this state — not just the victims — a heavy toll in both human and financial terms.

Misuse of narcotics means money flowing into the pockets of the unscrupulous dealers whose profits have allowed them to become very sophisticated importers and sellers.

An obvious answer is to give law enforcement authorities the legal tools to investigate and apprehend violators. Another is to make the price of getting caught and convicted heavy enough to discourage narcotics traffic.

For that reason I have introduced, along with State Senator George Deukmejian, a package of 17 bills designed to get at those big dealers who keep a steady flow of illegal drugs flowing to the rich California market.

We spent considerable time studying the problem and concluded that new laws are needed to properly equip both law enforcement officers and the courts to crack down on those who profit on human frailties. The big dealers are clever, organized, and well-financed. Surely they must spend some time laughing at the obstacles confronting authorities who would stop their profitable enterprises.

A major part of our program will be to increase the use of electronic eavesdropping on those suspected of being major traffic dealers. Our subcommittee has been told repeatedly that law enforcement must have added means of getting the necessary evidence for conviction. State and local law enforcement now know who is making, transporting and selling major amounts of narcotics, but need additional ways to get court-approved recordings that cannot be refuted in a later trial.

We also believe that the sale of cocaine is increasing so fast and its effects are so severe that those who deal in it ought to get mandatory prison sentences as is the case in the sale of heroin. In other areas we are asking that the potential fines be increased up to $50,000.00 as a deterrent to dealing in illegal drugs.

Further, we think the state ought to have the right to confiscate the very sophisticated vehicles, boats and even airplanes that are used by narcotics merchants. That would be yet another device to cause the illegal dealer to think twice about continuing in business.

In addition, the legislation would tighten record-keeping procedures, give the state attorney general the right to keep up with banning new drugs that come on the market and allow drug prosecution in the courts of only one county where the operators have been doing business in a number of counties.

These bills may be described as "tough", but I like to think of them as giving needed protections to people whose lives are tragically affected by the criminal element that surrounds them. They move us closer toward sure and certain punishment for convicted dealers. Most important, they give law enforcement authorities a chance to get at the truly big traffickers who profit in human misery.

Until we shut off the supply, society is going to pay a heavy price in wrecked lives, in terms of attempts at rehabilitating victims of drugs and watching the crime rates continue to soar.

Address change fouls up vet benefit check

My children are entitled to veteran's death benefits and were receiving them until three months ago.

I have moved since first filing my claim. At the time I moved I filed a change of address with the San Bernardino County Veterans Affairs Office in Ontario.

However, the checks continued to come to the former address and were forwarded to my present address. I again went into the office to see why and while there filled out another change of address card.

My check was sent to my former address and was forwarded to my present home.

The following month my check failed to arrive.

Although I was told the Veterans Administration office in Los Angeles verified receiving the address change, this problem still persists. — J. R., Pomona.

We took your problem directly to the VA office in Los Angeles.

Our answer was a copy of a letter to you from R. K. Sorenson, veterans service officer, saying steps were being taken to correct your address and resume your payments.

You go a check for $244.50 representing payment for the three months and thanked us for our quick action.

Right away I received a letter asking for $7 for an extension of a weight-loss newsletter subscription. This request came from Lincoln Press, also in Tulsa.

I immediately wrote requesting my refund because I had never received the book I ordered and had not ordered a subscription. I wrote a second letter asking for my refund.

On the same day, the book arrived but I mailed it right back.

Six weeks have passed since I placed the original order. I cannot understand how a company can keep your money that long. — M. S., Upland.

We wrote to Christopher Lynn but our answer came from Lincoln Press on the back of a copy of an envelope which showed that you did indeed return the package containing the book marked "refused — return to sender, please."

Mary Lemaster of Lincoln Press said she would authorize a refund of $9.24, deducting 76 cents of postage due.

She explained that refunds are made in the order in which they are received and that Lincoln Press had just received the book you returned.

I have a 17-year-old son who has never been in any trouble.

He finished high school in 1975 and went into the Marine Corps but had to leave the service because of his health.

When he got out of the Marines it was too late to get a grant to help him pay for a college education but we hope he can get one in the future.

His father has never done a thing for him. I tried to get child support for him when his father was in the Air Force but his father went overseas to avoid paying.

There are no jobs to be had for my son. He needs an education to make up for his health, which won't allow him to do work that might strain his health.

Is there any way his father could be forced to help me send him to school? — C. H., Pomona.

Ed Braveman of the Office of the District Attorney in Pomona told us he had looked into your problem.

He said your son would be 18 and "emancipated" in a month or so and consequently would not be eligible for child support.

Collection of back support appears to be close to an impossibility because you and your son's father weren't married and paternity is difficult to prove after so many years.

We are sorry to give you a negative answer.

For Thursday, April 22, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Situations that you take a hand in today should go much to your liking. Just don't let others decide for you where money is involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An influential contact can be of help to you today, but this person will not want others to know of it. Keep silent about what occurs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll learn of something very worthwhile today through a dear friend. Be willing to pass on to others that which was told to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's best not to talk today about a personal matter regarding someone you love. You may tell far more than you intended.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be disappointed by one who is very fond of you. It will not be out of thoughtlessness, but because you'll get your signals crossed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your desire to be of service today will be genuine, but if someone makes an unreasonable request you'll let her fend for herself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Business proposales that surface while socializing today should not be acted upon too hastily. You could be told only what you'd like to hear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you'll be inspired to add little artistic touches around the house. It could turn into a major project.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're popular today. Others will take your remarks to heart. Thus it's important you don't wound someone with a blunt comment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Financial conditions will be mixed today, but your gains should exceed your deficits provided you use your reliable common sense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Early in the day you'll be extremely easy to get along with, but later on trivial issues could get you up tight.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Materially, this could be a fortunate day for you. A source that doesn't usually pay off may provide you with a surprising dividend.

Your Birthday, April 22, 1976

This year you may get an unexpected assist just when it's needed to help you further an ambitious interest. It will occur because you once helped one who is now a key to your plans.

Curtail habit of frankness

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend (we are both girls, age 17) who is a beautiful person, but last week she decided to turn herself into a "completely honest human being." I'm afraid it's going to get her into a lot of trouble.

Yesterday she went up to a rather shy girl and said, "I'm telling you this for your own good. Go on a strict diet and lose 30 pounds." The girl almost cried.

Within the hour she advised a black student to get her Afro shaped. "Your head looks like a bush," she said. "You'd be much more attractive and civilized-looking if you trimmed your hair." Five minutes ago she told a TEACHER she needs to use a deodorant.

All her advice is good and I know she means well, but what will this "frankness" do to her relationships? — Don't Know

Dear D.K.: Plenty — and none of it good. Suggest to your well-meaning friend that she cool it.

Unsolicited advice is almost always resented. It can also be interpreted as a personal attack.

I admire the girl's wish to be completely honest, but she should restrict the self-improvement program to herself and leave other people alone

Dear Ann Landers: For two years I have been engaged to marry a man who is divorced. He has two young children to whom he is devoted.

This past summer I was alone many Sundays while my fiance went picnicking and attended ball games with his children and the ex-wife. Now he tells me he is planning a week's vacation to Williamsburg with his children and their mother. When I asked why she was going along, he said, "To share expenses." I told him I did not approve of the arrangement and he replied, "She is the mother of my children. Divorce is tough enough on the kids without adding the problem of parents who are completely estranged."

What do you see ahead? — App-Ree-Hensive

Dear Ap: Trouble. And lots of it. Unless you are prepared to spend several weekends and holidays alone, think twice before you marry this man.

I firmly believe divorced parents should be civil to one another and friendly, if possible, but picnics and picnics and trips are out of line. If they like each other THAT much, they ought to remarry.

Dear Ann: I'm going with a young woman I've grown quite fond of. She has many fine qualities — the ones I want in a wife — but . . .

When I inquired about her past she told me she had been in love with a man for two years, had sexual relations with him, and then they went their separate ways. It later turns out there were two others, not love affairs, just sexual encounters. She saw nothing wrong with what she had done, said it was "natural and normal" and that her parents knew and did not disapprove.

My cultural background is quite different. I feel she lacks moral and ethical standards. Should I terminate this relationship or try to be "broad-minded" and concentrate on her positive attributes? — Uncertain

Dear Un: Chop it. Now. Feeling as you do about this woman's past, the chances of a successful marriage are slim. If she smiled at the mailman you'd probably think she was up to something. You would never trust her completely and she'd be forever on the defensive.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Fine time for Daylight Saving

What time is it?

Simple question. Asked frequently — anxiously by the secretary scurrying late to work, angrily by the boss wondering where the blazes she is, by the weary worker waiting for the end of the day, by the restless schoolboy waiting for the end of class. Time is important to everyone, from cradle to grave, but no one is ever sure of the exact time. Business appointments, plane departures, theater curtains — what is it by the hall clock? Is the kitchen clock right? What did the radio say?

One problem is that man is always messing around with this great intangible, Time, toying with it, changing it, playing games with it. One of our messings around occurs Sunday when a large part of the nation will turn the clocks ahead one hour to get onto Daylight Saving Time, costing everyone an hour's sleep and getting the religious to church an hour after the service starts.

That "costing an hour's sleep" is a meaningless cliche, because most people sleep late on Sundays, and an hour one way or the other won't even be noticed unless you have a starting time on the golf course. And we all "get back" that lost hour next fall when we turn the clocks back again. Remember — in the spring we turn them forward; in the autumn we turn them back. Spring ahead — fall back. Isn't that cute? It doesn't do a thing for the family dog, unfortunately. He doesn't go by clocks. When he wants out, he wants out!

Daylight Time was first thought up by an Englishman named William Willett in 1907. (Well, he was William Willet in 1906 and in 1908, too, but you know what I mean.) America tried it for the first time during World War I to save fuel. (Please don't ask me to go into that — I don't understand it anymore than you do.)

Those of us who have been rising with the sun these days, will find ourselves getting up in what the Postal Department calls "the gloom of night." On the other hand, at the end of the day we will have an extra hour of sunlight for tennis or golf. Unless it is raining.

Farmers reportedly do not like Daylight Saving Time. Maybe cows don't give milk properly or chickens lay decent eggs on the altered schedule. It is hard to plow a straight furrow in the dark, and as for digging potatoes, well!

But there are a lot fewer farmers these days than there used to be, just as there are a lot fewer church-goers than in days gone by. A lot more people are interested in when the Dodger game starts than when to slop the hogs.

So, whether you are on the first tee at 7 a.m. Sunday or singing in the choir at 11 a.m. or milking cows at 4 a.m., be sure you have turned your alarm clock forward one hour before retiring. Or you can wake up at 2 a.m. and do it — the legal hour for the change. Then you don't close your eyes until 6 a.m.

Happy Daylight Time.

Dr. Lamb

Fiber really isn't 'roughage'

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have diverticulosis or pockets of the colon. Eating roughage hurts and cramps my colon with gas, yet I know I must have fiberous foods. On the other hand, I am told not to eat roughage. I do suffer more when I eat raw fruits and vegetables. Could you give me an idea of what to eat for roughage that would not cause discomfort? Is there anything better to take than Metamusil for my condition?

DEAR READER — The proponents of fiber for the diet believe that it will relieve many of the problems in diverticulosis. The idea is that those pockets of the colon are really a complication of a spastic or over contracted colon associated with inadequate bulk in the diet.

The word roughage is not a good word for the type of food you really need. What you need in your diet is "softage." The best source of bulk in food really is the cereal fiber found in bran or the husk of wheat. This is superior to the amount of fiber you'll get in either fruits or vegetables and since those bother you, you should try cereal fiber.

Among the readily available prepared cereals that you can get from the supermarket to satisfy your problem are Kellogg's All-Bran, Bran Buds and Nabisco Bran. If you will eat one ounce (about one teacup dry measure) of any of these a day you will get enough "softage" to obtain whatever benefits you might expect from this procedure. In case you don't like any of those, you can use two ounces of Bran Flakes or Raisin Bran. Use two ounces of these a day because they don't contain as much cereal fiber.

Cereal fiber is not roughage. As soon as it is moist, as would happen in the stomach, it swells and becomes soft, not greatly different from the consistency you might see in cooked oatmeal. It won't irritate the digestive tract.

You may have an increased amount of gas during the first three weeks of using these foods. If you have too much, cut down on the amount you are using and gradually increase it. If you do well on this program you can then add other whole wheat products to your dietary plan, including whole wheat bread as opposed to the white flour types. In general try to increase your cereal fiber. For information on Diverticulosis send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 5-6. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What causes mastoid trouble? When my daughter was about 1 year old she had it and had an operation. She seems to think it was caused by something I gave her. It bothers me.

DEAR READER — Most mastoid trouble is caused by an infection. That does not mean an infection that your daughter would have gotten from you. Mastoid infections were common complications of ear infections and the types of infections we classified as respiratory infections in years past. We don't see them much anymore because antibiotics eliminate most of the bacterial infections that would cause mastoiditis. You can be fairly certain that your daughter's problem was a complication of an infection that she developed as a child totally unrelated to anything that you might have done or anything she may have gotten from you.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

John Crawford's last major tournament was in Monte Carlo last summer. Playing with Alvin Roth, Matt Granovetter and James Jacoby, he finished second to the World Champion Italian team.

In the methods used by Roth and Crawford the two-club response was forcing to game unless followed by three clubs. Hence, two hearts would have been forcing so that three hearts was a slam try.

Crawford's three-spade bid showed that control. Four diamonds showed second-round control in that suit. Five notrump was the grandslam force to ask about trump honors. It was no problem for Roth to jump to the grand slam, since he held both ace and king of trumps.

The play illustrates Crawford's excellent technique. He started by cashing dummy's ace and king of clubs in order to jettison his two losing spades. Then he went after diamonds and was careful enough to ruff the third diamond with one of dummy's high trumps. He decided to return to his hand by ruffing a club. A spade play would have been fatal. Then he ruffed his last diamond with the last high trump, drew trumps and had his grand slam.

Ask the Jacobys

An Illinois reader wants to know what the forcing notrump response is.

Certain people who never open a four-card major suit also play that the response of two in a lower suit shows at least 11 high-card points.

Hence, when they respond one notrump opener is asked to rebid to two of a three-card minor or two of his own suit if he holds six. What he does with five spades, four hearts and two of each minor is his problem.

Lloyd on gun controls, post officer . . . NAACP on Carter

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., has introduced bills in Congress to require mandatory sentences for crimes involving use of guns and to require the Postal Service to expand its considerations for closing small post offices beyond purely financial circumstances.

Lloyd said he introduced the gun measure to deter the use of firearms because crime is an "epidemic" in the nation.

Previous gun control measures before Congress have not provided viable solutions because they have not addressed the criminal aspect to a sufficient degree, he said.

Lloyd said he introduced a bill to require a more careful examination of small post office operations to prevent small communities from being shut out of mail service.

"This nation was a collection of small communities when it was formed 200 years ago and I believe this is an important way of life that should not be penalized with a cutoff of mail service or a reduction in service which would certainly result if the small postal stations were closed."

Lloyd said he wants to see the Postal Service become self-sufficient and also provide service to rural and isolated communities.

Officials of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED PEOPLE (NAACP) expressed concern during a recent executive board meeting about presidential candidate Jimmy Carter's remark about "ethnic purity."

Monroe Jones, political action chairman, stated in an official response: "Mr. Carter's statement that ethnic purity should not be disturbed by busing has been termed by himself as both unfortunate and a poor choice of words.

"It has been observed by news reporters following Mr. Carter in his campaigns throughout the country that he speaks out of both sides of his mouth on certain issues, depending upon the color of the audience he addresses.

"This time the real truth came out for all to hear. There can be little doubt that with this frame of reference, if elected President of the United States, Carter would severely set back equality of opportunity for all people, especially blacks and other minorities."

STATE SEN. H. L. RICHARDSON, R-19th Dist., has introduced legislation that would permit union members unemployed for more than 30 days not to pay their union dues and prohibit them from being suspended or lose union benefits for the period of unemployment.

"Thousands of rank and file union members would benefit from the bill," said Richardson. "For instance, an unemployed person must now maintain his or her union dues with unemployment or welfare money. Such funds are meant for food and other necessities.

"However, if a union member does not keep current on dues, he or she is dropped from work lists. If you are not on a work list, you can't get a job," he added.

Georgia Grove, chairman of the CITIZENS FOR REAGAN in the 65th Assembly District, has appointed members of the advisory committee.

England's Queen Elizabeth 50 years old today

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II observes her 50th birthday today after a 24-year reign that began with hopes for a second glorious Elizabeth Age but has been downhill all the way for Britain.

When George VI died on Feb. 6, 1952, and his older daughter became queen while on a visit to Africa, Britain was Western Europe's leading nation, the pound sterling was one of the world's more stable currencies, there were 100,000 British soldiers in the Suez Canal Zone, and British air and naval bases stretched to Hong Kong.

Today as the queen prepares for a quiet family birthday at Windsor Castle, Britain's wealth and power are sharply diminished, its empire dismembered, its economy in disarray.

"Future historians will have little choice but to dismiss this period of our national life as one of unrelieved failure," the weekly New Statesman said recently. But it added: "The monarchy still appears a stable feature of our national life: perhaps the only thing that is."

The 19th century constitutional expert Walter Bagehot once commented that only three rights remained to the monarch: "the right to be consulted, the right to encourage, the right to warn."

But "after 24 years on the throne, the queen is the only person in Westminster and Whitehall who has followed, at the very highest level, the process of top-level decision-making going back over a whole generation," Paul Johnson, former editor of the New Statesman, wrote in the Daily Express.

"She has outlasted five British prime ministers, four U.S. presidents, three changes of regime in Russia, four German chancellors, two popes, and countless French and Italian governments — to say nothing of such venerable fixtures as De Gaulle, Franco, Chiang Kaishek and Haile Selassie.

"Only Mao Tse-tung and Marshal Tito can claim greater continuity at the top, and they are in their 80s."

Public criticisms of the queen are confined almost entirely "to the marginal aspects of her existence — her dress-sense, her voice, her ferocious small dogs — and testify merely to the poverty of the material that can be amassed against her personally," the New Statesman said.

Scottish Laborite Willie Hamilton never lets up in his campaign to abolish the monarchy, which he attacks as an expensive, useless anachronism. But in his anti-royalty book last year, "My Queen and I," he said he had never said "a cruel or critical word" against Queen Elizabeth personally.

Most Britons view the royal establishment with quiet pride.

"She's good value for money, she is," one young Londoner said.

Millions still follow the unfolding royal story as if it was their favorite soap opera. The queen and her family are still persistent headline-makers in Britain and among the country's biggest crowd pullers. Thousands throng the Mall and Whitehall every year for the queen's coach ride in October to open Parliament and the Trooping of the Color for the official celebration of her birthday in June, when the weather is most likely to be good.

The queen's oldest son and heir, Prince Charles, has matured into a serious, 27-year-old man with all the attributes Britons look for in a monarch — good looks, a sense of humor, tact, a quick mind and a talent for making people feel at ease.

This has prompted some speculation that his mother may abdicate some day in his favor. But despite the prince's popularity, most Britons would probably not favor the change for many years to come.

The queen has been less lucky in her younger sister, Princess Margaret, who has presented her with the two biggest personal crises of her reign. One was Margaret's romance with a divorced man, Group Capt. Peter Townsend, in 1955. The other was her separation this year from her husband, the Earl of Snowdon.

VAL STUART

LILA STUART

HAGOP TOPOUZIAN

West End Opera plans two one-act works

The husband and wife duo of Val and Lila Stuart will sing leading roles in the West End Opera Company presentation of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" in Spring Auditorium, Ontario, at 8 p.m. Saturday.

In the evening's companion piece, Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci," Stuart will take the part of Canio and Hagob Topouzian will sing the role of Tonio.

Mrs. Stuart holds a master's degree from Indiana University where she appeared in many performances of the Opera Theater. She has sung with the opera companies of Cincinnati, San Antonio, Phoenix, San Diego and others. Stuart, who also did graduate work at Indiana University, has sung with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the Roger Wagner Chorale and other major musical groups.

Turkish-born Topouzian sang with the Municipal Opera of Istanbul for 10 years and came to Southern California in 1965 for further voice study. He recently returned from successful performances with the Spendiarov Opera Company in Russia.

Wayne Eikenberry, first place winner of the western regional auditions of the Metropolitan Opera last year, will sing Alfio in "Cavalleria." Betty Jackson, a third Indiana University graduate, will portray Mama Lucia, and Dolores Burt will be Lola. The latter has appeared with Carol Channing in "Wonderful Town," with Dorothy Kirsten in "The Great Waltz" and with Robert Merrill in "Fiddler on the Roof."

With Stuart in "Pagliacci" will be Carole Anne Powell as Nedda. She has been soloist with the Glendale Symphony and other orchestras and is a former member of the Metropolitan Opera National Company. Andrew Taylor, who has performed with the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra and the Lakewood Philharmonia, will play Silvio.

Others in the cast are Octavio Orochena as Beppe, and Paul Vander Heyden and Anthony Niccola as villagers.

45th state

Utah became the 45th state, Jan. 4, 1896.

'Man of La Mancha'

VCT to offer musical play

Dale Wasserman's Tony Award-winning musical, "Man of La Mancha," will open at Valley Community Theater at 8:30 Thursday night. The opening night performance will be followed by a champagne reception in the Green Room for members of the cast, crew and audience.

The play will be staged at 8:30 Friday and Saturday nights through June 12. Reservations can be made at 622-6954. Students and senior citizens are admitted at reduced prices, and group rates are offered.

"Man of La Mancha," containing such well-known songs as "The Impossible Dream," "Dulcinea," and "Golden Helmet of Mambrine", features Ed Waterhouse as Don Quixote, Lynda Hershey as Aldonza, and David Bushner as Sancho.

Also in the large cast are Clint Miller as the Duke — Dr. Carrasco, Ron Carroll as the Governor-Innkeeper, Tina Geer as the Housekeeper, Manny Suarez as the Captain of the Inquisition, Susan Boulanger as Maria, the Inkeeper's wife, Tom Schultz as the Padre, Andy Case as the Barber, Rochelle Young as Firmina, a servant girl, and Lynne Lundquist as Antonia.

The Muleteers are played by Mike McCann, Vin Newborn, Richard Frazer, Victor Troxil and Bob Bennett.

"Man of La Mancha" is the musical adaptation of "Don Quixote," in which Wasserman has preserved all the irony, the humor, the soaring poetry of Cervantes' masterwork, while producing an original work of art with music and lyrics by Joe Darion and Mitch Leigh.

Director Annette Roon, a graduate of Pasadena Playhouse and a well-known area actress, has directed "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running" at VCT, as well as appearing in "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "The Lion in Winter." She has won several awards at the Riverside one-act play tournament.

Assistant director of the production is Gene Kohil. Musical director is Schultz. Production accompanist is Dena Carper. Choreography is by Dan Miller, set design by Margot Andrews, and lighting by Jess Ray. Jim Gardner designed the costumes.

Art show, auction slated

A benefit art show and auction will be held at the Glendora Library and Cultural Center starting at 7 p.m. Friday. Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

Lawyer convicted of theft

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A disbarred lawyer accused of diverting money from the estates of dead and elderly persons has been convicted on six counts of grand theft.

Sentencing for C. DeForrest Cutler, 53, who was convicted Monday, was set for May 20 by Superior Court Judge Jack T. Ryburn.

Cutler diverted much of the nearly $300,000 he imbezzled from clients' funds to an Anaheim organization that promotes girls' softball tournaments, investigators alleged.

Israeli recalls 1970 dogfight over Egypt

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An Israeli air force officer described Tuesday how he shot down a Soviet pilot's MIG21 in a dogfight over Egypt six years ago, and claimed Russian flyers at the time "were no better than their Arab pupils."

In the first published account of a 1970 air battle near the Suez Canal, the pilot said Israeli Phantoms and Mirage jets used air-to-air missiles to down five MIGs flown by Russians. No Israelis were hit.

"By the time the Russians understood what was happening it was too late. One Russian plane caught fire immediately on our first contact," said the Israeli pilot, identified only by the initial A. "There were 16 planes altogether ... Disposable fuel tanks were flying all over the place ... I could see bonfires of MIGs on the ground."

The account was published in the newspaper Maariv, from an interview to appear in the Israeli air force journal. The pilot's identity was concealed for security reasons, but Maariv printed a photograph of his Phantom emblazoned with "one MIG 21 killed, July 30, 1970."

The Russians' flying skill "was the same quality we found among Egyptian pilots ... The Russian instructors were no better than their Arab pupils," he said.

The Israeli military command announced its planes shot down four MIG 21s on the July date during the two-year war of attrition across the canal but never officially confirmed that the pilots were Russians.

Censorship banned details for six years, but former Prime Minister Golda Meir once disclosed in the United States that Israeli pilots had fought and beaten Soviet airmen in Egypt.

An Egyptian confidant of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser, former newspaper editor Mohammed Heikal, said in his book "The Road to Ramadan" that Nasser admitted Israeli Phantoms shot down five MIGs in the dogfight.

The battle began at 17,000 feet near Ras Gharb on the southern edge of the Gulf of Suez where Israeli reconnaissance planes were flying eight miles off the coast, recounted the Israeli, now a 30-year-old economist. Israeli Phantom jets were on escort duty.

"The Russians were patrolling ... Then the Russians arrived in three formations of four planes each, MIG21s ... There were a lot of Russian planes there, a real convoy of MIGs ... The Phantoms waited (until) we were pair against pair...

"I saw a missile launched by a Mirage that cut in ahead of us ... A MIG was hit ... I was looking for a MIG for myself and at last I got lucky ... He came at me from the right," said A.

"I don't know what the Russian boy was thinking, but he was clearly an inexperienced pilot ... He didn't know basic tactics ... We locked the radar onto him

... We launched a missile ... There was a great explosion ... I could see bonfires of other MIGs on the ground and one pilot still parachuting ... I think he was dead."

Joyce Brothers
Please don't handle

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I work for a man who can't pass me in the hall without touching me. I really don't like it but I'm afraid to complain because he is the boss. According to the other secretaries, this touching habit doesn't necessarily mean he wants more. They say it's just his way of trying to make his employees feel he likes them. What can I do? — J.S.

Dear J.S.: How about approaching this casually, making a joke of it. Try, "Don't bend the fabric," or "Don't finger the goods." The boss might get the point. You could try to move out of his way, or you could tell him your feelings quite directly and honestly. Without knowing him — or you — it is difficult for me to suggest the best approach.

Men touch much more frequently than women, at least in casual encounters. While women are much less likely to reciprocate a man's touch, few men are able to resist the opportunity for contact with a woman when she makes the first move.

The male tendency to pat seems more prevalent outdoors. Once inside buildings, men tend to touch less, perhaps because the touch would more likely be misinterpreted.

I think you might consider the possibility that your boss simply considers this a friendly, reassuring gesture, especially since he doesn't seem to want or expect further intimacy.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm very worried about my mother because she is drinking heavily and taking too many pills. Since my father's death two years ago she has been unhappy and lonely. I don't know what to do. Most doctors would think I was crazy if I said my 70-year-old mother is an addict, but she is. Having her live with me would break up my marriage and yet I hate to see her destroy herself this way. — H.K.

Dear H.K.: If your doctor doesn't take you seriously, you should get another medical opinion. Most doctors are aware that drug abuse by the elderly isn't uncommon. It may begin, as in your mother's case, with an attempt to escape boredom and loneliness.

Often, too much medication is given for symptoms that are common to old age, such as insomnia, depression, and mood changes. Doctors sometimes prescribe multiple drugs which may interact. When you add alcohol to other drugs it can create a serious problem. Even worse, alcohol, a depressant, when used along with sleeping pills, can be fatal.

The most important thing you can do for your mother is to try to involve her in some activity. You might not feel she is an alcoholic, but if she attended a few meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous it might have a therapeutic effect. If you could persuade her to go to at least six meetings, she could then decide for herself whether she wished to continue. I'm sure if you explained her situation, someone from your local chapter of AA would be happy to call on your mother.

You might be saving her life.

Witch doctors

Witch doctors claim they can cure aches and pains with magic spells, charms and gestures.

Susan Ilsley wed at church service

Newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Bicker have established a home in Pomona following their marriage at St. Ambrose Episcopal Church in Claremont.

The former Miss Susan Ilsley is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John L. Ilsley of Claremont. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Bicker of Claremont.

Honor attendant was Miss Sara Ilsley, sister of the bride, of Redlands. Best man was Michael Bicker, brother of the groom, of Claremont.

Other attendants were Miss Sue Stafford, Hawaii; Mrs. Greta Ilsley, Claremont; Mrs. Cheryl Burkett, Riverside; and Miss Beverly Caddes of Claremont.

Ushers were Jay Ilsley, Bruce White, Claremont; William Shacklett of Fullerton; and David Post of Laguna.

MRS. DANIEL BICKER

Secretaries can become executives

With the right skills and the right attitudes, women secretaries can move up if they want to, according to an internationally known training consultant.

She is Eleanor Macdonald, a well-groomed, articulate Britisher who has been staff controller — in charge of 2,500 women — at Selfridges, London's largest store; one of five women to reach senior executive level at Unilever, a large British corporation; and women's adviser to an industrial complex subsidiary, traveling throughout West Africa and the United Kingdom.

"Women say they want to move forward," she says, "but deep down, they don't make the right noises. When I was young, my mother didn't ask who I was going to marry, but what I was going to do in life. It has made all the difference."

Mrs. Macdonald, who has lectured throughout the world, is in town to conduct a "Secretaries Update" May 7 and 8 for UCLA Extension, a concentrated course designed to improve skills and techniques and build more understanding of the productivity and human aspects of the job. She feels such improvement is necessary if a secretary is to be prepared to move up through different levels — or to do her job with skill and self-satisfaction if she chooses to remain a secretary.

"Women here in the United States as well as Great Britain are not going to make top managers in five minutes," she says. "Many women, for example, are reluctant to think in terms of accountancy. Yet everything ends up with cost, whether at a university or in the private sector. Women say they are disturbed ny figures and don't want to bother with them. But management includes management of money. Women have enormous qualities but they must learn how to apply them."

During "Secretaries Update," she will emphasize practical ways of improving communication between management and employees; motivation, attitudes, self-appraisal, reassessment of values and objectives; organizing time, paper, people and money; and creative and logical thinking.

The program will meet Friday, May 7 from 7 to 9:30 p.m., and Saturday, May 8 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., in Room 4000 Math Sciences Building, UCLA. The fee is $35.

Many companies send secretaries to her course as "more and more intelligent and farsighted men begin to utilize womanpower," she says.

Further information is available weekdays through UCLA Extension at (213) 825-2301.

Vows repeated

The home of the Rev. and Mrs. Rolland I. Bowen Sr. in Pomona was the setting for the marriage of Miss Susan Yvette Ruth of Upland and Raymond Noble Bowen of Pomona.

The couple was married by Mr. Bowen in an afternoon garden ceremony followed by a reception in the home. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Ruth of Upland, the bride was given in marriage by Rolland I. Bowen Jr. The bridegroom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Rolland I. Bowen Sr.

Miss Maryann Bianchi of Upland was honor attendant. Serving as best man was Steve Phillips of Pomona.

The newlyweds will establish a home in Pomona.

Pasadena mansion will open to public

One of Pasadena's most beautiful old estates will open Sunday for three weeks of public tours, until May 16, sponsored by the Pasadena Junior Philharmonic Committee. Members of the Pasadena Chapter of the American Society of Interior Designers have transformed 22 rooms of the home into elegant showcases for their talents, and the five acres of gardens have been replanted by landscape experts to be ablaze with spring color.

Tickets are available at the main gate at 1211 Wellington Ave. in the Linda Vista section of Pasadena, at $3 per person. The hours for touring are daily except Mondays, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with evening hours on Wednesdays and Fridays until 8 p.m.

Complimentary refreshments will be served daily, with wine and cheese tasting scheduled for the evening hours. Luncheon will be available every weekday at the house by advance reservation to 793-1976 or 449-3232.

A continuous art show featuring the work of local artisans will be offered visitors to Showcase, and various musical groups will be performing on the Antique musical instruments included in the furnishings of the mansion or in the garden areas.

Nearly 180,000 people have toured the eleven previous Showcase homes, making it possible for the Pasadena Junior Philharmonic Committee to donate over $400,000 to the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. "Pegfair," as this year's home was once named by an owner, is expected to attract at least 25,000 visitors during the three weeks it will be open.

MISS WILKINSON

June 26 nuptials planned

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lopes of Pomona announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Joyce Wilkinson, to Steven Anthony Gerwing of Claremont.

The bride-to-be attended Garey High School. Mr. Gerwing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony E. Gerwing of Pomona, is a 1970 graduate of Garey High School. He is employed by the U. S. Postal Service in City of Industry.

The couple will be married June 26 at Chapel of the Flowers in West Covina.

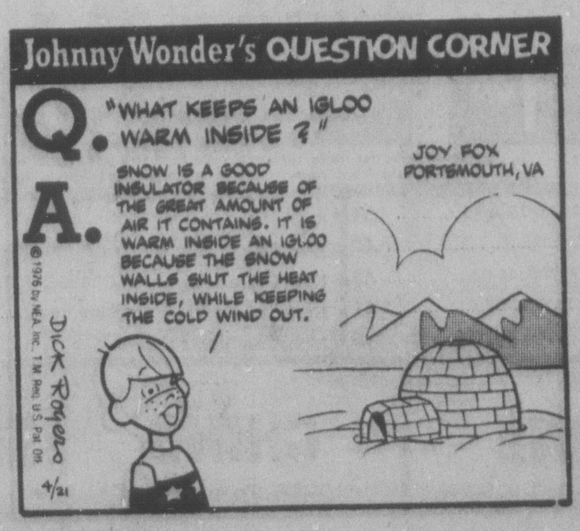
JOHNNY WONDER



If you are an Eskimo in the far north of Canada, you may build your winter house from snow. We call this kind of snow house an "Igloo."

To make a snow house, blocks of hardpacked snow are cut from the ground and stacked up to form a round shelter, big enough for one family to live in.

Even though it is made of snow, it is warm inside the igloo because snow is a good insulator. It shuts the heat in while keeping the cold air out.

An oil lamp lights the igloo and provides enough heat to keep the Eskimo family snug and warm.

The family crawls into their snow house through a low tunnel that keeps the freezing wind from blowing in. They eat and sleep on a bed of snow covered with furs.

Of course, when winter ends and the temperature rises, the igloo melts. During the summer, the Eskimo family may live in a tent, called a "tupek," made from canvas or sealskin.

Many Eskimos today live in modern houses just as we do.

Culinary team chef reviews international tastes

Among his favorite foods, Bruno Ellmer lists hot Salzburg pastries and desserts, Middle East goat cheese and yogurt and South American and Chinese specialties. A strange variety for the orinary palate, but Ellmer's tastes have been cultivated by years of culinary experience in some of the foremost kitchens of the world.

He is currently chef-instructor at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, N.Y., and teaches seven international cuisines plus refresher courses in buffet catering and classical cuisine.

"French cookery is quite complicated," he explained, "but I'd rate it as one of the best along with Chinese. American cuisine," he continued, "is permeated with foreign influences. Nowhere can one find as much variation in food preparation. It's a country of unlimited culinary possibilities." As a member of the team of chefs which will represent the United States in the International Culinary Competition, Ellmer will explore those endless possibilities and help create innovative American menus to set before the panel of judges next October in Frankfurt, Germany, the site of the contest.

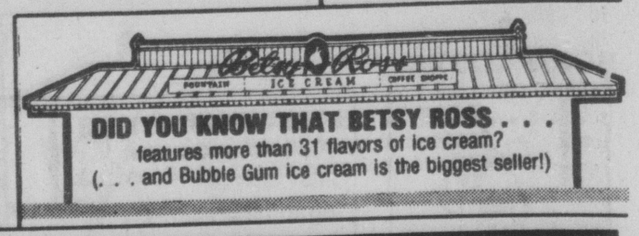
Intrigued with cooking since childhood, Ellmer comes from a family of restauranteurs and cheese wholesalers in Salzburg, Austria. At the age of 13, he entered his chef apprenticeship and began a foodservice career which took him to the top hotels in Austria; Montreal, Canada; and Amman, Jordan, before settling in New York,

"Eating habits in the Middle East were the most fascinating," said the award-winning chef. "Food was prepared differently because of dietary laws. Western guests at the Amman hotel were unaccustomed to various delicacies and handling procedures, so they were served carefully-washed foods and pasteurized products to avoid illness."

But not everyone was spared. The first week on the job, Ellmer himself was poisoned by drinking the local water. During the following months as he planned state banquets for King Hussein and attended to his other duties, he learned to enjoy the Jordanian specialties and became pleasantly addicted to many of the native dishes.

Throughout the experience, he maintained the philosophy that a good chef must be a hard worker and willing to sacrifice in order to establish a firm ground in the culinary art. "One must be serious about cooking. When a chef prepares food, he must respect it — it's almost sacred," Ellmer asserted. "Knowing how to work with a piece of food to enhance its qualities is far more important than following any recipe from a book. Basic culinary principles must be thoroughly understood for successful end results," he added.

At home, Ellmer and his wife Wilhelmia do a lot of the cooking together, particularly when serving those hot Austrian pastries at a party or get-together. And in their footsteps are two daughters, Brigitte who is married and 6-year-old Denise, a first-grader who already feels at home in the kitchen. Luckier than most, she's one beginner who has a world of culinary knowledge and expertise to help her.



Duck still a favorite in America

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

For generations roast duck has been a favorite entree on American dinner tables, and today about five million of the birds are grown in this country each year, from the mallard to the Muscovy. Not to mention the thousands of canvasbacks and teal brought down by hunters each year.

The Chinese, who seem to have blazed the trail in so many culinary fields, were the first people known to have bred ducks for the table. By the first century of the Christian era, however, ducks had been domesticated in Europe.

The Romans fattened their ducks on figs and dates and served them perfumed with wine and truffles. In Europe, where they favor the bird rare, duck is still prized as one of the greatest of delicacies.

It is especially popular in France, which is famed for the ducklings raised in the Rouen area. The French baste their ducklings with orange juice, an admirable custom which I think is improved still more by lacing the sauce served on the bird with some orange-flavored cognac.

The Danes also have a way with duck and often stuff the bird with a dressing of apples and prunes that is delicious.

The duck is the most soughtafter of all game birds in this country, and hunters tell tales of the canny ways of the elusive quarry.

Most American ducks are descended from the mallard or the Muscovy varieties. The mallard dwells in the northern hemisphere and the Muscovy comes from Latin America. The latter was introduced into Europe by the Spaniards after their conquest of Peru.

New York's Long Island is the home of the largest duckraising industry in America. These white-feathered birds are said to have been descended from three ducks and a drake brought to America from China back in 1873.

Here is a recipe for duckling a l'orange with some orangeflavored cognac to dress it up.

1 duckling about 5 pounds
Salt and pepper to taste
1 pinch mace
2 ounces orange-flavored cognac
1 teaspoon cornstarch
Thin slices unpealed orange

Sprinkle body cavity of duckling with salt and pepper. Truss bird and put on rack in shallow roasting pan. Peel and quarter oranges. Slice about 1 tablespoon orange peel, put in consomme with mace and pour over duck. Roast uncovered in 325-degree oven 3 hours basting occasionally with liquid in pan. When done, remove duck to a platter, removing all but ¾ cup liquid. Add orange cognac to liquid. Blend cornstarch with little water and stir into sauce. Stir till thick and pour over duckling. Garnish with orange slices. Serves 4. Good with chilled rose wine.

New sandwich

Make sandwiches of thinly sliced ham, thinly sliced chicken or turkey breast and cheddar cheese. Dip the sandwiches in a mixture of egg and milk or light cream; fry in butter. Good served with tart cranberry sauce in a small lettuce cup.

The business of bunnies: a growing industry

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Rabbits are still multiplying like rabbits these days, and growing up to become, more often than not, food for the table.

To many people, the word rabbit conjures up visions of bunnies and Easter. But to others, rabbits mean sales for food, fur and laboratory use. To these people, rabbits are livestock.

The rabbit business is still relatively small, but interest in the animal as a commercial proposition is growing steadily. The American Rabbit Breeders Association, Inc., founded 52 years ago, has 20,000 members, up from 8,000 five years ago.

Bob Bennett, former publicity director of the association and author of a book on rabbits, estimated that there are 200,000 breeders in the nation, ranging from commercial farmers producing thousands of animals to individuals who keep a few rabbits in the backyard.

Bennett said almost 35 million pounds of rabbit meat representing about 8.5 million animals are sold annually, with wholesale prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.25 a pound, depending on whether the animal is live or dressed. The fur used in coats and as trimming on a wide variety of items is a by-product of these rabbits. So are such novelties as the "lucky" rabbit's foot.

behind more conventional meats in popularity, however. The amount of rabbit meat sold every year in this country is only about one-thousandth of one per cent of the total U.S. meat production.

Rabbit has long been a popular food in Europe and South America; the average Italian ate over five pounds of rabbit in 1973. The U.S. Department of Agriculture says rabbit meat has more protein and less calories than any beef, pork, poultry or lamb. Why, then, don't Americans eat more rabbit meat?

The problem, according to Bennett, is partly in the name.

People think of rabbits as pets and the idea of eating the meat is repulsive to many. "Other meat animals get less sympathy," Bennett said, "partly because they are not as appealing while alive and partly because their promoters have contrived a pseudonym for their carcasses: beef, pork, mutton.

Many people don't know what rabbit meat tastes like. Even the experts can't agree, saying it does — or doesn't — taste like chicken.

Not even the U.S. Department of Agriculture knows for sure how many rabbits there are in the country, mainly because, unlike beef, rabbit meat does not have to be inspected before it is sold.

Bennett estimated that about 12 million of the long-eared animals are raised in the United States every year.

In addition to the 8.5 million animals raised as food, two million are used in scientific and pharmaceutical laboratories for tests. An uncounted number are raised as pets or for show.

The rabbit breeders association says rabbits can make fine pets. But they stress that you need space for a hutch and proper food, including commercial pellets that include alfalfa and grains.

"There's more to feeding a rabbit than giving it a carrot," said Miss Tischbein, adding that contrary to what most people believe, fresh greens can be fatal to a rabbit who isn't used to them.

Milton C. Searle, executive director of the Denver-based American Humane Association, said the baby rabbit "is one of the most popular pets." He said no one knows how many pet rabbits there are, "but I would imagine 10 million or so. Very few people have just one rabbit. If they have a rabbit, they have two or three."

The giving of rabbits at Easter, however, is a problem, according to Searle. "No consideration is given as to what's going to happen afterwards. People buy them on the spur of the moment."

Within a few days, Searle said, the child gets bored with the rabbit, the parents don't want to bother with it and the animal is turned over to the local humane society and destroyed.

If you're serious about wanting a rabbit and you have the space and time, there's one other thing to remember, especially if you purchase more than one: it's true what they say about rabbits.

"Rabbits are rabbits," said Bennett. "They mate like rabbits."

'EARS LOOKING AT YOU — A floppy-eared tan, one of an estimated 12 million rabbits raised for fun or profit each year, peers inquisitively from his backyard cage. The hoppy critter, belonging to breeder Bob Bennet of Wycoff, N.J., will probably escape the fate of about 8.5 million domestic rabbits in the U.S. which will be sold for their meat and pelts.

Jury urges end to honorary sheriff badges

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An end to giving out honorary deputy sheriff's badges was urged Thursday by the San Diego County grand jury.

There are about 350 members of the Honorary Deputy Sheriffs Association whose bylaws say it is a law enforcement-oriented group pledged to help the sheriff's department financially and by lobbying.

In a letter to county supervisors, the grand jury said the organization should be abolished if Sheriff John Duffy declines to recall the badges.

No violations of the law were uncovered, the jury said.

Sardine cracker snacks packed with nutrition

The recent emphasis on nutrition has caused snacks to fare rather badly in many households. Realistically, this fate is undeserved and unnecessary. For, if you plan on eating wholesome foods, between-meal snacks can be essential for fulfilling your daily nutritional requirements.

A handful of nuts, fresh and dried fruits, crisp vegetables and canned fish, such as sardines, all offer good flavor and nutritional benefits.

Sardines in particular are an excellent choice for snacking. Besides being tasty, a snack of sardines will provide for some of the nutrients that people often don't get enough of in their regular meals. For example, sardines supply some of the nutrients found in green vegetables, fruits and grains, such as vitamin A, some B vitamins, niacin and several key minerals.

A simple midday snack of sardines, offered with crisp crackers, contribute many of the nutrients found in that glass of whole milk and hamburger patty planned for dinner. In comparison to a glass of milk, a three-ounce serving of sardines provides the same amount of calcium and phosphorus and more vitamin D. That same serving will also contribute the same amount of protein and iron as in an equal weight of cooked hamburger, yet will be lower in saturated fats.

Of course, sardines shouldn't be limited to just snacks. As fine as they are for snacking, sardines can also be the basis for wholesome everyday meals. And with such fine nutrition outlined above, it takes only a serving from the grain and vegetable food groups to build a balanced menu.

Veal dish a tasty one for dieters

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Not many Americans eat veal, probably because of the high prices being asked for this delicate meat. Our per capita consumption, I am told, is only about five pounds a year compared to 114 pounds of beef.

In Italy, veal is generally preferred to beef and it enjoys popularity in France and Germany. The Italians dress the meat up in a wide variety of ways, from vitello tonnato with a sauce of tuna fish and anchovies to parmigiana, which consists of very thin slices coated with parmesan cheese.

Veal should be braised or roasted or, if cut thin, sauteed as you do for scaloppini. Since it is very lean, it should never be broiled.

Veal is usually abundant in late winter and spring. At other times of the year, meat sold as veal may be darker in color, a sign that it comes from an older animal than the true veal calf.

America's ultimate grade of veal raised in Wisconsin from Holstein stock and marked "plume de veau" on its outer skin has a creamy white flesh and costs plenty, much more than you ordinarily pay for the standard veal roast.

Veal need not be a prohibitive luxury. If you have the time for lengthy cooking, there are some fine dishes to be made from the shin of the calf, the breast or the strips of meat cut from between the end of the ribs next to the flank.

One of the best reasonable veal dishes is ossi buchi, from the Lombard region of northern Italy. It is made from the shin of very young veal sawn into short chunks and stewed with tomato and white wine.

Weight watchers will find that veal is a good diet dish that comes in many attractive, nonfattening forms. This delicate meat serves, for example, as the base for a tasty dish known as the veal bird. It is true that the cutlet used for this entree is costly, but bear in mind that the one pound called for in the following recipe feeds four people.

2 tablespoons margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ pound chopped fresh mushrooms
10 ounces frozen chopped spinach
¼ teaspoon tabasco
½ teaspoon dried leaf basil
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 pound thin-sliced veal cutlet (8 clices)
1 cup chicken broth

Melt margarine in skillet, add onion and mushrooms and cook until tender. Add thawed spinach, tabasco, basil, salt, cheese and lemon rind. Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Place 2 tablespoons stuffing on center of each veal slice, roll and secure with toothpicks. Place veal rolls in skillet and add chicken broth. Cover and simmer about 20 minutes until veal is tender. Serves 4. Good with chilled dry white wine.

Supper idea

If the whole gang is coming for a casual evening, you'll appreciate this late night supper idea that's hot and hearty yet free from last minute fuss. Simply fill split individual rolls with your favorite sloppy Joe recipe and top the ground beef mixture with a sprinkling of shredded mozzarella cheese. Wrap each sandwich in aluminum foil and refrigerate. All that's left to do before serving is to place the sandwiches in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for approximately 30 minutes or until heated through.

America's menu variety traced back to 1776

The diverse food heritage which Americans enjoy today is due to the influence of many ethnic groups. In 1776, as now, there were vast differences in what families ate in different parts of the colonies.

In early New England, even after the Revolution, most people in rural areas raised their own food, buying only salt. The earliest grocery stores were founded for selling spices, tea, coffee and sugar.

Today, in contrast, only seven percent of the population produces food for the entire country and the average supermarket carries 8,000 items.

Salt was most important to the early colonists, as it was used not only for flavoring, but also for preserving food.

Wild game and fish were abundant in early New England. Beef was available only when cows had outlived their usefulness. Sheep were used only for wool and chickens usually only for eggs.

Leafy green vegetables were believed to have little nutritive value. Vegetables such as carrots, cabbages, parsnips and turnips were popular because they could be stored during the winter.

The New York Dutch added doughnuts, cruellers and waffles to the American diet and the Germans introduced coleslaw, knockwurst, hamburgers and frankfurters.

Pork was the main meat of the Southern colonists, although chicken and fish were also popular.

Southerner Thomas Jefferson introducerd ice cream to the White House and probably was the first to serve french fried potatoes with beef steak. Martin Van Buren complained that Jefferson used public money to raise strawberries, raspberries and cauliflower for his table.

The Creoles, a mixture of Spanish and French ancestry, were another group whose food preferances influenced American diets.

When the pioneer families began moving west, they depended on the jolting of the wagons to help raise bread dough.

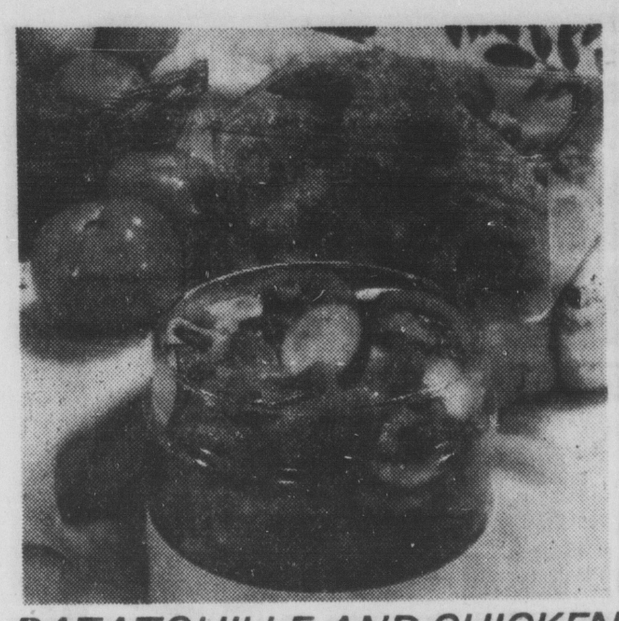
When on the trails, frontiersmen carried in their pockets a "veal glew" prepared by their wives and undoubtedly a forerunner of either dried soups or bouillion cubes.

There is little information on how and what children ate in the early years of the country, but it can be assumed that they were considered of secondary importance since writers mention their being seated "below the salt." Often, at company meals, children ate in the kitchen.

Two centuries ago, colonial children were often victims of scurvy, rickets and epidemics. Today, the major nutritional disorders of children are obesity, dental caries and iron deficiency anemia.

To prevent nutritional disorders in both children and adults, the California Dietetic Association recommends daily selections from each of the Four Food Groups (milk, meat, vegetables and fruits and breads and cereals).

That's two servings from the milk group (children need three and teenagers four), two servings from the meat group, four from the vegetables and fruits group and four from the breads and cereals group.



RATATOUILLE AND CHICKEN

A fresh approach to picnic eating

Somebody shouts, let's go on a picnic, and everyone within hearing distance immediately seconds the notion. Alas, this jubilant reaction is sometimes followed by memories of soggy sandwiches and lukewarm drinks. A picnic, says the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, can be as delicious as the meals you serve at home when you include convenient, nutritious and flavorful fresh fruits and vegetables in the picnic basket.

For example, an excellent picnicker's choice is the famous medley of vegetables called Ratatouille, a French country dish. Chilled Ratatouille, made with summer vegetables — eggplant, zucchini, green pepper, tomatoes, seasoned with herbs, garlic and onion — can be prepared and refrigerated the day before the picnic. The garden fresh flavor goes well with grilled meats, sandwiches or fried chicken. A nutritious dish, it is suitable for an outdoor excursion where physical activity is often at peak For instance, green peppers and tomatoes are high in vitamin C.

The refreshing, juicy tomato has a wide range of practical, mouth-watering picnic uses. You can slice tomatoes onto sandwiches or grilled meats, and toss them in green salads. Or pass them around with a little salt to eat like a fruit.

Select firm, unblemished tomatoes that are heavy for their size. And remember, for maximum flavor, the tomato should be eaten when it's red ripe.. Get into the habit of purchasing tomatoes several days before you use them, and place them atop the refrigerator in a brown bag three to five days or until they are fully ripe.

For another fresh idea to improve picnics, take along a choice of luscious, fresh fruits. They're colorful and thirst-quenching. Include them in your picnic meal plan as snacks and desserts. Neither plates nor utensils are needed, and there's no preparation at home. Peaches, plums, nectarines, dark sweet cherries and watermelon, to name a few, are in good supply during these picnicking months and are often attractive buys. Get a good selection and enjoy the picnicker's compliments on your choice.

PICNIC PACKING TIPS

PICNIC CHICKEN — Bake in 325-degree oven for 1 hour, or until chicken is tender. Cool slightly, after cooking, put in a shallow, lightweight covered container and refrigerate overnight. Pack in insulated picnic chest just before leaving.

FRESH ROLLS OR FRENCH BREAD — Pack an assortment of rolls or a loaf of French bread in a picnic basket that does not carry moist or wet foods. Place at top of basket to prevent being crushed. Freeze desired amount of butter or margarine in a small covered container, then pack in insulated picnic chest last minute.

FRESH FRUITS FOR SNACKS AND DESSERTS — Most fresh fruits do not require refrigeration. However, if you prefer them cold, refrigerate overnight and pack in insulated chest just before leaving for picnic. Pack the larger fruits and those with rigid surfaces, such as melons, at the bottom of picnic basket. Pack softer fruits like peaches, plums, nectarines, grapes, cherries, etc. in bags and place them at the top of the picnic basket to prevent crushing. All berries should be kept cold. Leave them in store-bought containers and pack securely at top of insulated chest where they will not be crushed or jostled.

PICNIC DRINKS — Fill plastic milk jugs or other plastic containers that have tight-fitting lids with fresh lemonade or fresh orange juice, leaving about an inch of air-space at the top. Place jug in freezer overnight, pack in insulated chest the last minute. Pour off the juice as it melts for an ice cold fresh fruit drink. Large block of ice helps keep insulated chest cold. You can also tote picnic drinks in a vacuum jug.

CHILLED PICNIC RATATOUILLE

- ¼ cup salad or olive oil
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 onion, sliced
- 1 green pepper, seeded and cut in strips
- 3 medium unpared zucchini, cut into ¼-inch slices
- 1 medium eggplant, pared and cut in cubes
- 2 teaspoons dried leaf basil
- 1 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tomatoes, peeled and cut in wedges

Heat oil in large skillet, add garlic, onion, green pepper and zucchini; cook about 3 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring frequently. Add eggplant, basil, oregano, salt and pepper; cover and cook over medium heat 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add tomato wedges, cover and cook 5 minutes longer or just until tomatoes are heated. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Pack in container with a tight lid to carry to picnic. Makes: 6 servings.

Note: To remove skins from tomatoes, plunge tomatoes one at a time in saucepan of boiling water for about 30 seconds. Skins will slip off easily.

1 egg, slightly beaten
Two 16-ounce cans red tart pitted cherries (water pack)

A good glaze

Chinese duck sauce, usually served along with hot mustard, with Chinese egg rolls, makes a good glaze for baked ham or smoked boneless pork shoulder. You can thin the sauce with a little orange juice and add a little prepared mustard, if you like, when you are using it as a glaze.

Cost-saving meal features chicken with pineapple

All of us know how costly it can be to entertain friends, particularly if they are coming for dinner.

To save on your budget and still serve a meal that will delight your guests, consider "Sesame Baked Chicken," and inexpensive springtime dish, which features a very distinctive pineapple sauce.

Your family also will enjoy this classic recipe. The method is quick and easy.

Chicken halves are crusted with a sesame seed coating, then oven-baked. Turn after the first 20 minutes, continue baking until almost tender. At this point, push the chicken to one end of the pan. Add canned pineapple chunks along with some of the pineapple syrup, a little lemon juice, mustard and ginger. Continue baking about 15 minutes longer.

To serve, cut the chicken pieces in halves and surround each portion with the golden pineapple sauce.

SESAME BAKED CHICKEN

- 1 (1 pound 4 ounce) can pineapple chunks
- 1 frying chicken (about 2½ pounds), cut in halves
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 large egg
- 1 tablespoon water
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons sesame seeds
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1¼ teaspoons salt
- 1/3 cup pineapple syrup
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon prepared mustard
- ¼ teaspoon powdered ginger

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. Rinse chicken, and pat dry. Place butter in shallow baking pan (9 x 13 x 2 inches) and set in oven to melt slowly as oven heats to moderate (350 degrees). Beat egg with 1 tablespoon water in a small bowl. Combine flour, sesame seeds, paprika and 1 teaspoon salt on a sheet of waxed paper. Brush chicken with egg mixture, and roll in flour-sesame mixture to coat thoroughly on all sides. Place skin sides down in pan with melted butter. Bake 20 minutes. Turn carefully, and bake 20 minutes longer. Combine drained pineapple chunks, 1/3 cup reserved pineapple syrup, lemon juice, mustard, ginger and remaining ¼ teaspoon salt. Push chicken to one end of pan, and drain off any fat. Add pineapple mixture to pan, and return to oven for 10 to 15 minutes, or until chicken tests done. To serve, remove chicken to serving platter, and pour sauce around it. Cut each chicken piece in halves to serve. Makes 4 servings.

SESAME BAKED CHICKEN

Jewish dessert to top off meal

No meal is quite complete without a tasty ending. Just as a good letter needs an appropriate complimentary close and just as a good novel needs an exciting climax, a good meal needs the right dessert.

For many, dessert is the best part of the meal. This peach noodle kugel recipe represents an unusual taste treat with which to conclude a meal.

A baked pudding, this dessert of Jewish origin is served with a streusel topping. This is one of those Old World recipes that have flourished in this country with the growing interest in ethnic cooking.

PEACH, NOODLE KUGEL

- 1 8-ounce package wide egg noodles
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 eggs
- 4 cup sugar
- 1½ tablespoons grated lemon peel
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- ½ cup dark seedless raisins
- 1 16-ounce can sliced cling peaches
- Streusel topping (below)

About two hours before serving, preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 1½-quart rectangular, heat-resistant glass baking dish. Prepare noodles as label directs; drain. In large mixing bowl, toss hot noodles with butter or marmarine. In medium bowl, with wire whisk or fork, beat eggs, sugar, lemon peel and salt until well mixed; stir in milk and raisins. Stir mixture into noodles; pour into dish. Bake 30 minutes. Remove dish from oven; arrange peach slices on top and sprinkle evenly with streusel topping. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes or more. Let stand about 30 minutes for easier cutting and serving. Serve warm. Makes 10 servings.

Streusel topping is made in small saucepan over low heat. Melt two tablespoons butter or margarine; stir in ¼ cup dried bread crumbs and ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Cutting fudge

It's easiest to cut fudge into neat uniform pieces when it is removed from the pan. If you want to do this, line the pan with foil with lap-over edges, then lightly butter the foil. When the fudge is cold, it can be lifted out of the pan onto a cutting board.

Flavor added

Grated orange rind or slivered orange peel (yellow part only) gives beef or lamb stew an interesting flavor.

To enjoy the weekend, make Friday count

A weekend to relax! It's become the American mini-dream!

We don't have the magic formula but we do have the common sense approach.

Make Friday count. Plan, shop and prepare so that at least the weekend meals come off handsomely without destroying the cook's chance for some relaxation.

While weekend plans are often spur-of-the-moment and subject to quick change, a skeletal meal plan, to be given a casual or a fancy fillip as the occasion demands, will ease the mind of the cook.

Start with a couple of chickens. Simmer them on Friday, then refrigerate the diced cooked meat for use in sandwiches, with noodles, in casseroles, or for a fancy touch in crepes. The latter might be for a company luncheon, a family dinner or Sunday morning brunch.

The crepes, of course, have been prepared days earlier and kept fresh in the refrigerator or have been stored in the freezer.

Baked ham is another good week-end staple. Try it with our mild, yet distinctively flavored, Mustard Sauce which is better the second day when the flavors have mellowed together. Securely covered, the sauce will refrigerate for a week or more.

For dessert, surprise the family with cheesecake, made in minutes, then refrigerated to "ripen." Be sure to wrap tightly in plastic wrap to avoid picking up other flavors. This is particularly important with delicate flavors, as in the cheesecake, which are very vulnerable to "absorbing" other flavors. Serve the cheesecake plain or topped with canned fruit pie filling or your choice of frozen fruits.

CHICKEN IN CREPES

Crepes: Prepare according to manufacturer's directions for crepe pan. Separate the stacked crepes with a single sheet of paper towel if they tend to stick together. Wrap securely in plastic wrap to prevent drying. Store in refrigerator or freezer.

Chicken Filling:
- 3 cups diced cooked chicken
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- ½ cup cream
- 1 can (5 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
- ¼ cup sliced green olives, optional

Stir ingredients together and heat gently, just until hot. When ready to serve, spoon into center third of crepes, cover with sides. Top with sauce. Serve immediately.

Sauce:
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- ½ cup white wine
- ½ cup shredded Swiss cheese

Mix and heat gently just to serving temperature.

CHEESE CAKE

Crust:
- 1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
- 1/3 cup brown sugar, packed
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/3 cup melted butter or margarine

Mix all ingredients until crumbly; press onto bottom and sides of buttered 8x8x2-inch pan (cover about 1½ inches on sides).

Filling:
- 12 oz. cream cheese
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 carton (16 oz.) dairy sour cream

Beat together cream cheese, eggs, sugar, vanilla and 1 cup of the sour cream until very creamy. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. Spread the remaining cup of sour cream over top of hot cheesecake. Cool.

For optimum flavor, cover the cooled cheesecake securely with plastic wrap, refrigerate for one to several days to allow flavors to mellow.

MUSTARD SAUCE
- 1 cup light cream or evaporated milk
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons dry mustard
- 1 tablespoon flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
- ¼ cup hot vinegar

In a heavy saucepan or double boiler, heat ¾ cup of the cream. Add sugar. Stir remaining ¼ cup cream into a mixture of the mustard, flour and salt. Stir into hot mixture and simmer, stirring, until thickened.

Add a little of the hot mixture to the egg yolk, stirring constantly, then stir into remaining mixture. Simmer, stirring, until thickened and smooth. Gradually stir in vinegar. Serve warm or chilled with ham. Flavor mellows and improves if refrigerated, tightly covered with plastic wrap, for a day or so before serving.

Meat counter values waiting for consumers

Consumers can expect continued low retail beef prices in the immediate future and reductions in pork prices later this year, a leading executive of the country's meat industry said.

David H. Stroud of Chicago, president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, said beef is expected to remain in good supply for the next few months and prices will remain attractive to consumers.

He also said that increases in hog production will become apparent in the market by late summer, accompanied by declining prices for pork.

"Beef prices broke sharply in late February and have continued at very low levels," said Stroud. "Although cattle producers and feeders are once again in a serious economic situation, consumers have an excellent opportunity to stock up on beef."

The meat industry executive said the drop in beef prices was caused by the large marketing of fed cattle. With a good crop of feed grains in 1975, cattle feeders placed more animals on feed. They started coming to market in large numbers early in 1976. He predicted that supplies would decline slightly toward the middle of the year, causing prices to stabilize or perhaps increase slightly.

Stroud cited recent government figures indicating an approximate 12 per cent increase in hog production for the period December 1975-May 1976 as the basis for his prediction that pork prices would drop.

"The increase in hog production reported by the most recent U.S. Department of Agriculture bulletins, marks the first time in several years hog producers have been optimistic," said Stroud.

Stroud said the bottom has fallen out of the market for beef cattle and that the outlook for hog and sheep producers is "uncertain."

"After two years on an economic roller coaster, the cattle sector especially finds itself struggling once again to get back up to the break-even point," Stroud said. "It's expected that supplies will return to a more even flow by early summer. That, of course, is small solace to those who are taking a beating in the marketplace now. But given good weather, and another year of good feed crop production, there is hope for a return to orderly production and marketing and a resultant stabilization in prices."

STRAWBERRY ALMOND FLOAT

Keep it simple with strawberries

Strawberries are elegant and delicious no matter how you serve them. Simply is the best way.

This is the time of year to really enjoy them in their natural state; served for dipping in sour cream and mounds of brown or powdered sugar or for dunking into chocolate fondue.

Thanks to Mother Nature's gift of sandy loam soil and mild California climate this year, strawberries will be available from early April till late fall. But right now is the peak of fresh California strawberry season and that means the supply will be especially plentiful in local markets.

For the homemaker who knows how fast these tempting red beauties disappear, it's a great time to be extra generous with strawberry purchases. Buy enough for that scrumptuous dessert you are planning but don't forget to allow for strawberry snitchers. Some people just can't wait to bite into that fresh-as-springtime flavor.

When choosing strawberries in your market be sure to shop for fully ripened, bright red strawberries. They do not ripen appreciably after being picked. Choose berries that are plump and well rounded, with a natural shine, rich red color and bright green, fresh looking caps. Strawberries are delicate and require the gentlest of handling. Never wash strawberries or remove caps until just before using. Washing removes the natural protective outer layer. The caps protect the strawberries and help preserve flavor, texture and nutrients.

Strawberry simplicity is at its best in this Strawberry Almond Float, an orientally inspired recipe that really shows how strawberries can be used to show off their fresh, delicate flavor and texture.

A simple but elegant dish, this dessert combines a lightly almond flavored gelatin with slightly sweetened strawberries and crunchy sliced almonds.

STRAWBERRY ALMOND FLOAT
- 2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup sugar
- 3½ cups milk
- 2 teaspoons almond extract
- 1 pint fresh strawberries, sliced
- Sliced almonds

In saucepan, combine gelatin and sugar. Stir in 1 cup of the milk. Heat, just until gelatin dissolves. Remove from heat. Add remaining milk and almond extract. Pour into 1 quart mold. Chill until firm. Meanwhile sweeten sliced berries to taste. At serving time, invert mold onto dessert plate. Unmold. Surround with berries. Sprinkle with sliced almonds. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: Can be molded in 6 custard cups, as well, for individual servings.

A salmon loaf may fill the bill

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I've been using your recipe for salmon patties and my husband, likes them so much, I'm wondering whether you have a recipe for salmon loaf. Perhaps I missed it. — PRACTICAL.

DEAR PRACTICAL: Here's a new recipe for a salmon loaf that I've just tried. It's different from the usual recipe of this sort because it calls for grated Swiss cheese. Two of my sisters tasted it and liked it very much. I'm hoping your husband will approve. — C.B.

SWISS SALMON LOAF
- One 15½-ounce or two 7¾-ounce cans salmon
- Milk
- 1 egg
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 cup grated (medium-fine) Swiss cheese, not packed down
- ¼ cup finely chopped celery
- ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ cup fine dry breadcrumbs
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Shape a sheet of regular-weight foil around the outside of an 8 by 4 by 3 inch loaf pan, having the foil extend 1 inch over the edges. Remove foil and fit it into the pan, bending the extended edges over the rim so they are on the outside of the pan. Butter foil. The foil is used so the loaf can be lifted out of the pan; it can not be turned out in the usual fashion.

Drain and flake salmon without removing skin and bones; add enough milk to the salmon liquid to make ¾ cup. Mix salmon and the liquid with all the remaining ingredients except the dry breadcrumbs and the butter. Turn into the prepared pan. Mix the dry breadcrumbs and the butter and sprinkle over top. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until lightly browned on top — 50 minutes. Let stand for 10 minutes. Turn up the edges of the foil and lift loaf out of pan to heated serving platter. Cut away foil from around sides; do not try to remove it from the bottom. Cut loaf and lift slices from foil. Makes 6 servings.

KITCHEN SINK POT PIE

Prepare pastry (1 package — 10 ounce — pie crust mix) as package directs, except before adding liquid, stir in ½ cup shredded cheddar cheese. Roll pastry into a 9-inch circle; line a 2-quart casserole or deep dish pie pan. Save enough pastry for strips. Combine two cans of wide-ruffled canned pasta and meatballs, 1 can (8 ounce) whole potatoes (drained and diced), 1 can (8 ounces) diced carrots (drained), 1 can (12 ounce) luncheon meat (diced), ¼ cup chopped green pepper and ¼ cup chopped onion. Pour mixture into casserole. Place pastry strips on top. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Serves 4 to 6.

New England Temptation recreated

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

Like many other advocates of cooking from scratch, we also appreciate quick-to-make dishes from prepared products that are really good. When we find one of the latter, we're eager to pass it along.

Our latest find is a baked dish made with a package of scalloped potatoes and a can of minced clams plus ingredients likely to be in the refrigerator. It's fine to serve as a main dish with a salad, followed by dessert, for Saturday lunch or Sunday night supper. Or it may be used as a buffet dish with turkey or ham. It's clam flavor is delicate.

We call the dish New England Temptation because the friend who created it modeled its flavor after creamy New England clam chowder and its form after a famous Swedish offering called Jansson's Temptation in which sliced potatoes are baked with cream, butter, onion rings and anchovies. The antecedents of New England Temptation are honorable — and so is the dish.

NEW ENGLAND TEMPTATION

- 1/3 cup thin strips lean salt pork (each about ½-inch wide and 1-inch long), rinsed and dried
- 5⅝ ounce package scalloped potatoes
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 8-ounce can minced clams
- Boiling water
- 2/3 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- Fresh ground pepper to taste

In a small skillet over low heat cook the salt pork until golden.

Into a 1½-quart oblong glass baking dish (10 by 6 by 1¾ inches) or similar utensil pour the potatoes from the package. Dot with the butter. Sprinkle with seasoning mix from potato package.

Drain liquid from clams into a 1-quart measure; add enough boiling water to make 2 and 1/3 cups; stir in milk. Pour over potatoes and stir to mix. Add drained clams, parsley and pepper; stir to distribute clams. Top with salt pork strips.

Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 325-degree oven until potatoes are tender and their edges plus those of the salt pork strips are lightly browned — about 1 hour.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

A dessert to go along with turkey

Celebrate spring with elegant menus featuring turkey. Turkey is more than holiday fare and an ever-popular entree to offer your family and guests.

Plan on 1½ pounds per person for ready to stuff birds. This allows general servings with extra for snacks and other turkey dishes.

For festive springtime fare, serve roasted turkey with fresh asparagus salad and Lime-Fluff Dessert.

To prepare the asparagus salad, use fresh or frozen spears. Precook and chill the asparagus. At serving time arrange the asparagus on a large serving platter with cherry tomatoes. Heat Italian salad dressing and pour over the salad before serving. Crisp crumbled bacon may be added, if desired.

Lime-Fluff Dessert is an easy to prepare dish which can be made in advance. Lime gelatin is added to whipped evaporated milk creating a cool; refreshing dessert, perfect for springtime and an elegant turkey dinner.

Lime-Fluff Dessert
Yield: 10 — 12 servings

- 13 ½ ounce can evaporated milk, chilled
- 3 ounce package lime gelatin
- ½ cup boiling water
- ½ cup sugar
- Juice of 1 lime

Whip evaporated milk until stiff. Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add sugar to gelatin. Gradually fold gelatin mixture into whipped milk. Add lime juice. (Green food coloring may be added for brighter color.) Pour into a 13 by 9 by 2-inch pan or into a 2-quart souffle dish. Garnish with fresh lime slices and strawberries.

Car radio may not be same

MIAMI (AP) — That new General Motors' car you bought may not have the American-built GM radio you thought it came equipped with. It's a good chance you've paid top dollar for a cheaper, foreign imitation.

Hundreds of GM dealers, primarily Chevrolet outlets, are making extra profits by installing Japanese radios for new car buyers who think they are getting radios by Delco, a GM division. The customer pays the same retail price and apparently gets as good a product, but the Japanese radios cost the dealers only half as much as Delco's.

The problem is so widespread that Delco has placed advertisements in national magazines advising purchasers to "Tell your dealer 'Delco.' Don't settle for a look-alike radio in your new GM car."

John Crawford, general sales manager for Delco Electronics in Kokomo, Ind., said the firm also has started putting a standard Delco-GM trademark on its radios to help consumers identify them.

Spokesmen for Ford and Chrysler said they knew of no such situation in their firms. An American Motors spokesman said a preliminary check showed his company "may have a few isolated instances of this."

Moose learn

At Jackson Hole, Wyo., a rancher feeds his horses at 10 o'clock each morning. Knowing this, the horses line up at that hour to trot single-file into the corral gate. Invariably, at the end of the line are three or four moose who have learned of the daily handout, the National Geographic Society reports.

Her Refrigerator Rolls are still a favorite

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

When a friend of mine, Nancy Bates, was 10 years old her mother taught her how to bake Refrigerator Rolls. Now in her early 30s, Nancy is still baking them from the same fine Southern recipe.

But two changes. Nancy remembers, as a child, putting cooked potato through a ricer to have the mashed potato called for. These days she uses instant mashed potato granules as a time-saver. She also uses salad oil instead of shortening to speed things.

When I tasted the rolls at Nancy's house I couldn't stop eating them — they're that good. When I looked around, I saw Nancy's other guests doing exactly the same thing — downing them by the handful!

BETTY BATES' REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

- ¾ cup water
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1¼ cups milk
- ¼ cup (½ of a 5-serving envelope) instant mashed potato granules
- 1 package active dry yeast
- ½ cup warm water
- 2/3 rds cup oil
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 6½ cups (about) flour, stir to aerate before measuring
- 2 eggs

In a small saucepan over medium heat bring to a boil the water, butter and ¼ cup of the milk; add potato granules, whipping briskly with a fork. There should be about 1 cup. Cool to room temperature. Scald the remaining milk. Dissolve the yeast in the warm water. Into a large mixing bowl turn the potatoes, oil, sugar and salt; pour in scalded milk; stir to dissolve sugar. Add 2 cups of the flour; beat well. Thoroughly beat in the eggs, one at a time. Stir in the yeast. Stir in enough of the remaining flour to make a moderately stiff dough. On a well-floured surface, knead until smooth and satiny (about 5 minutes), sprinkling on a little flour if necessary. Shape into a ball; place in a large greased bowl; turn to grease top. Cover; refrigerate several hours or overnight. Punch down; let rest 5 minutes. Cut dough into quarters. Roll out to about ¼-inch thickness. Cut with floured 2¾-inch round cutter. Place, about 1-inch apart, on greased cookie sheets. Treat remaining portions of dough the same way. (Dough may be covered and refrigerated up to 5 days and baked as needed.) Cover and let rise in a warm draftfree place until doubled — about 1 hour. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until golden-brown — 8 to 10 minutes. (For browner rolls, brush with melted butter just before baking.) Serve at once with butter. Makes about 5 dozen.

A real Italian lasagne

This meatless Almond-Spinach Lasagne provides substantial protein, is low in saturated fat and is relatively low in calories, but does not strike a severe blow to a food budget.

Besides all this, it's good! The flavors are definitely Italian! What could be better than a little garlic, sweet basil and marinara sauce combined with ricotta and Parmesan cheeses, spinach, and crunchy roasted diced almonds layered with pasta? Although easy to prepare, it does take some time to assemble. We suggest making it several days before serving and refrigerating. Why not make two while you're at it and freeze one for a later date?

ALMOND-SPINACH LASAGNE

- 1 package (10 oz.) lasagne
- 1 cup chopped cooked or frozen spinach
- 1 cup ricotta or low-fat cottage cheese
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 clove garlic
- ½ teaspoon sweet basil
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- ¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons diced almonds, roasted
- ½ teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 2 cups meatless spaghetti or marinara sauce

Cook lasagne according to package directions. Meanwhile, combine spinach, ricotta and ¼ cup of the Parmesan cheese. Crush garlic and basil and stir into spinach mixture along with parsley, ¼ cup almonds and seasoned salt. Heat oil; add onions and green pepper; cook until crisp-tender; combine with spaghetti sauce.

Lightly oil a 7 x 11-inch baking dish. Arrange a layer of cooked lasagne in dish; top with about ¼ of the spinach mixture. Repeat, making 4 layers. Top with spaghetti sauce, Sprinkle with remaining Parmesan cheese and almonds. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until very hot and bubbling. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Ducklings duck-naped by chicken

SAN DIEGO (AP) — June Goldsmith of the Mt. Helix area has a Rhode Island Red hen which is the proud mother of three mallard ducklings.

But Mrs. Goldsmith says it's a pure case of kidnaping. Or rather, duck-naping.

She says her hen took over the duckling nest two weeks ago, driving off the mother duck that laid the eggs.

"Everytime the duck would try to go back to the nest, the chicken would chase her off," she said.

But the misguided hen is taking fine care of her rudely adopted brood, said Mrs. Goldsmith.

"She's just a hen with a strong mother instinct," she said.

Banana Fudge can be sensational

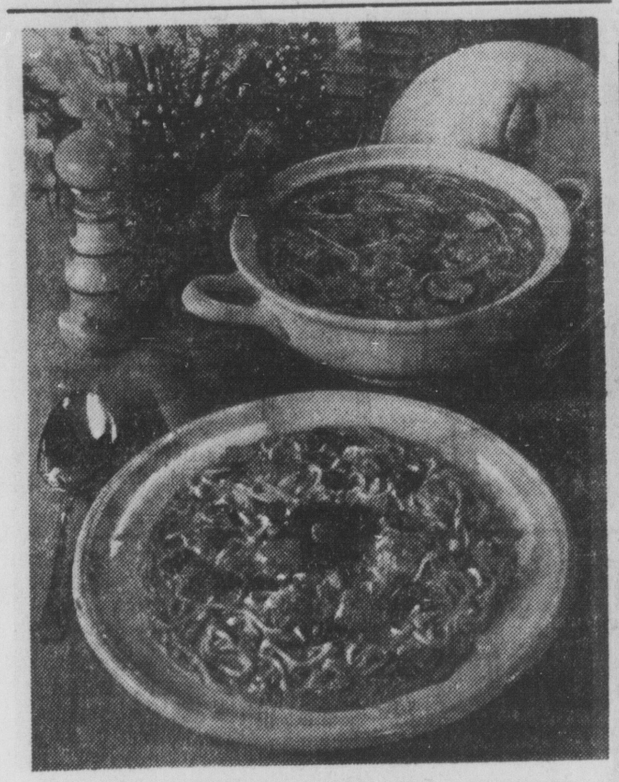
By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

Once in a while a cook creates a marvelous new recipe, but it has a short life. Somehow it doesn't make the mainstream of cookbookdom. That's what happened to a recipe for Banana Fudge; to the best of our knowledge it was developed in the '30s or '40s, but hasn't been widely heard of since. Now another cook has come up with another version, this creamier than the original formula, and we're happy to pass it along. From the point of economy alone, this candy is worth making; at current New York City prices, it costs only about $1.65 for three pounds and can double for a good many desserts.

NEW BANANA FUDGE

3½ cups sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup (8-ounce container light cream
¼ cup butter or margarine
3 tablespoons light corn syrup
1 cup mashed ripe banana (3 medium)
1 tablespoon vanilla
½ cup chopped (medium-fine) walnuts

Into a heavy 2½-quart saucepan turn the sugar, salt, cream, butter, corn syrup and banana. Over moderate heat, stirring constantly, bring to a boil; over low heat continue boiling, still stirring constantly, until mixture reaches 238 degrees on a candy thermometer or a half-teaspoon of it, dropped into a cup of very cold water, forms a soft ball when it is removed to the palm of the hand. Cool without stirring until the temperature on the candy thermometer drops to 110 degrees or the bottom of the pan feels warm to the touch. Add vanilla and nuts and beat until candy becomes thick and begins to lose its gloss. Turn into a buttered 8 by 8 by 2 inch cake pan. Let stand until firm; cut into 1-inch squares. Makes 64, about 3 pounds.



SOUPE DE SPAGHETTI

Saute ½ cup sliced carrots, ½ cup sliced onion and 1 cup sliced zucchini in 2 tablespoons cooking oil until lightly browned. Reduce heat; cover and cook for 5 minutes. Add ½ cup water and ½ can (40 ounce) spaghetti and meatballs. Stir; cover. Simmer for 10 to 15 minutes. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese on top before serving. Serves 4.

This Arizona hot sauce still lives

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

Before our Jane Street community garden in New York City was so willfully devastated, one of the most dedicated workers in it was Annette Gilpin, a young woman who grew up in Arizona. Although Annette helped tend the trees, shrubs, flowers and herbs in the garden she took particular care of some stray green peppers in the herb bed. No one could understand her devotion to them!

Then when harvest time came she carried off a few of the peppers in triumph and announced that she was going to use them in a specialty of her Grandfather Barney's so we could taste "a real Arizona hot sauce." Although Annette's sauce is different from her grandfather's — all the vegetables in his were fresh from his garden — it was voted super by its recipients. Her version is for all seasons and especially for urbanites.

Because Annette leads a busy life as director of volunteer workers at a large hospital, she likes to entertain informally. She usually has her sauce on hand to use the following ways:

1. As a topping for hamburgers on toasted English muffins. With the addition of the muffins and the sauce, the hamburgers are special.
2. As a topping for eggs scrambled with cheese.
3. As a topping for grilled cheese sandwiches.
4. As a stuffing for tacos along with beef, cheese and shredded lettuce.
5. As a stuffing for tomatoes and eggplant topped with cheese and baked.
6. As an addition to pinto beans.

ANNETTE GILPIN'S ALL-PURPOSE HOT SAUCE

1 tablespoon corn oil
1 large onion, chopped medium-fine (1 cup)
½ cup chopped (medium-fine) green pepper
Garlic clove, minced
7-ounce can whole-kernel corn, drained
16-ounce can tomatoes, drained and chopped
4-ounce can roasted peeled green chilies, undrained, chopped fine with seeds included
½ cup small pitted ripe olives, if desired
3 tablespoons hot chili sauce, from an 8-ounce jar
1 tablespoon chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper

In a 10-inch skillet heat the oil. Add onion, green pepper and garlic; cook gently, stirring often, until vegetables are wilted. Add remaining ingredients and heat, stirring several times. Serve hot or cold. Store in refrigerator. Makes about 1½ pints.

Green peppers

Some eaters like their green peppers peeled, cooked and marinated with oil and vinegar. Buy green peppers without any curvatures and then you can peel them with a swivel-blade vegetable peeler; it will remove only the thin outer skin.

Homemade mint tea can be a great refresher

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press
Food Editor

We've tasted all kinds of herbal teas. How can you avoid it? They're so "in" that friends bring them as gifts; hostesses serve them at the drop of a teabag.

But it wasn't until we tasted a simple homemade formula for Mint Tea that we were fired to offer you a recipe for a herbal infusion. If you try it we hope you, too, are enthusiastic about it. In cool weather, Mint Tea is delightful served hot. In warm weather, Mint Tea is wonderfully refreshing served iced.

MINT TEA

1 tablespoon whole cloves
1 cup loose tea leaves
½ cup dried mint flakes
2 tablespoons dried diced orange peel

Wrap cloves in a piece of clean old sheeting or tripled cheesecloth. Pound with a mallet or hammer until finely crumbled. In a mixing bowl stir together the crumbled cloves, tea, mint flakes and orange peel. Store in a container with a tight fitting cover.

To brew, use one rounded teaspoonful of the Mint Tea mixture for each teacup of freshly boiled water used. Use boiling water to rinse out the inside of the teapot so it will be warm. Add the Mint Tea to the teapot; pour the boiling water over it; stir. Cover and let stand for about three minutes. Pour through a tea strainer into teacups. Pass sugar for those who wish it. To use for iced tea, pack tall glasses with ice; pour the hot Mint Tea over the ice; serve with spoon-sippers and pass finely granulated sugar for those who wish it.

Note: The dried orange peel clled for is widely available because many herb and spice companies pack it.

MORE ABOUT MINT

The British photographer and mountainer Tom Stobart, in his fascinating book titled "Herbs, Spices and Flavorings," (McGraw-Hill), writes that mint is commonly used in Spain and Italy. It is his belief, however, that "mint does not combine well with garlic." Thus he does not recommend it for Spanish and Italian dishes in which garlic is used.

Stobart goes on to say that "In all the countries of the Levant and Middle East, mint is again a common flavoring, as it also is in India."

We have always met up with mint tea served "as is" or with lemon or lime or-and sugar. Stobart writes that in India mint tea is served hot, sweet and milk-flavored.

Forget bread's ingredients

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (AP) — The color of bread and its list of ingredients are not indications of whether it's nutritious, the Consumers Union says.

The Consumers Union, which publishes its findings in the monthly Consumer reports magazine, said in a statement recently that test results of 33 brands of bread found no correlation between the ingredients in the breads and the way they performed nutritionally.

A possible explanation, according to the union, is that the body may be able to utilize the nutrients in some breads more efficiently than those in others.

Eight of the breads tested proved nutritionally deficient for the test animals that ate them, the statement said. Laboratory rats were kept on a diet confined to bread while scientists studied their growth and health. The union said the nutritional needs of its test rats were similar to those of humans.

The statement also said none of the breads tested was completely free of foreign matter and some were very dirty. A Consumers Union spokesman said the contaminants found included insects, insect fragments and rodent hairs.

The magazine said fortifying or enriching breads doesn't necessarily make them superior, nor does any particular brand name identify a bread as consistently superior.

Master Charge adds 50 cents

NEW YORK (AP) — Customers who immediately pay their bills under Citibank's Master Charge plan will have to pay a 50-cent monthly service fee.

And industry spokesmen said recently that the practice probably will spread to other banks across the country.

Until now, most of the millions of Americans who used bank charge cards paid no membership fee. The only exceptions were in a few areas where interest rates are lower than normal and an annual fee is charged to make up the difference. Citibank, the nation's second largest bank, is the first bank in the country to impose this kind of monthly charge.

The Citicorp Credit Services division of Citibank, formerly known as First National City Bank, said Tuesday the charge will be applied only during months when the cardholder makes a purchase and pays the full balance within the billing period. No charge will be imposed during months when the card is not used or when payment is deferred. The maximum annual fee would be $6.

Two literary prizes given

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bancroft Prizes for 1976 have been awarded by Columbia University to historian David Brion Davis and American literature scholar R.W.B. Lewis, both of Yale University.

The awards of $4,000 each recognize "books of exceptional merit and distinction in American history, diplomacy, and the international relations of the United States" which were published in 1975.

Davis' winning book was "The Problem of Slavery in the Age of Revolution, 1770-1823" (Cornell University Press) and Lewis' was "Edith Wharton: A Biography" (Harper & Row.)

Ryan not satisfied

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The only person unhappy with the way Nolan Ryan is pitching right now is Nolan Ryan.

After overpowering Baltimore, 5-0, striking out 12 and allowing three scattered singles in the process, you would think the Halos' meal ticket would be wildly joyous. He has given up just eight hits in 25 innings.

Remember, Ryan (2-1) had arm problems last year and surgery in the off season. But was he satisfied Tuesday night?

"I had control problems and didn't start hitting the corners consistently until the second called strike three (in the third inning)," Ryan told writers after the game.

"I wasn't nearly as pleased with my stuff tonight as I was at Kansas City (in a 5-1, four-hit win)," Ryan continued. "I liked my stuff the last two innings at Kansas City. Tonight the only time I felt in the groove was in the fifth inning."

The flame thrower allowed one of the three Oriole hits in the fifth and struck out two. The first hit was in the third inning on a ground ball that Jerry Remy ordinarily would have handled.

It was by Mark Belanger, who also singled in the eighth. Brooks Robinson, batting .071 at the time, got the fifth-inning hit.

The 12 strikeouts marked the 58th time as an Angel and 72nd overall that the slender Texan had struck out 10 or more batters in a game.

As he always was before the arm problems, Ryan was stronger at the finish. He fanned six in the last three innings and struck out the side in the eighth.

How does the slim (6-2, 180 pounds) Texan account for his strong finishes?

"I'm a power pitcher," he replied matter of factly, "and I take good care of my legs. The type of delivery that I have doesn't put much strain on my arm."

Ryan threw 144 pitches Tuesday, a modest (for him) number. Of those 89 were strikes and 57 were balls.

He struck out every Baltimore player but first baseman Tony Muser at least once. Six of his strikeouts came on called third strikes.

While Ryan was dominating the Orioles, the Angels put together a 10-hit attack, three by Dave Chalk, that produced a single run in the third and a pair of two-run clusters in the sixth and seventh innings.

Chalk, who raised his average to .395, opened the third with a single, advanced to second on Ed Herrman's sacrifice and scored on Remy's sacrifice fly.

Remy, who has snapped out of his slump, opened the sixth with a single and then stole second and third (with a headfirst slide) while Bobby Bonds was striking out. With the infield drawn in looking for a play at the plate, Bill Melton slapped a single up the middle for one run.

Bruce Bochte, who is on his way to a record for "short doubles," punched a two-base hit down the third base line by Robinson. Joe Lahoud was intentionally walked. Chalk brought in Melton with a sacrifice fly. But Herrmann fanned.

In the seventh with two out, Remy and Bonds singled and both scored on Melton's double down the third base line. It gives the big slugger 10 RBIs for the season.

Melton was very happy with his work. Remy (two hits, two stolen bases and two runs scored) was very happy. Chalk was happy (although he was twice thrown out at second trying to stretch two of his hits into doubles).

Manager Dick Williams was happy. Gene Autry was very, very happy.

And Ryan?

"I'm not going to be happy until I get in the groove for a whole game," he said seriously.

If he does, the other team might as well leave their bats behind.

ANGEL ANGLES — Don Kirkwood (0-1) and Cy Young winner Jim Palmer (2-1) will be the pitchers in tonight's finale (7:30 p.m.).

If the Halos win tonight, it would be the first time they have swept three games from the Birds since May 3, 4, and 5 of 1974. Angels attendance, with Tuesday's 13,805, is up 20,911 so far.

Frank, "Top Banana," Tanana produced another blooper for radio listeners Tuesday night. On the pregame interview show, Tanana, in relating his thoughts on a pitching mistake, said, "Oh Bleep, here we go again."

Former La Verne star John Verhoeven picked up his first win of the season in the second game of Pacific Coast League season at Salt Lake City. Verhoeven is a reliever.

Halo pitching now has fanned 24 Orioles in the last 18 innings. "I don't think they can give up a Don Baylor and not get a Reggie Jackson back," observed Chalk. "They're hurting."

Tonight will also be Autograph Night. Ryan, Bochte, Herrmann, Rusty Torres, Mickey Scott and Jim Brewer will sign autographs from 6:20 p.m. to 6:45 p.m.

Boston Bruins throttle Kings

BOSTON (AP)—Less than seven weeks ago All-Star defenseman Brad Park underwent left knee surgery to repair torn cartilage. He joined superstar Bobby Orr on the sidelines and the Bruins had reason for considerable concern.

Unlike Orr, however, Park made a remarkable recovery and managed to get himself into playing shape. Now he's leading the Bruins in the National Hockey League playoffs.

Park scored two goals, one while Boston was shorthanded and the second on a power play, and assisted on two others Tuesday night as the Bruins whipped the Los Angeles Kings 7-1 for a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final series.

"I feel good, better with every game," Park said. "Some shifts I feel better than on others, but I don't think about anything like that on the ice. I try to play according to the tempo of the game."

With unusually warm weather settled in the Boston area, the Garden was hot and sultry for the fifth game of the series. However, Park summed up the Bruins' reaction saying: "It was hot out there, but you put it out of your mind."

"Park played well, but he's still only 75 to 80 per cent fully back and has got quite a way to go," Boston Coach Don Cherry said. "However, it's sure nice to have him."

Cherry admitted the Bruins played well after spotting Los Angeles an early lead on Marcel Dionne's power-play goal.

"I think we played a little better in our 3-0 win in Los Angeles in the fourth game the other night, but we played well tonight," Cherry said. "The last two games have been the best we've played in a month or a month and a half.

"This is the way we played most of the season. Then we eased up while just about clinching our division. Now we have to continue playing well. We have a long way to go. This is not in our pockets yet. We're not thinking Philadelphia, or the next round. We're still thinking Los Angeles."

The Bruins picked up a couple of injuries in taking the series lead. Defenseman Joe Zanussi suffered a left knee injury which may require surgery and spare forward Hank Nowak received a cut which necessitated 23 stitches on his left hand.

"Now we have to go back home and win Thursday night," Dionne said. "We're not going to quit. The Bruins are playing with confidence, but we can play better hockey and we're going to have to win in Los Angeles."

In the other two NHL playoff games Tuesday night, Philadelphia whipped Toronto 7-1, and the New York Islanders beat Buffalo 4-3. The Flyers and Islanders each lead their series 3-2. These three series — Montreal already has eliminated Chicago — all change venue for games Thursday.

Don Saleski scored three goals, two in a 1:33 span in the second period when Philadelphia scored three times, to power the defending Stanley Cup champion Flyers past Toronto.

Bill Barber gave the Flyers a 1-0 lead at 3:55 of the first period when he poked a five-footer past Maple Leafs' goalie Wayne Thomas, who was partially screened. Then Thomas and Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent took over and neither team scored until Saleski set off the Flyers' burst at 10:04 of the second period.

Twenty-eight seconds later, Toronto's Bob Neely lifted a 12-footer over Parent's shoulder, and the score was 2-1. But 52 seconds later, Gary Dorhoefer steered in a shot by Larry Goodenough, and it was only another 13 seconds before Saleski deflected in Bob Kelly's bullet from the left circie. Saleski scored his third goal at 4:17 of the third period.

Islanders defenseman Bert Marehall, an 11-year NHL veteran, scored his first goal of the season with 19 seconds left in the game to beat Buffalo.

Marshall said the puck "was a foot off the ice when I hit it. I think he (Sabres goalie Gerry Desjardins) was scrreened on it. There were a couple of guys in front of him."

Marshall was surprised that his shot, which he claims is one of the slowest in the league, went in.

"You usually can read the label on my shots," he said.

MSAC Relays

Pole vault looks strong

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Three field events — the pole vault, high jump and discus — should be the competitive highlights of the invitational portion of the 1976 Mt. San Antonio Relays.

This year, for the first time, the Relays will feature a streamlined program of invitational events, featuring some of the nation's top track and field athletes, all to be held Saturday between noon and 4 p.m.

The strongest group of pole vaulters in MSAC Relays history — including five 18-foot vaulters — will take to the air beginning at 2:45 p.m. World record holder Tom Woods (18 feet, 6½ inches) will be pressed by Sweden's Kjell Isaksson (18-4¾), the winner at the Relays in 1972 and 1973, Russ Rogers (18-1½) of USC, Roland Carter (18-½) of Gulf Coast Track Club, the 1974 Relays winner, Larry Jessee (18-½) of the Maccabi Track Club, as well as six invitational entrants who have bests between 17 and 18 feet — including defending Relays champ Ron Mooers (17-8½) of the Beverly Hills Striders. All entrants below 17 feet have been delegated to the open pole vault.

The invitational high jump should be just about as competitive as the pole vault. That event will include the nations second, third and fourth-ranked jumpers, according to Track and Field News.

They are Tom Woods (7-5½) and Rory Kotenik (7-4) of Pacific Coast Club and Ron Livers (7-4¼) of Philadelphia Pioneer Track Club.

Woods was both the Pan American and AAU champion in 1975 while Kotinek was runnerup in both the AAU and NCAA.

Also in the field will be Canada's John Beers (7-4) and Rey Brown (7-2) of All-American Track Club, who has won every Relays high jump since 1971 at 7 feet or better.

The high jump, as well as the discus, will begin Saturday at 2:45 p.m.

The discus will also feature the nation's No. 2, 3 and 4 performers. Mac Wilkins of the Pacific Track Club, who had a best effort last year of 212-1, is ranked second in the United States and sixth in the world. Olympic medalist Jay Silvester, who holds the meet record of 220-4 (1971) is currently rated third in the nation and Ken Stadel (205-2) of the Beverly Hills Striders ranks fourth. That trio of Americans will have to contend with Canada's Bishop Dolegiewicz (214-4).

But that is not to say that all the top entrants in this year's Relays are in the field events.

Jamaica's Don Quarrie, ranked No. 1 in the world in the 200-meter run and No. 2 in the 100-meter, will head both events as well as running on the Beverly Hills Striders 400-meter relay team. Quarrie beat Steve Williams in five of nine head-to-head confrontations in 1975. The 200 will be run at 1:15 p.m. and the 100 will go at 2:40 p.m.

Both hurdle events promise good matchups. At 2:30 p.m., the 110-meter highs will feature Jerry Wilson (13.38) of the Beverly Hills Striders, ranked second in the nation and third in the world, against Clim Jackson (13.67) of Maccabi T.C., third in the nation, and James Shaw (13.6) of UCLA, fourth in the nation.

The 400-meter intermediates at 1:50 p.m. will include James King (49.03) of Maccabi T.C., ranked third in the United States; Bob Cassleman (48.89) of Pacific Coast Club, fifth; Wes Williams (50.08) of Maccabi T.C., sixth; and 1975 NCAA champ Craig Caudill (50.01) of Pacific Coast Club, seventh.

CONCENTRATION

Eyes riveted on his target, La Verne pitcher Jim Vallone delivers the ball. Leo hurler was winning pitcher Tuesday as Leopards out-slugged Claremont-Mudd, 12-7. (Story, page 38).

Dodgers retain their confidence

HOUSTON (AP) — Losing the first five games of a season would shake the confidence of most teams but not the Los Angeles Dodgers, according to first baseman Steve Garvey.

"Something like that (losing five in a row) happens to every team several times during a season," Garvey said Tuesday night after he collected three hits and helped the Dodgers whip the hot Houston Astros 6-2.

"It was just unfortunate for us that it happened at the start of the season," Garvey said. "It could have shaken the confidence of a lesser team. But we know what everybody is going to do over a 162-game season."

The Dodgers looked like the old Dodgers Tuesday night in winning their second game of the season in nine starts.

John Hale started it off with a two-run triple off Houston starter and loser Joe Niekro in the second inning. Los Angeles added another run in the third on Dusty Baker's double and the fourth run came in the sixth on pinch-hitter Ed Goodson's single.

That gave the Dodgers' young starter Rick Rhoden a shutout through five innings, but Dodgers Manager Walt Alston lifted Rhoden for Goodson's pinch single in the fifth.

"I didn't expect to go more than six innings anyway," said Rhoden, who was making his first start of the season after a bout with the flu. "My only concern was my control. I didn't know what it would be like after the layoff."

Mike Marshall, Rhoden's sixth-inning relief, had control problems, loading the bases in the sixth with a single by Cesar Cedeno and walks to Bob Watson and Cliff Johnson.

Two Houston runs scored in that inning on a groundout by Jose Cruz and Greg Gross' single. Gross singled again in the ninth and scored from third base on a passed ball.

Los Angeles scored two more runs in the ninth off Houston reliever Larry Hardy on a single by Baker and double by Garvey.

"We looked a little better with the bat tonight," Alston said. "We haven't been getting much of anything, hitting or pitching. We had a great spring training, our best ever, but we hadn't been able to put it together in the regular season."

LVC nears SCIAC title

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

La Verne College just about wrapped up its fourth SCIAC baseball title in five years Tuesday.

The Leos (10-2) outslugged Claremont-Mudd (10-5) by a score of 12-7 Tuesday afternoon at Stags' Field.

La Verne actually scored four more runs in the ninth inning and was ahead, 16-7 when the game was called because of darkness with the Stags due for their last at-bats.

Since the home team didn't get to bat, the score reverted to the last completed inning, in this case the eighth.

It was an odd game. With Jim Vallone and Joe Maiberger on the mound, it was a 2-2 pitcher's battle through the first five innings.

The Leopards knocked Maiberger (9-3) out in a seven-run sixth. The Stags came right back and KO'd Vallone (6-6) with two runs of their own.

La Verne scored three more Mitch Katlin and Bob Phee in the eighth. The Stags errupted for three runs off Paul McGuire and Fernie Tarin in their half of the eighth.

"I was very pleased with the win," said La Verne coach Ben Hines. I expected a low-scoring game it really surprised me at how many runs scored."

In addition to the 19 runs, there was a total of 27 hits including seven doubles and four home runs.

"Well we gave it a good shot," sighed C-M's Bill Arce. "Now I don't know who we'll pitch Saturday against UC Irvine. They hit everybody we put in.

"Maiberger couldn't hold them in the sixth with all those errors. They had to be the turning point."

Everything happened to the unlucky Maiberger after two were out. Six of the seven Leo runs that inning were unearned as the Stags made three of their five errors.

After Maiberger got the first two La Verne batters easily, Steve Polan clouted a 2-0 pitch over the left field fence. That gave the Leopards a 3-2 lead in the game.

Maiberger walked Gary Pierson. Steve Watson hit a ground ball to first that should have been the third out. But the ball went through Mark Stott for one error and Watson got to second when Jon Begerow's throw bounced away from Bob Turek and neither Andy Roundtree nor Maiberger covered second.

The shaken Maiberger gave up a two-run single to Pat Proulx and Proulx advanced to second on the play at the plate. Tim Burzette cracked his second of three singles driving in Proulx and when left fielder Al Golad overan the ball, Burzette raced to second.

That was all for Maiberger. Katlin came in and walked Wayne Redfearn. John Edwards bashed a 2-2 pitch over the left centerfield fence to the left of the 370 foot sign.

Burzette had singled on the first pitch of the game to extend his consecutive-game hitting streak to 24. In 28 games, he has scored 29 runs and batted in 22.

Vallone, before tiring, picked four C-M runners off base to kill possible rallies. In the fifth inning, the Stags would have scored at least two runs if Stott hadn't been caught off third on what was to be a double steal attempt.

"Jimmy pitched pretty good," said Hines. "I think the long layoff (between starts) and long sixth inning hurt him. It broke his rhythm."

The Leo coach watched most of the excitement from the stands. He was ejected in the fourth inning when umpire Lee Rolstan took exception to Hines' protest and told the La Verne coach to, "get back behind the line (at third base)."

"Get back behind the line yourself," replied the irate Hines and added a euphemism that, while not strong, sorely wounded the official who promptly gave a big league heave-ho sign with verbal accompaniment to the surprised coach.

"That's only the second time in 15 years that I've been kicked out of a game," muttered the Leo coach darkly, "but I deserved it the first time."

Assistant coaches Craig Bowser and Dave Long ran the Leopards the rest of the game.

La Verne, now 16-14 overall, hosts Caltech for two games Saturday. Claremont-Mudd, 17-11 overall, travels to UC Irvine for a pair.

Saldivar's dad unhappy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vicente Saldivar aims to become the lightweight boxing champion of the world, but his Dad might still be unhappy.

For the 135-pounder from Gomez Valacio in Durango, Mex., fights under his mother's name.

He's really Gicente Mijares Saldivar and in the Latin nations, the middle name is that of the father and the last name that of the mother.

But more than a decade ago Vicente Saldivar of Mexico held the world featherweight title. So, figured manager Harry Kabakoff, what could be better than having another Saldivar in the title ranks.

"My father was unhappy about it, and he still is," admitted the 21-year-old Mexican who battles fellow countryman Tury Pineda at the Olympic Auditorium on Thursday night in a 12-rounder for the vacant North American Boxing Federation lightweight title.

"My father wanted his side of the family to be mentioned too," the fighter said.

Saldivar turned pro and had his first fight on Nov. 10, 1972, and now is rated the 4th challenger for the lightweight title. For that initial fight he took a bus from his home to Monterrey, Mex., a trip that took four hours and his purse totaled $40 in American money.

For the Thursday night fight, after building a 19-0 record with 11 knockouts, Saldivar will receive 27½ per cent of the gate which should earn him $8,000 or more.

"I read about Jesus Pimental and Ruben Olivares making up to $100,000 for a fight and I decided to become a boxer," Saldivar said through an interpreter since he speaks no English.

"Now I think I can make some of that big money."

If he does, he'll bank it since he has nearly every nickel he has earned in the ring. However, he's currently planning a large home for his parents and whichever of his seven brothers and three sisters who choose to remain at home.

Saldivar comes early for a fight, trains, boxes and then takes the first plane back to Mexico.

He's a homebody at heart and less than talkative. Some have dubbed him "mute" but he says that in Mexico he talks, but not in Los Angeles where he doesn't have too much chance to talk to those who converse in Spanish.

"I'll beat Pineda and then I'd like to fight for the title," Saldivar declared. "I still don't know if my father will be happy. He'll be happy for me, but not about the name."

Saldivar had won 12 fights when he took a bus to Mexicali to talk to Pimental who worked with Kabakoff. He then signed with them and was given a Los Angeles bout, his first outside Mexico, against Sanjo Takemori. The Mexican surprised with a fifth round knockout and then twice beat the local favorite Randy Shields.

In Pineda, the young Mexican will be meeting a boxer who fought twice for the world title, drawing with Guts Ishamatsu and losing to him by decision, both in Japan.

Kings keep Johnson

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Kings gave Coach Phil Johnson a salary increase in a new contract Tuesday despite the National Basketball Association club's low finish.

Johnson, the NBA coach of the year in 1974-75, accepted a one-year contract that was approved unanimously by the Kings' 11-man board. Terms were not revealed.

The Kings were 44-38 and earned their first playoff spot in seven years in 1974-75, but fell to 31-51 and out of the playoffs during 1975-76.

Firemen, coaches play charity game

Firemen normally try and put out fires but on Sunday at 4 p.m., the Chino-Montclair-Pomona fire departments would like to build one.

On that day at West Covina High, the firemen will challenge the San Gabriel Valley coaches in a benefit full-scale football game to help soften a tragedy.

It was just slightly more than a month ago that Rick Bellino, a 14-year-old student at Edgewood High, came in to relieve a fellow pitcher on a lower division baseball team.

Bellino threw six pitches before collapsing of a heart attack. He died the next morning.

Since CIF insurance does not cover normal deaths, the family was left with whatever bills came about.

The game, scheduled for West Covina District Stadium, will be in Bellino's memory. Tickets for the charity game will be $1 per person.

Schools involved in the game are: Chino, San Dimas, Rowland, Baldwin Park, Edgewood, Glendora, Royal Oak, Los Altos, West Covina, Azusa and Wilson.

Hostetler slam lifts Owls

Citrus, Mt. San Antonio and Chaffey colleges all posted conference baseball wins Tuesday, but the Owls' victory was certainly the most dramatic of the three.

With Citrus, trailing, 8-5 in the top of the ninth in ning at San Diego City College, Dave Hostetler slugged a grand slam home run with nobody out to give the Owls a story book 9-8 win.

It was the second round-tripper of the game for the Owls — Joe Sanson belted a solo shot in the second inning. Rich Valentine and Todd Ervin each collected three of the Owls' 15 hits.

John Huddleston picked up the win with two innings of one-hit relief. The Owls, 12-3 in Mission Conference play and 20-6 overall, maintained their two-game lead over Chaffey and San Bernardino Valley.

MSAC struck for a run in the first and four more in the second in its 6-1 win over host San Diego Mesa. Chris Borbon and Brian Menasco hit back-to-back homers — Borbon's coming with a man aboard — and Ron Roenicke doubled home a run in the Mounties' second inning.

Roenicke had tripled and scored on a double by Tracy Cowger in the first inning. Roenicke was two-for-five and teammate Danny Gans hit two doubles in four trips.

Bob Veselic won his eighth game against four losses. He fanned nine and walked seven, giving up only an unearned run in the fourth.

The Mounties, 8-3 in the South Coast Conference and 20-6 overall, trail Cerritos by a game.

Chaffey took advantage of eight walks, four hit batsmen and three errors to beat host Palomar on three hits, 5-2.

Virgil Moore went the distance to even his record at 2-2. He struck out four and walked two while scattering seven hits, two of them doubles by Randy Johnson.

Chaffey's Rufus Thompson drove in two runs in the top of the first after three errors and a walk put men at second and third.

The Panthers scored what proved to be the winning run in the second on three walks, a hit batsman and a wild pitch.

Larry Jones of the Panthers was hit by a pitch three times in the game.

Chaffey is 10-5 in Mission Conference play and 16-11 overall.

Broncos whip Loyola

LOS ANGELES — Cal Poly Pomona, after squandering a five-run lead, scored four times in the top of the eighth inning for a 9-5 win Tuesday afternoon at Loyola.

John Turriff of the Broncos touched off the big inning with a leadoff single and then stole second base. After Ray Pekarcik walked, Monty Cloward laid down what was intended to be a sacrifice bunt. But the Lions failed to cover first base and Cloward was credited with a single, loading the bases.

Alex Torres then drove in what proved to be the winning run with a base on balls. Dennis Sherow singled to right, driving in two more runs, and when the ball went through Loyola's rightfielder, Torres scored the game's final run.

Loyola had tied the game, 5-5, with two runs in the fifth, one in the sixth and two in the seventh after Poly twice in the first and three times in the fourth.

Sherow, Clay Harris and Ken Hellyer came up with consecutive singles to account for the first two Bronco runs.

Poly took advantage of two Loyola errors — the Lions made six in all — to score three runs in the fourth.

Rick Schwenn picked up the win in relief of Tom Rosenstein while Mike Livingstone, who came in to start the eighth, got the loss.

The Broncos, 24-22-1, will host Cal Poly SLO in a single game Friday and a doubleheader Saturday.

Knights, ACA lose

American Christian and Ontario Christian suffered defeats in Tuesday's prep baseball action.

The Knight's shaky fielding was their undoing in a 7-2 loss at home to Whittier Christian. After Don Franco of the visitors led off the top of the second inning with a home run, OCHS commited three errors in the frame to allow Whittier to score two more runs without a hit.

The visitors scored four more times in the fourth on two hits, two walks and another error. Whittier managed just four hits to five for Ontario Christian. Dave Boersma had two of the Knights' hits.

OCHS's record fell to 1-7 in the Olympic League and 2-11 overall.

American Christian suffered only its second setback against 11 wins in a non-league game at Maranatha. The hosts scored three unearned runs in the third inning to take a 5-0 lead and went on to win, 5-3.

Jim Keith of the Minutemen went two-for-two and walked twice. He scored on an error and drove in a run. Maranatha's Ron Johannson was three-for-three with an RBI.

The Minutemen will play a make-up game at Riverside Christian Thursday while the Knights will travel to Brethren Friday.

Ali fights former foe

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Karl Mildenberger of West Germany, a 38-year old former European heavyweight champion, will fight Muhamad Ali as a warmup for the world champion's May 25 bout against Britain's Richard Dunn in Munich, it was reported today.

The daily mass-circulation newspaper Bildzeitung reported that the Kaiserslautern tire dealer, whom Ali knocked out in the 12th round of a ttle fight in Frankfurt Sept. 10, 1966, agreed to fight his former opponent in Munich or Augsburg May 15.

Mildenberger has already started his training, manager Josef Hartmann was quoted as saying, because he is also preparing for a bout against Uganda's boisterous President Idi Amin.

Nicklaus to battle youngsters, old pro

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two of the game's brightest young stars and a rebounding tough old pro loom as the chief opposition to Jack Nicklaus this week in the $175,000 New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

The old pro, of course, is Don January, the self-styled "Old Folks" of the pro tour who scored a popular upset victory last week in the prestigious Tournament of Champions.

"The old folks done pretty good, didn't they?" chortled the 46-year-old January after his front-running, five-stroke victory confirmed one of sports most unusual comebacks.

The young stars are Hubert Green and Ben Crenshaw, the hottest items on the tour this season and currently running 1-2 on the year's money-winning list.

Green, with $161,556 for the year, reeled off an improbable string of three victories in a row, challenged through two rounds of the Masters and then finished second to January in the T of C.

Crenshaw has been equally impressive. With $143,328, he scored consecutive triumphs in the Bing Crosby and the Hawaiian Open, was second in the Masters and made one big, last-round run in the T of C.

"I was really disappointed with the way I finished in the T of C," Crenshaw said. "I got to pressing and I let it get away from me."

Even with those impressive credentials, however, Nicklaus—as usual—is the man to beat in the 72-hole chase for a $35,000 first prize that begins Thursday over the 7,080-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club course.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by NBC-TV.

The tournament is sponsored by the 1st National Bank of Commerce.

It's a Racquet

WORLD TEAM TENNIS faces many unanswered questions, mainly over its own destiny, but one of its deeper mysteries seems to concern the value of the team coaches. Must the leader on the sidelines be a sage in court strategy and expert in motivating men and women? Or does he serve best by handing out towels to the players during the changeovers between geames?

The coach's importance apparently eluded the Pittsburgh Triangles. They fired the man who coached the franchise to the 1975 WTT championship. Of course that man happened to be Vic Edwards, who wasn't getting along with his adopted daughter, the newly married Evonne Goolagong, who happened to be the team's star player. The team management must have figured it this way: (1) Another Goolagong would be hard to find; (2) Any number of coaches would discover that, by putting Goolagong in the line-up, they become instant tactical geniuses.

But many in the WTT insist the coach can be a vital factor, just as he often is considered to be in Davis Cup competition, or the Super Bowl or NCAA basketball finals, for that matter. If this premise is correct, the Los Angeles Strings may have bolstered themselves considerably as they head into their third season next week. They've got Dennis Ralston in charge.

These days the name stands for cool, calm tennis expertise, but it wasn't always that way. Dennis the Menace they used to call him, and with good reason. As the U.S. boys 18 champ in 1959, he was a youngster out of Bakersfield recognized both for his great strokes and bad temper. Through his prime years in the 1960s, the great strokes never delivered him a major international singles title, although he did win the Forest Hills, Wimbledon and French doubles championships and gave the U.S. Davis Cup team many singles victories. All the time he never shook the bad boy image. One blow-up during a Davis Cup match against Mexico got him a suspension from U.S. tennis officials. "It was a long time ago," says Ralston now, at 33. "Ilie Nastase and Jimmy Connors have done a lot worse."

Ralston's career took a dramatic turn in 1971 when he took over the captaincy of the Davis Cup team. For the next five years he served in that role, mellowed and effective, and earned himself a new reputation. His incumbency produced two U.S. cup championships, which might not seem a threat to a sports legend like John Wooden, but even so was enough of a feat that many authorities have called him the country's best Davis Cup captain ever.

One occasion in particular is widely recognized as a gem in leadership. That was the 1972 finals in Bucharest where the elements against the U.S. team were awesome. Opponents Nastase and Ion Tiriac were insufferable clowns, the Romanian crowd was howling for blood and the linesmen were homering the visitors to death. Some of the American players wanted to quit after the first day, but Ralston pulled them together with a pep talk and nudged them on to a 3-2 win.

Disaster struck in Ralston's last two years on the job. The team lost in early zone competition to Colombia in 1974 and to Mexico in 1975, and it'll never be known how the U.S. would have fared had all its top players been available. Ralston was dropped from the post last year because one of the absentees had been Jimmy Connors. The U.S. Tennis Association wanted Connors but Connors didn't want Ralston.

With the Strings, Ralston will be a player-coach, as he was during the previous two WTT years with the Hawaii and San Diego teams. Because of a knee injury several years ago, he no longer plays much singles but he remains a top doubles performer. The Strings may provide him their best personnel ever. Rosie Casals, who coached the team last year, is back as a player, as is Bob Lutz. But the Strings made a couple of solid additions in recent weeks; Vijay Amritraj, the flashy 22-year-old from India, and Dianne Fromholtz, 19-year-old Australian who beat Chris Evert on the women's tour a few weeks ago.

In fact, if WTT is ever going to make a go of it — and the league insists that the time has arrived — this third season has to see the upsurge. Go down the list of the world's top women players and you'll read off WTT star attractions — Goolagon, Casals, Chris Evert, Billie Jean King, Martina Navratilova, Virginia Wade . . . Rod Laver used to scoff at WTT's ability to afford him. Now he's relocating his home in San Diego prior to his debut with the Friars there and saying things like: "The WTT has really come a long way in three years. I see now the idea is sound." Ilie Nastase should be big box office throughout the 10-team league, as well as a big scorer for his team, Hawaii. Whether he'll also present big disciplinary problems for the WTT remains to be seen.

In one other move, the league has altered scoring rules slightly to keep the team contests in doubt until the last game. On the games won scoring system, teams sometimes have had enough early points to clinch the victory even brefore the final set started. That is, a powerhouse like Pittsburgh might build up a 24-11 lead in the men's and women's singles and doubles. Its mixed doubles duo could lose 6-0 in the last of the five events and Pittsburgh still would be a ho-num winner, 24-17.

The new rule says "a match will not end until the winning team wins the final game." So if the leading team fails to win the final set, the match continues into overtime. If the leading team finally wins a game, it wins the match. If the trailing team ties the count, a nine-point tie breaker decides it. Another rule change provides that the home team chooses the order of the match and thus determines the contestants in that critical final set.

The Strings play 18 matches in their plush new home, the Forum in Inglewood, starting May 12, but they'll also appear four times considerably closer to the local area at the Anaheim Convention Center. San Diego has scheduled two matches at Anaheim.

WALNUT CAN TAKE A BOW as the valley's newest tennis hotbed. The Walnut High team has a bead on the school's first outright Hacienda League tennis championship, showing a perfect 10-0 league mark with only four meets to go before the CIF 2-A tournament.

Only two losses to non-conference opponents La Habra and Fullerton's Troy mar the Mustang players' record after 20 matches. Walnut's match at twice-beaten San Dimas High next Tuesday could be the title clincher for the Mustangs, who defeated San Dimas in a previous meeting.

Much of Walnut's strength, says Coach Charles Sismondo, comes from its singles depth, provided by John Reed, Doug Daley, Dean Phillips and Kelly Bowlin. "Those guys don't often beat the other team's No. 1 man but they win most of the others," Sismondo explains. More than that, two doubles teams are winning 90 per cent of their sets. Jeff Davis and Joe Mendoza form the No. 1 duo, but sophomores Joel Nunn and Jaime Goldfarb have lost only two sets — one less than Davis and Mendoza.

OUTSTANDING TENNIS on the junior college level will be on display April 29 through May 1 at Citrus College. The annual Mission Conference tournament is scheduled there, with play starting at 9 a.m. each of the three days.

The Mission covers a lot of territory, extending into San Diego, which means some high level players will be in action at the Azusa campus. San Diego City College, a perennial power, won the dual match portion of the conference season again this year, with Palomar finishing second.

Citrus ended up fourth by beating valley opponent Chaffey, 5-4, earlier this month.

The top conference performers include San Diego City's Bill Rennie, Canadian junior champion, and Palomar's Martin Bohn, Swedish junior champ.

Golden State wins easily

By Associated Press

When Detroit Coach Herb Brown was asked if there was any one area in which his team was weakest, he answered: "Yeah, basketball."

But, the Golden State Warriors can make almost any opposing coach feel that way. The defending National Basketball Association champions opened their quarter-final series against Detroit Tuesday night with a 127-103 victory. Phil Smith scored 26 points.

"We were horrible," Brown said. "The Warriors played well. They can just break you down, and I'm sure that contributed some to our being horrible."

Rick Barry was held to 13 points but he tied his season high for assists, handing out 11.

"The ball wasn't going in for me, so I guess I concentrated more on dropping it off to the other guys, and the guys I hit were hot tonight."

In the night's only other playoff game, the Phoenix Suns took a 3-1 lead in their quarterfinal series against Seattle, beating the SuperSonics 130-114. The Warriors-Pistons series continues in Oakland Thursday night, and Phoenix travels to Seattle for Game 5 Sunday.

Tonight, the Boston Celtics, after drawing a bye through the first round, begin their quarterfinal series against the Buffalo Braves, and the Cleveland Cavaliers take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final series into Washington.

Bob Lanier led Detroit with 18 points, 14 of them in the first quarter.

The Warriors, who drew a first-round bye and have not played in 10 days, showed early signs of rustiness, falling behind 18-12. But they outscored the Pistons 12-0 to move ahead for good, taking a 65-51 halftime lead.

In Phoenix' victory, Paul Westphal tied his season-high point production with 39, and Keith Erickson added 31 points. Seattle's Fred Brown was held to eight points in the first half but led a third-quarter surge that brought Seattle within five points. He wound up with a team-high 33 points.

"I think we're in trouble unless we make a good turnaround," said Sonics Coach Bill Russell. "We threw the ball away 17 times in the first half. They played consistently. I think this was their best game."

Asked if returning to Seattle would give his Sonics a lift, Russell replied: "If we played in my living room the way we played (tonight), it wouldn't make any difference."

Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn is worried about the Celtics' long layoff. "We're ready physically," says Heinsohn, "butI don't know how sharp we'll be after such a long layoff (10 days)."

Meanwhile, Buffalo Coach Jack Ramsay, whose Braves reached the quarter-finals by beating Philadelphia, says his team is both physically and mentally sound.

Washington Coach K.C. Jones will have to find a remedy for the poor shooting of Elvin Hayes and Lhil Chenier if he hopes to even up his team's series with Cleveland.

"Turnovers and poor free throw shooting have been our nemesis," Jones said, "and both 'E' and Phil haven't been consistent.

"When your two power shooters are off," Jones said, "it puts too much pressure on the defense."

Flyers' star top player

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Center Bobby Clarke of the Philadelphia Flyers has been named the National Hockey League's player of the year for the third time in four years by the Sporting News.

A poll of 249 league players was announced Tuesday by the weekly publication.

Left wing Bill Barber, a member of Clarke's record-setting line, was also named to the All-Star team. Others selected were right wing Guy Lafleur of Montreal' defensemen Denis Potvin of the New York Islanders and Brad Park of Boston, and goalie Ken Dryden of Montreal.

Center Bryan Trottier of the slanders was named the NHL Rookie of the Year.

Title fight rated even

LOS ANGELES — World lightweight contenders Vicente Saldivar, no. 4, and Tury Pineda, no. 5, are rated even for their 12 round North American lightweight title fight at the Olympic Auditorium Thursday night.

Saldivar, 19-0 with nine knockouts, is coming off two wins over contender Randy Shields. Pineda, 26-6 with 22 knockouts, has twice fought for the world's lightweight crown. September 22, 1974 he fought a 15 round draw with Guts Ishimatsu and June 6, 1975 he dropped a split 15 rounder to Ishimatsu. Both fights were in Japan.

Largest racing crowd in New York's mutuel history turned out to see the 1971 Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park. There were 82,692 on hand. Pass Catcher won the race.

Rockets stress defense

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets, who failed to make the National Basketball Association playoffs this season, fired coach Johnny Egan Tuesday and replaced him with Tom Nissalke, who promised a heavy emphasis on defense.

"Tom Nissalke and I happen to agree that defense can be taught," Rockets President and General Manager Ray Patterson said in making the announcement. "We've been talking about defense here for years but nothing has been done about it."

Nissalke, head coach of the Seattle SuperSonics during the 1972-73 season, said improving the Rockets defense would be one of his major goals.

"We played the Rockets in exhibition game once and our assessment was that they were not hard-nosed on defense," said Nissalke, a former coach of the Dallas, Utah and San Antonio teams in the American Basketball Association.

Nissalke, with a reputation for strong discipline and defense, said he thinks the Rockets, one of the top shooting teams in the NBA, can learn to play defense.

Egan, whose three-year contract expired at the end of the current season when Houston was 40-42, had been criticized for not improving the Rockets defensively. Egan took the Rockets into the playoffs last year but the Rockets fizzled down the stretch this season.

"We anticipated a continuation of progress this season," Patterson said. "Unfortunately, that was not the case. We feel it is our responsibility to our fans to be able to point to progress."

Nissalke, who last season served as a scout for the Rockets and Milwaukee Bucks, said he would make no immediate decision on the status of assistant coach Larry Siegfried or any trade possibilities.

Egan replaced Tex Winter during the 1972 season and the Rockets went 32-50 the following season.

TENACE INJURED — Oakland A's catcher Gene Tenace lies in pain after he was injured attempting to steal second base in the sixth inning Tuesday night against Detroit. Tenace wrenched his knee sliding and was taken from the field on a stretcher.

Red Devils roll over Cavaliers

Pomona High ran over visiting Montclair, 108-8, in Tuesday's lone San Antonio League track meet.

The meet, originally set for today, was held Tuesday because of a minimum-day schedule today at Pomona High for teachers' meetings.

Pomona's Hank Zibell won the shot put with a heave of 62 feet, 7¾ inches, just shy of his school-record put of two weeks ago (62-8½). Teammate Barry Boettcher won the mile run in 4:24.0, a full second off the school record he set in the Red Devil's previous meet. Montclair's Mike Roza was second in the mile in 4:32.0.

Boettcher did not run the two mile, and Roza recorded the only Cavalier win of the meet in 9:57.6.

Pomona's Jim Donaldson won the 100-yard dash in 9.7 seconds and the 220 in 22.8. Terry Andrews took the 440 in 51.0 and Larry Martin won the 880 in 2:02.0.

Jim Middleton won the 120 high hurdles in 15.0 and the 330 lows in 41.0. Ernest Jarnagin missed the meet with the flu.

Charles Cole won the long jump at 22-4 and brother Lewis Cole took the high jump at 6-0. Terry Ludwig of the Devils won the pole vault at 10-6.

Pomona's 440 relay team of Karsem James, Donaldson, Anthony Miley and Andrews win 43.4 while James, Diamond Sherman, Charles Cole and Andrews covered the mile in 3:30.8.

Gorman heads Seattle club

SEATTLE (AP) — Lou Gorman, new director of baseball operations for Seattle's American League expansion franchise, doesn't expect the team to be an instant loser.

"We want to be competitive. We don't want to finish last next year," he said. "And my goal is not to finish last."

The 47-year-old Gorman, vice president and assistant general manager of the Kansas City Royals for the past year, was officially named to his new position at a news conference Tuesday.

Seattle businessman Lester M. Smith, managing partner of the Seattle club, which will begin play next season, introduced Gorman and his wife, Mary Lou, to the press.

Smith pointed out that the designation general manager is "a misnomer for the job here" and that Gorman's official title will be "director of Seattle baseball operations."

"My job will involve all the playing end, to build the baseball club and to put it on the field," Gorman said.

Gorman has been with the Royals since the team was organized in 1969 as a tandem expansion club to the Seattle Pilots, who moved to Milwaukee in 1970 after only one season.

He brings an impressive background of experience in baseball operation to Seattle. Under his direction, the Royals' minor league system has developed into one of the most successful in the sport.

He was with the Baltmore Orioles from 1963 to 1968 and, as director of minor league clubs, helped build the championship Orioles teams. Earlier he was in the San Francisco Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates farm organizations.

Gorman says his first priority will be "to gather the best scouting personnel I can get my hands on and get them in the field. I think I know the people I would like to get in this organization."

He said he already has reached a verbal agreement on the hiring of one fulltime and two parttime scouts.

He said Seattle will look primarily for youth in the major league expansion draft.

Long Beach signs Stefl

LONG BEACH — Mark Stefl, a rugged 6-foot, 10-inch center from Yavapai (Arizona) Junior College, has announced that he will enroll next fall at Long Beach State. He will come to Long Beach as a junior after competing two years for Yavapai.

Stefl and current 49er star Anthony McGee were teammates on the 1974-75 Yavapai team that won its conference championship.

The 230-pound center, a graduate of Tulare High School, was an all-tournament selection in this year's Prescott Tournament where he was instrumental in Yavapai's 65-62 triumph over the powerful Compton Tartars, led by Larry Moffitt.

Stefl was the target of recruiters from Indiana State, New Mexico, Arizona State and Missouri. His decision to play for the 49ers will be a major plus for Dwight Jones' squad next season.

"Mark is a very strong, physical player and an outstanding rebounder," Jones said. "He will provide immediate help for us with his strength and experience."

Mets, Cards get in brawl

By Associated Press

New York batters hit the St. Louis pitchers hard Tuesday night—almost as hard as Cardinals pitcher Lynn McGlothen hit two Mets batters and nearly sparked a brawl.

The hitting by the hitters took place in the first two innings, when Felix Millan, Del Unser and John Milner each slugged two-run homers to help New York carry a 6-0 lead into the third inning. That's when McGlothen started hitting the batters.

"I'm a big league pitcher and I want to be around a while," said McGlothen, who hit Unser and opposing pitcher Jon Matlack in the third, causing a charge from the Mets dugout led by slugger Dave Kingman.

McGlothen, who was ejected for his tactics, continued to defend his action. "I just think a pitcher has a right to try to contain the hitters. If a pitcher feels like he's been intimidated, he has to do something. I hit them as a certain measure that had to be done."

Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst, who along with New York shortstop Bud Harrelson was ejected from the game in the third inning, managed a light comment.

"I think it's bush," said Matlack, who pitched a six-hitter for the 8-0 victory. "I really think I have no respect for the man (McGlothen), even though I did before. When a guy hits a batter (Unser) after a home run, it's one thing. But not when the score is 6-0. Everybody's got to pitch inside, that's part of the game. But not a foot-and-a-half inside."

In the other NL games Tuesday, Philadelphia topped Pittsburgh 5-1, San Diego bested Cincinnati 7-5, San Francisco outscored Atlanta 12-11 in 10 innings, and Los Angeles clipped Houston 6-3. The Montreal at Chicago game was rained out.

Phillies 5, Pirates 1

Mike Schmidt, who is "fun to watch when you're on his side," according to teammate Jim Kaat, cracked his sixth home run in three games to tie six other players for the major league record and lead the Phils past the Pirates.

Kaat pitched a six-hitter in one hour, 47 minutes and hit a two-run double—"My first hit in three years—to help Philadelphia.

The veteran left-hander's fast work prompted a comment by Schmidt, whose two-run blast in the fourth was all the offense Kaat needed: "I missed the first pitch he threw in spring training this year. I was playing with the dirt on third base, and then next thing I knew the catcher was throwing the ball back."

Padres 7, Reds 5

Pinch-hitter Jerry Turner's bases-loaded single keyed a three-run San Diego rally in the eighth inning as the Padres handed Cincinnati its fourth defeat in five games.

The Reds were trailing 4-0 and held hitless by Bill Greif until the fifth, but scored five times in the seventh to take the lead.

Butch Metzger, 1-0, got the victory in relief and combined with Greif, Mike DuPree and Dave Tomlin to snap a 22-game hitting streak by Pete Rose.

Giants 12, Braves 11

Gary Matthews hit two home runs—his second winning the game in the 10th inning—two singles, scored four runs and drove in three to lift the Giants past the Braves.

San Francisco trailed 8-1 at one point.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians defeated the Texas Rangers 9-1, the New York Yankees edged the Chicago White Sox 5-4, the Boston Red Sox routed the Minnesota Twins 12-3, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Kansas City Royals 5-4 and the Oakland A's beat the Detroit Tigers 6-5.

Red Sox 12, Tigers 3

The Red Sox, held to six home runs in their first nine games, raked Tiger pitchers for four homers Tuesday night. Dwight Evans drove in four runs with a homer and a double, while Jim Rice, Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk also homered.

"We served them cookies and they ate them up," said a frustrated Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch.

Yankees 5, White Sox 4

RBI singles by Thurman Munson and Chris Chambliss helped the Yankees beat Chicago behind the standout relief pitching of Tippy Martinez, who held the White Sox scoreless for five innings.

Martinez replaced starter Dock Ellis in Chicago's four-run third and held them scoreless until the eighth, when he gave way to Dick Tidrow and then Sparky Lyle.

The Yankees, who had tagged Chicago starter Bart Johnson for three runs in the second, reached him for the winning runs in the third thanks to a running game. Roy White beat out a bunt, stole second and scored on Munson's single. Munson also stole second, continued to third on catcher Brian Downing's throwing error and came home on Chambliss' hit.

Indians 9, Rangers 1

Gaylord Perry returned to Cleveland, only to be routed in a seven-run seventh inning and tagged with the loss. Alan Ashby's two-run single and Frank Duffy's two-run double highlighted the burst, though both came off relievers who followed Perry, traded by the Indians last June.

"I want to win no matter where I play," Perry said quietly. "This game was nothing special. I was hitting my spots. I felt pretty good—but they hit the ball."

Brewers 5, Royals 4

Pedro Garcia drove in two runs and scored twice to pace the Milwaukee attack in a game twice delayed by rain, for a total of one hour 22 minutes.

Pete Broberg checked the Royals on two hits through five innings, then Billy Champion and Ed Rodriguez preserved the victory.

A's 6, Tigers 5

Don Baylor, obtained from Baltimore in the controversial Reggie Jackson trade, singled home Claudell Washington to cap a three-run rally in the ninth that lifted Oakland to victory. Joe Rudi had tied the game with a two-run single.

Seattle inks Richardson

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Ernie Richardson, a linebacker from Oregon State, has been signed as a free agent by the new Seattle Seahawks of the National Football League.

"My dream has been to get a chance at pro ball," said Richardson, a 6-foot-4, 228-pound athlete from New York City who became a starter for Oregon State midway in the 1975 season. "Now I've got my chance."

Richardson, who never played high school football, earned the Pacific-8 Conference's Defensive Player of the Week award after helping Oregon State blank Washington State 7-0 for the Beavers' only victory last season.

OSU signs Billy Reed

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State University has landed a top basketball prospect from the Los Angeles area in 6-foot-2 guard Billy Reed from North Hollywood, OSU officials said Tuesday.

Reed sat out much of the 1975-76 season after suffering a knee injury that required surgery. He was averaging 30 points a game when he was hurt one-third of the way through the season.

Top road racers set big day at OMS

Auto racing

High speed professional sports car action returns to the Ontario Motor Speedway Sunday, May 9 as the nation's top road racing drivers have been scheduled to compete in the $60,000 International Sports Car Spectacular, announced George Cheyne of Racepro, producers of the event.

Programed in the "Spectatular" will be a full day of competition featuring two major events: the Camel GT 100, which pits the 200 mph plus Corvettes, Monzas, Porsches, BMWs, Cameros, Mustangs, Datsuns and more; and the Mark C. Bloome TA 100 Championship race featuring the racing sedans of the B. F. Goodrich Radial Challenge Series.

"We're happy to see the Camel GT and B. F. Goodrich races back at Ontario Motor Speedway," said Ray Smartis, general manager of OMS. "We are extending all the excellent facilities to the organizers of the race so that everyone will be able to take full advantage of what we have to offer."

As the fifth race in the 15 event International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) sanctioned series, our event is shapping up to be one of the most exciting sports car road races in recent southern California history, commented Cheyne. "We should have a full compliment of cars in each race and as indicated by the first event of the year, the Daytona 24-hours, it should be an interesting race."

Considerable controversy developed during the 24-hour Daytona race (Jan. 31-Feb. 1) when water was found in the gas tanks of many top entries. Sabotage was at first suspected, but later discounted. The winner of that race was the defending champion, Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla. driving a factory BMW CSL. Gregg also won the last Camel GT race held at OMS in 1974.

A top field of B. F. Goodrich racing sedans is also expected to enter the Mark C. Bloome TA 100. These include the BMW 2002 of last year's champion, Nick Craw of Washington D.C. Craw, a former director of the Peace Corps, gave-up that $40,000 a year job to devote full-time to motor racing. The Goodrich series features compact sedans — BMWs, Colts, Bobcats, Pintos, Capris, Vegas, Datsuns, Gremlins, Pacers and the like, in highly competitive road racing action. All Goodrich sedans use street approved radial tires. The winner of the 1974 Ontario Goodrich race was Colt driver Carson Baird of Laurel, Md.

"We are offering something special," noted Cheyne. "For one ticket price of $10 we allow full use of the Ontario facilities for both Saturday and Sunday (May 8-9), free parking and overnight camping in the infield, Victory Circle seating and garage tours."

Practice and qualifying for Sunday's "Spectatular" will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday. Sunday's full race schedule will begin at 10 a.m. Other events are to be announced.

Tickets are currently available through all Ticketron outlets and at the OMS Box Office.

Drivers stick with NASCAR

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Independent stock car drivers, mechanics and car owners have decided to remain in the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, while seeking more money from speedways.

The independents claim they need emergency help to get through the remaining 22 races of the 30-race Grand National season. Forty-two of them met here Monday night but declined to form their own association as had first been indicated.

"We felt like this was the wrong time to form an association," said veteran driver James Hylton of Inman, S.C., a spokesman for the group. "We feel like we don't need an association. We are members of NASCAR and this is a NASCAR problem.

"It will be up to NASCAR and the (race) promoters to help us find a solution."

Hylton said most independents, those drivers without regular sponsors, can survive for another six weeks. But there are more than six months left in the Grand National season, which ends in November.

Hylton had indicated Sunday, before the Rebel 500 race at Darlington, S.C., that the group planned to ask for an increase in the $500 appearance money independents receive at most tracks. He also said tires and parts had become increasiningly expensive for the independents.

Six drivers drivers were elected at the Charlotte meeting to act as spokesmen for the independents.

They were David Sisco of Nashville, Tenn.; Elmo Langley of Charlotte; Richard Childress of Winston-Salem, N.C.; Cecil Gordon of Mills River near Hendersonville, N.C.; Bruce Hill of Union City, Ga., the NASCAR Rookie of the Year in 1975, and Hylton.

Hylton sid the six will try to meet with NASCAR President Bill France Jr. They will report back to fellow independents on April 23 at Martinsville, Va., two days before the next race.

"The number one problem is the financial problems that independents are having in order to stay in racing," said Hylton. It's estimated that a new Grand National race car today costs $40,000. Tires, for example, cost nearly $97 each.

"We have given the promoters and NASCAR the ball and asked them to run with it. All we are doing is asking the promoters and NASCAR to work out a solution to help us.

"We're extremely happy with the meeting and the things that were discussed. I am surprised that 42 drivers, mechanics and car owners could sit down together and talk about our problems in an orderly manner."

Lin Kuchler, NASCAR vice president and director of competition, had said said Sunday that the sanctioning body wanted to study the driver's plans before commenting.

"I can say, and I'm speaking for Bill France Jr., that NASCAR has never dealt with any bargaining agents or drivers' union. That policy has not changed, and won't," he said at Darlington.

Jones, Penske enter cars in Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis 500 entries from the Parnelli Jones and Roger Penske racing teams, delayed in the mail since the deadline midnight last Thursday, arrived this morning.

The Jones team entered two cars for the May 30 auto racing classic, one of them for two-time winner Al Unser.

Penske entered three cars, including one for Tom Sneva, who was critically injured last year when his car crashed and burst into flames.

The entries, accepted because they were postmarked before the deadline, pushed to 70 the field that will chase the 33 spots in the starting lineup.

Denny McLain keeps busy promoting baseball

By A.J. FRIEDMAN
Toledo Blade

MEMPHIS — The face was familiar. The figure wasn't.

There he was, Dennis Dale McLain, with a midsection much like the one possessed by his ol' Detroit Tigers' pitching teammate and buddy, Mickey Lolich.

McLain scurried about to his appointed rounds as general manager of the Memphis Blues, getting ready to open the store for the team's International League baseball season.

And despite the rosey financial picture that McLain paints, he'll find it easier to put people into a ballpark as a 30-game winner in the major leagues than as a general manager in the minor leagues.

"This is the first time in three weeks I've sat down," said McLain, balancing himself on two railings of an unused turnstile and clutching a can of soda.

So the job isn't all it's cracked up to be, eh?

"The thing we took on that most clubs don't is the concessions and you have inventory control and every other thing. There were bad things last year in regards to service," McLain said. "But it's also the biggest profit item—to a degree."

Profit, prodit, profit. That, and nothing else, is the motivation for McLain and his longtime friend, Jerry Bilton, providing the bankroll behind the Blues. They claim it's no hobby.

"I'll put this organization against anyone's, don't care whether it's Cincinnati or Timbuktu," he said. "I'm the only former baseball player here. But we have people who have been associated with NFL, WFL, ABA and NBA teams. Everybody's had a tremendous amount of experience.

"We're involved in several other things, but this is something I always wanted to do. We're in chemical manufacturing and we're about to go in the clothing business."

That's as well since few minor league general managers rise to the big leagues.

"I have no intention of being a major league general manager. For some guys, it's hoopee-doopee-do, I'm a general manager of a baseball team. But not me. I have other interests," said McLain.

Those do not include an itch to give it one more try "in between those two white lines," as he likes to refer to the playing field, to see if, just maybe, whatever it was he lost as a pitcher could be found with one last search.

Some names were thrown for recollection and opinion at McLain and here were his responses:

On Detroit General Manager Jim Campbell: "Jim and I are still friends. I'm positive of it. He was just too conservative. He held onto the older players. The club wound up being destroyed. But I've made bad judgments myself."

On Lolich: "After I left, Mickey became a helluva pitcher. Had he matured earlier, it might have saved my arm a little bit. You've heard of that phrase, 'A million dollar arm and a 10 per cent head.' It certainly applied at one time. He came a helluva pitcher . . . finally."

MWD proposes recreational area above La Verne

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Live Oak Reservoir above La Verne could become the valley's next recreational area, if a proposal by the Metropolitan Water District is approved by government agencies.

The MWD says it wants a buffer ring around the 80-acre reservoir and is offering 90 acres of land along the periphery to the Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation Department to go with a limited use of the lake.

The county and the water district already are working on a proposal to combine land and water for recreation, but how far they can go depends on the state Health Department.

Bernie Tom, coordinator of the project for the MWD, says the Health Department is objecting to the proposal because health officials think use of the reservoir would pollute the water.

The reservoir collects water from the Colorado River, as well as from Northern California, and then sends it south to the MWD's Weymouth plant in La Verne, where it is treated before it reaches customers.

La Verne City Manager George Caswell pointed out that even if the water is used for recreation, it will undergo purification at the Weymouth plant before it is distributed.

Tom said no body contact would be allowed with the water. The reservoir would be used only for "put and take" fishing, model boating and possibly rowing. The land around the reservoir could be developed for picnicking, bike and horse trails and for overnight camping by supervised groups, he explained.

Caswell presented the proposal to the La Verne City Council Monday, and got a highly favorable reception. The council has been looking for open space in and around La Verne for years now, and the 265-acre open land of the MWD reservoir seemed to fit that purpose.

The MWD, in offering the reservoir and the buffer area for public use, wants to establish a protective area around the reservoir.

If the project is undertaken, the county plans to build an access road to the reservoir from the northwest.

According to Tom, the main obstacle to the project is the jaundiced look the Health Department has been giving it. That look can color the attitude of the county.

He said that if the state disapproves the use of the reservoir, the county will probably not be interested in developing the rest of the recreational area.

"Let's face it," he said, "the priority of recreation money in the county is going where there is some water. If the state won't permit the use of the water, the money may go elsewhere."

Another problem identified by the coordinator is that connected with fluctuation of the water level in the reservoir.

"The water can go up or down 15 to 30 feet during a weekend," he explained. "This makes it virtually impossible to use the reservoir for boating. What's more, when the water level goes down 20 feet, the circumference of the lake shrinks 160 feet. That's a lot of fluctuation."

But the La Verne council is ready to move in if the county doesn't, even if use of the reservoir is restricted.

"If the county doesn't want to take over this open space, then the city will give it strong consideration," Mayor Mike Morales said. "The only thing we have to be sure of is that we have adequate access to the recreation area."

Councilman Robert Neher, an open space proponent, called the proposal "good news." But he also cautioned the council about adequate roads, because he felt the recreational area is likely to generate more traffic than a local park.

INJURED IN SPILL

Britain's Princess Anne lies unconscious after her horse fell on her during horse trials Wednesday near Blandford. Boots in foreground are those of her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, who also was competing in trials.

Horse fell on her

Princess Anne suffers concussion in spill

BLANDFORD, England (AP) — Princess Anne's horse fell on her during a riding competition today, briefly knocking her unconscious. She was taken to a hospital, where a preliminary examination showed she suffered a concussion but no broken bones, officials said.

Anne, 25-year-old daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, is one of Britain's hopes for an equestrian gold medal at the Montreal Olympics this summer. She also fell from horses during competitions in 1973 and 1974.

She was riding Candlewick in the Portman horse trials near Blandford when the latest mishap occurred.

Witnesses said Princess Anne's husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, also riding in the event, went to her aid and was with her when she regained consciousness.

Ambulance attendants rushed onto the track and covered her with blankets until an ambulance arrived to take her to the hospital at nearby Poole.

The queen was celebrating her 50th birthday at Windsor Castle and was not present at the trials. The princess is fourth in line of succession to the throne.

Ex-Pomona man killed in hang glider crash

A former Pomonan, reportedly the best hang glider flyer in his club, fell about 1,000 feet to his death while soaring out of the Azusa Canyon mouth to the San Gabriel Mountains Tuesday afternoon.

The victim, Phillip Francis O'Brien, 24, 1414 Eastbury Ave., Covina, was pronounced dead on arrival at Glendora Community Hospital. He suffered a variety of injuries, including multiple fractures.

O'Brien was among a group of hang glider enthusiasts who had gone to Newman's Point, a cliff off Glendora Mountain Road, to fly their gliders. Also in the group was O'Brien's 5-year-old son, Shawn.

The young man reportedly was at about a 1,000-foot altitude when his glider was caught by turbulent winds and flipped upside down. It plunged into a rocky field near the entrance of the Azusa Canyon Riding Stables at 8605 San Gabriel Canyon Road.

There were two witnesses to the accident. Gerald J. Hughes, 32, of Glendora, told sheriff's deputies he was watching the glider from the stable area as it soared out of the canyon. He saw it flip over and heard O'Brien's cries as it neared the ground and plunged to the earth near Highway 39.

Hughes and the other witness, Steven Callahan, 33, Anaheim, removed the victim from the wreckage of the 36-foot glider and tried to assist him until county Fire Department paramedics arrived.

The victim was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. O'Brien of 1395 Casa Vista Drive, Pomona. He attended St. Joseph Catholic School in Pomona, Damien High School in La Verne and St. John Bosco High School in Bellflower.

O'Brien reportedly had flown from Newman's Point Sunday, soaring to an altitude of 3,500 feet. But he had been warned against the location by friends who said the winds were too treacherous.

The victim had been hang-gliding for more than three years and had taught others the sport. He was planning to enter a national competition of gliders next month.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Dad freed, babysitter booked in home blaze

ANAHEIM (AP) — A man initially accused of attempting to burn his three children has been freed, and the children's babysitter has been arrested instead, police said.

Bonnie Kay Branson, 26, was booked Tuesday for investigation of arson, theft and attempted murder. Ronald Irwin Nadelberg, 31, was released by authorities.

Five persons, including Nadelberg's three small children, were hospitalized briefly for smoke inhalation after fire broke out in the Nadelberg home Monday night.

Investigators alleged that Miss Branson, who lived in the home, had stolen money from Nadelberg's estranged wife, Karen Ann Nadelberg, 28, and set the fire while Mrs. Nadelberg was at work in an effort to cover up the crime.

Police said they believed the babysitter tied her legs and arms together and gagged her own mouth in an effort to mislead detectives.

The Nadelberg children, Timmie Sue, 4; Ronnie Lee, 3; and Abraham, 22 months, were found huddled in a smoke-filled bedroom, firemen said.

The youngsters, the babysitter and a passerby were taken to Anaheim Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released. The children were returned to their mother.

S.S. checks will rise 6.4% in July

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today that 36.3 million persons receiving Social Security or Supplemental Security Income benefits will receive a 6.4 per cent cost-of-living increase beginning with their July checks.

The Social Security Administration said the average benefit for a retired worker will increase from $204 to $218.

The maximum benefit for a person retiring at age 65 in 1976 will increase from the current $364 to $387.30, while minimum benefit will increase from $101.40 to $107.90.

For an aged widow, the average benefit will increase from $195 to $208.

Supplemental Security Income payments will increase for an eligible individual from $157.70 to $167.80, while the payment for an eligible couple will go up from $236.60 to $251.80. Recipients living in states that pay a supplement to Supplemental Security Income checks will get an increase only if the state acts to pass along the higher federal payment.

The cost-of-living increase is automatic, based on a comparison of the average monthly Consumer Price Index in the first quarter of 1975 with the first quarter of 1976.

The Social Security Administration said the 6.4 per cent increase will cost $5.3 billion in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Twister leaves one dead, 29 hurt in trailer parks

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP) — "You could hear those trailers folding up," said Jessie Marsh, who lived in one of two trailer parks devastated by a tornado which killed one and injured 29.

The twister rampaged along a 100-yard-long path through the parks Tuesday night, destroying or heavily damaging at least 20 house trailers and smashing a number of cars.

"It came out of nowhere," said Marsh. "After it happened, there wasn't a lot of panic. Everyone was running to help."

The sheriff's office said Mrs. Glenn Randall, 35, was killed when her trailer was blown into an open sewage pond.

Twenty of the injured were treated at a hospital and released, officials said.

Authorities set up temporary housing for the homeless in a dormitory on the campus of Northwestern State University here.

Jim Perry, who lived in one of the trailers, said, "You could hear them hollering, but there was no panic. Everyone just tried to help until the crowds came."

The tornado first hit Cooper's trailer park, ripped through Carter's trailer park nearby, then headed away from the city, said a spokesman for Natchitoches' Civil Defense agency.

"There's not too much left to the area but debris," he said.

Police said another tornado damaged a service station and grocery store in Atlanta, a tiny Winn Parish town about 20 miles east of Natchitoches.

A number of trees also were uprooted, but no injuries were reported at Atlanta.

Soviets explode nuclear device

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — An underground explosion in the 100-kiloton range was recorded today from the Soviet Union's nuclear testing area in Siberia, the Uppsala seismological institution reported.

First smog alert called

The first smog episode of the season brought some irritation to residents of the West End Tuesday, but the immediate area around Pomona was spared.

Air pollutants caused a first stage episode of 20 parts per million parts of air late in the afternoon in Upland, Montclair and Cucamonga, according to the San Bernardino County Air Pollution District.

Smog may return to the valley again this afternoon, and this time there is a good chance it will cover the Los Angeles County part of the valley.

Air pollution officials say the smog is caused by warm weather, coupled with lack of movement.

Weather

Continued warm today with chance of light smog throughout the valley. High today 86, low tonight 49, high Thursday 82. The high Tuesday was 86 and the overnight low was 49. Thursday's sunrise 5:12, sunset 6:28.

NIGHT LIGHTS

Lightning flashes in the sky over the Washington Monument Tuesday night as thundershowers moved over the nation's Capital from Virginia. The showers helped break the hot weather which brought temperatures in the 90s for the last several days.

Some violence reported

Rubber workers strike industry's 'Big Four'

CLEVELAND (AP) — The United Rubber Workers struck the rubber industry's Big Four nationwide today despite a last-minute Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. offer that included an unlimited cost-of-living adjustment.

The relatively calm strike was marred when firebombs were thrown at a Marysville, Ohio, plant. No injury was reported in the incident at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. facility. Plant manager Gary Cormany said the firebombs, confirmed by a sheriff's deputy, ignited blazes outside the plant's fenced entrance and near the gatehouse inside the fence.

Master contracts that expired at midnight with Firestone, Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., B.F. Goodrich Co. and Uniroyal Inc. covered about 60,000 of the URW's 190,000 members.

Peter Bommarito, URW international president, said Firestone's proposed total hourly wage increase of $1.15 over three years, 60 cents of it in the first year, "is short on what we need for a cost-of-living wage catchup for 1976 alone."

Firestone said its offer was "in the best interests of the employes, the country's continuing economic recovery and the company." Any settlement with Firestone would set the pattern for the rest of the Big Four.

The strike, the second nationwide shutdown in U.S. industry within a month, was expected to have little immediate effect outside the Big Four. Auto makers said they had stockpiled enough tires to last up to four weeks, depending on the type of car and the rate of production.

But the car makers also said a lengthy strike would cut into operations at some point because assembly lines require such rubber parts as hoses, floormats, belts, and gaskets as well as tires.

Bommarito said the URW's total economic demands represented a 42 per cent increase over the current average package of $9.05 per hour that includes wages of $5.50.

Negotiations with Firestone broke up at 2 a.m. and were scheduled to resume this afternoon.

Besides the strike, the URW also launched a worldwide plea for a consumer boycott of Firestone products.

George W. Wakefield, city attorney for West Covina and legal counsel for the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG), is the new San Dimas city attorney.

The City Council voted 5-0 Tuesday night on Wakefield's appointment following an executive session. The council also agreed to change its meetings from Monday to Tuesday nights to fit into the new attorney's schedule.

Wakefield will succeed Norm Oliver who had served as legal counsel to San Dimas for 12 years.

Oliver was fired April 8, charged with collusion with three fired planning commissioners by Mayor Marvin Ersher and Councilmen Terry Dipple and Phil Wax. Councilmen Jim Lough and Jim McLean dissented from the vote for termination of Oliver.

Ironically, Wakefield was one of five attorneys suggested by Oliver to assume his tasks as legal adviser to the council which fired him.

In addition to the five submitted by Oliver, the council also interviewed Eugene Demchuk of the firm of Maroney, Demchuk and Brant in Upland and Graham Ritchie of Los Angeles.

Wakefield is a partner in the law firm of Burke, Williams and Sorensen in Los Angeles. The firm specializes in legal work for municipal governments, counties and public agencies.

He serves as city attorney for the cities of Alhambra, West Covina and Azusa and is general counsel for SCAG, the regional organization that distributes federal and state funds. He is active in the city attorneys' section of the League of California Cities and has worked with the County Supervisors Association of California.

Wakefield began his career as a deputy in the Legislative Counsel Bureau in Sacramento, the bill drafting agency for the state legislature. From 1942 to 1967, he was employed in the County Counsel's office of Los Angeles County, and served as chief deputy counsel for Los Angeles County from 1957 to 1967.

During that time, he also served as the county's legislative representative in Sacramento.

In 1968, he joined the Los Angeles law firm and has since that date served as city attorney for West Covina and Azusa. He also serves as general counsel for the redevelopment agencies in the two cities.

Wakefield resides in Pasadena.

The council, meanwhile, agreed to change its regular meeting nights to accommodate the work load of Wakefield. Rather than meeting on the second and fourth Mondays of the month, the council will convene on the second and fourth Tuesdays.

Ersher explained that the change must be done by city ordinance effective in June and until that time the council will convene on Monday during May, adjourn for lack of a quorum and reconvene on Tuesday.

The San Dimas Planning Commission currently meets on the first Tuesday and third Wednesday. If it is agreeable to commission members, their meetings will change to the first and third Wednesdays.

The council will meet Monday, April 26, as usual.

CMC gets $100,000 donation from bank

The largest corporate pledge ever made to Claremont Men's College was announced today by President Jack L. Stark.

Security Pacific National Bank informed college officials that the bank intends to contribute $100,000 to CMC over the next five years.

Richard J. Flamson, president of Security Pacific Corp., presented Stark with a $20,000 check, representing the first installment on the pledge, at a recent dinner.

In making the presentation, Flamson said the bank's gift indicates the continuing interest and support of the college's educational program.

In addition to their fiancial support, bank executives have held numerous meetings with both students and faculty. The sessions, both on the campus and in the bank's corporate headquarters, have served to acquaint economic majors with current trends in banking and finance and to discuss career opportunities.

Drugs linked to pool drowning

A young Claremont man, found floating in the family swimming pool April 5, drowned as the result of "acute heroin-morphine intoxication," the Los Angeles County Coroner's Office reported.

The victim was Paul Michael Passarelli, 19, who was found in the pool fully clothed by his brother, Louis Christopher Passarelli. Attempts to revive the victim failed and he was pronounced dead by a physician summoned there.

Passarelli's death was ruled to have been accidental after the autopsy results were made final, a coroner's spokesman said. A fight he had been involved in 40 minutes before had nothing to do with it, the autopsy showed.

Bill assuring citizen arms hits setback

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state Senate committee is blocking an attempt to put the right to bear arms and a ban on future gun-control laws into the California Constitution.

But the author, Sen. H.L. Richardson, R-Arcadia, said Tuesday he would seek the single vote he needs to get the bill to the Senate floor, and try again next week.

The vote of the 11-member Senate Judiciary Committee was 5-2 with four members not voting.

The proposed constitutional amendment would guarantee every Californian "the right to keep and bear arms" except as restricted by present laws.

These include the registration of purchases from gun shops, a waiting period for gun purchases, bans on gun ownership by felons and insane persons, and mandatory prison sentences for felonies involving guns.

Any future restriction would require a new constitutional amendment and public vote.

Richardson said the bill is aimed at neutralizing such movements as the handgun ban amendment.

The initiative would ban most private ownership of handguns, exempting only collectors, gun clubs and specified members of law enforcement and military organizations.

Voting for the bill were Sens. Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach; George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach; Donald Grunsky, R-Watsonville; Robert Presley, D-Riverside, and Robert Stevens, R-Los Angeles.

Voting against it were Sens. David Roberti, D-Los Angeles, and Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park.

Absent or not voting were Sens. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland; Omer Rains, D-Ventura; Alan Robbins, D-Van Nuys, and George Zenovich, D Fresno.

It is SCA 49.

Former Pomonans Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Tate are both critically ill in Hoag Presbyterian Hospital at Newport Beach.

Tate was the used car department manager for Tate Motors for 30 years prior to his retirement. He is the brother of Warren R. Tate, owner of the Tate Motors dealership in Pomona and now a Newport Beach resident.

Mrs. Tate owned the Ora-Addies women's apparel shop in Pomona for many years and was active in many organizations.

The Tates have three children.

Hayakawa pulls ahead of Finch in GOP poll

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former college president S.I. Hayakawa tops a list of Republican candidates seeking the U.S. senatorial nomination, a statewide survey of GOP voters reported Tuesday.

About one in three Republicans surveyed by the California Poll in late March said they favored Hayakawa, the noted semanticist who vaulted into the public eye in 1968 when he opposed a student strike at San Francisco State College.

Hayakawa for the first time moved ahead of former Lt. Gov. Robert Finch, who was favored by 28 per cent of the 337 Republicans surveyed. Congressman Alphonzo Bell was in third position with 11 per cent, followed by former lieutenant governor and state senator John Harmer with 5 per cent.

Hayakawa apparently benefited by Congressman Barry Goldwater Jr.'s decision in February not to enter the senate race. Although he was never an announced candidate, Goldwater was a strong favorite and Hayakawa trailed in third position.

However, the poll found that Goldwater's withdrawal has left more Republican voters — nearly one in four — undecided about which candidate to support.

The survey also found that Hayakawa is better known among Republican rank-and-file than Finch, Bell or Harmer. More than two thirds of the survey said they "knew something about" Hayakawa, but only 52 per cent knew something about Finch, a former Nixon cabinet member.

Forty per cent of the survey said they had never heard of Bell, and 64 per cent said they had never heard of Harmer.

News briefs

Brown receives Bradley backing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The presidential candidacy of California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has gained the official support of Mayor Tom Bradley.

The governor flew into Los Angeles Tuesday to accept Bradley's enndorsement, and heard the city's chief executive praise him for bringing "a new spirit to Sacramento."

Bradley said he believes Brown can bring to the people "a new sense of confidence and faith in the governmental structure and in the elected leaders of the country."

The occasion brought two longtime political adversaries together. Bradley and Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally, who have frequently endorsed rival candidates, this time joined forces behind Brown, as have other black lawmakers.

Plan curbing plea bargaining gains

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state Senate committee has approved severe restrictions on plea bargaining, the practice of allowing an accused person to plead guilty in return for more lenient treatment.

The bill by Sen. Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, was sent to the Senate floor Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee. The vote was 6-2, the minimum majority in the 11-member committee.

Carpenter said it would ban the promise of a lighter sentence in return for a guilty plea. It would continue to allow the dropping of other charges against a defendant who pleaded guilty, provided the reasons were entered in the record.

PUC deadlocks on smog plan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A proposal aimed at easing Los Angeles' air pollution during periods of heavy smog has stalled before the California Public Utilities Commission.

It would require Pacific Gas & Electric Co. to provide natural gas to Southern California Edison Co. for electrical power generating, in exchange for fuel oil, when smog gets heavy in the Los Angeles region.

The measure deadlocked on a 2-2 vote Tuesday with President D.W. Holmes absent because of illness.

Panel okays age limit for judges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State judges would have to retire when they reach 70 years of age under legislation approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The constitutional amendment and an enabling statute, both by Sen. Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park, requires approval by two-thirds of both houses and a majority of the voters.

Present law does not require judges to retire at 70, but encourages them to do so by giving them larger pensions — 65 to 75 per cent of their salary, instead of 50, in many cases.

Mandatory retirement was endorsed by the state Judicial Council. Its spokesman, John Smock, said Tuesday that Song's legislation would permit able judges to continue to serve on assignment after retirement, as they can now.

But he said mandatory retirement would spare chief judges from the distasteful job of kicking senile judges off the bench.

Officials study quake forecast

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officials are studying what they call the first credible prediction that the Los Angeles area could be shaken by a major earthquake.

Stephanie Bradfield, spokeswoman for the State Office of Emergency Services in Sacramento, said a quake forecast from the California Institute of Technology issued Tuesday "is the first prediction from what we call a credible source" the state has received since its Earthquake Prediction Council was established 3½ years ago.

The council was created after alarmist predictions came from soothsayers and amateur seismologists, including forecasts that half of California would slide into the Pacific Ocean.

The council was formed to judge credibility of predictions and Ms. Bradfield, as she prefers to be called, said it would meet "within the next 10 days" to discuss the prediction made by Dr. James Whitcomb, a Caltech geophysicist who said there is "evidence that an earthquake somewhere between magnitude 5.5 and 6.5 may occur within a year" near the 1971 Sylmar quake that took 64 lives.

She said the council, made up from people of the top seismological laboratories in the state, "will tell us whether or not they feel it will happen and the chance."

Whitcomb predicted that the temblor, which he estimated would register 5.5 to 6.5 on the Richter Scale, would center near the origin of the 1971 San Fernando Valley quake that killed 64 persons.

Whitcomb said his forecast is based on a slowdown of seismic waves — vibrations from small quakes or blastings — observed over a wide area north of Los Angeles. Such changes in the velocity of seismic waves have been known to precede quakes.

Using the same wave-velocity method, Whitcomb predicted that a quake would occur in the Riverside area in 1974. There was such a jolt, but of smaller size than he estimated.

While local Los Angeles authorities expressed little alarm at the report, the state spokeswoman said the OES as a result of the prediction council's March 30 evaluation of socalled "Palmdale Bulge" data sent letters to all local government agencies in the state, "urging them to review and update emergency plans."

Spotlight on area crime

Student attacked in sleep

A Los Angeles youth was reported in fair condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital after he was attacked while asleep in his room Tuesday at Webb School in Claremont.

The victim, Chauncey J. Medberry IV, 16, suffered a possible skull fracture, scalp cuts and a broken finger in the incident. Forty-nine stitches were needed to close the gashes in his scalp.

The youth told Claremont police he was asleep in his room in the dorm of the private school at 1175 W. Base Line Road when he was awakened at 3 a.m. by someone beating him. He said he grappled with the person who was striking him with an object of some kind.

The attacker fled out the door and was seen walking down the hall by a youth in the next room who had been awakened by the noise. He was able to give only a vague description.

Meanwhile, Medberry went to the dorm's bathroom and washed the blood from his head and face before authorities arrived. He was unable to offer any reason for the attack or to name a suspect, police said.

Late Tuesday night, however, an unidentified intruder was seen near the dorm bathroom. He appeared to be carrying a metal cylinder in one hand and fled from the building when he was seen.

The intruder was described as white, 15 to 20 years old, with long, blond hair. He wore a windbreaker, dark trousers and tennis shoes.

Gas station holdup

Two men, after threatening an attendant, grabbed money and fled in a robbery Tuesday afternoon at the Go Lo Self-Service Station, 1724 S. Euclid Ave. in ONTARIO, police reported.

Ruben Espaza told police that two men, both dressed in khaki shirts and white windbreakers drove their pickup truck into the station and tried to start the gas pump to fill the truck's gas tank.

Decorator died of strangulation

NEW YORK (AP) — Nationally known interior decorator Michael Greer, whose professional credits included work at the White House for three presidents, was murdered by strangulation, the medical examiner says.

He said he explained to the men that he had to reset the gas pump to get it started. He said the men then accused him of being a "smart aleck" and paid him for the gas.

He said as he gave them change, the men demanded $5. He said they threatened him and he gave them $5.

Kidnaped, let go

Two ski-masked men, for no apparent reason, kidnaped a 13-year-old UPLAND youth riding his bicycle home from school and then dropped him off unharmed in Lytle Creek Canyon Tuesday afternoon, police reported.

Police said the youth was riding home from school about 12:45 p.m. Tuesday when two men in a green van pulled up beside him. The youth told officers the men grabbed his bicycle threw it in the back of the van and forced him into the truck. He said the men drove him to Lytle Creek and let him go.

He described the men as whites, 18 or 19. He said one of the men was wearing a green ski mask, a blue striped T-shirt and blue jeans. The other man was wearing a yellow ski mask with blue dots, a brown leather jacket, and blue jeans.

Doctors walk off job

LOS ANGELES (AP) — About 1,200 residents and interns at the three main Los Angeles County hospitals walked off their jobs this morning, doctor spokesmen said, but the immediate effect on medical services was unknown.

Pickets went up at County-USC Medical Center at about 8:30 a.m. and picket lines were to be formed at Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital and Harbor General Hospital, said Larry Kilty, executive director of the Joint Council of Interns and Residents of Los Angeles County. He said emergency care would continue during the strike.

"The strike will go on as long as the county continues to act irresponsibly about settling the issues of patient care," Kilty said.

Kidnaped banker safe after $150,000 paid

NEWHALL, Calif. (AP) — A bank president was safe at home today, and authorities sought kidnapers who collected $150,000 ransom for his safe return.

James D. McMahon, 50, of Valencia, was found bound and gagged Tuesday afternoon at a motel in the San Fernando Valley area of Los Angeles after a telephone tip from an anonymous woman caller, investigators said.

McMahon, president of the Santa Clarita National Bank in Newhall, a suburban community northeast of Los Angeles, did not show up for work Tuesday morning. A clerk at the bank later took a call from a man who said McMahon had been kidnaped.

The caller demanded $100,000, said sheriff's spokesman Chet Ballew.

Raymond Hale, 49, the bank's operations manager, told deputies he collected the amount and, following the caller's instructions, took it to a nearby drug store.

Hale said he there received a call at a pay phone that instructed him to go to another location. After a number of such calls and moves, he delivered the money. But he got another call demanding an additional $50,000.

Hale obtained an additional $50,000 from a Sepulveda branch of the bank and delivered that, deputies said. He was then instructed to return to the Valencia branch and wait for a call that would tell him where to find McMahon.

'You got 'First Mama'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford tried out for the first time her own, portable Citizens Band radio.

"You got 'First Mama,'" she told nearly any citizens band radio enthusiast willing to talk and tuned to Channel 12 here Tuesday.

Two CB operators who called the First Lady identified themselves as "Starship Enterprise" and "Peg Leg Charlie."

Mrs. Ford spoke in a crisp voice but halted occasionally to consult a list of citizens band radio terms.

She said she picked the handle "First Mama" at the suggestion of comedian Flip Wilson. A "handle" is an identifying name used in CB conversations.

The radio was a gift from her family, arranged by daughter Susan.

Mrs. Ford was in San Antonio campaigning for her husband, who faces Republican challenger Ronald Reagan in the May 1 Texas primary.

'By George, she got it'

NEW YORK (AP) — While Henry Higgins was worrying about getting to the church on time, Eliza Doolittle was in the hospital having stitches for a gash on her head.

Christine Andreas, who plays Miss Doolittle in the current Broadway production of "My Fair Lady," was sitting in her dressing room shortly before curtain time Tuesday night when a chunk of plaster fell from the ceiling and struck her on the head.

She went to New York Hospital and her understudy, Vickie Patrik, filled in as the tutored, Cockney flower vendor.

Seymour Krawitz, spokesman for the production, said he expected Miss Andreas to return by today's matinee performance.

Governor's trial delayed

BALTIMORE (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Herbert F. Murray has granted a four-week delay in the start of Gov. Marvin Mandel's trial on political corruption charges.

The judge met for several hours Tuesday with prosecutors and lawyers for Mandel and five codefendants who were indicted on charges of participating in a scheme involving mail fraud, bribery and other activities prohibited by federal racketeering statutes.

Arnold M. Weiner, the governor's lawyer, had requested a three-week postponement of the May 3 trial date, saying the last-minute activities of the state legislature had thrown the governor behind schedule in his review of legislation.

TV series on America?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Norman Lear, one of commercial television's most successful producers, is beginning to research a possible public television series, titled "Portrait of America."

Henry Loomis, president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, announced Tuesday that eight one-hour programs are tentatively proposed.

Lear is the producer, among other programs, of "All in the Family."

Gets year in prison

CHICAGO (AP) — Former President Nixon's Illinois campaign manager was sentenced to one year and one day in prison after he pleaded guilty to a charge of bank fraud.

William H. Rentschler, 50, of suburban Lake Forest, was named in a 23-count indictment in November 1973 for allegedly bilking 28 financial institutions out of $1.4 million.

Twenty-two of the counts were dismissed after he pleaded guilty Tuesday before Judge Alfred Y. Kirkland.

Backseat driver required

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California issues millions of drivers licenses each year — but there's only one which requires a backseat driver at all times.

The Department of Motor Vehicles said Tuesday the license was issued to a man with no peripheral vision. The license requires that his wife be in the car at all times.

While the wife is a non-driver, the DMV said she is "great at nagging her husband about potential hazards."

Ford gets $11,631 tax refund

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford, who paid $94,568.93 in 1975 federal income taxes, only waited a couple of weeks to get a refund check of $11,631.07 from the Internal Revenue Service.

Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, released on Tuesday a detailed report on Ford's income tax return, showing the President made $251,991.24 last year and had taxable income of $204,605.83.

Nessen said Ford's tax forms were filed earlier this month and that he received his refund check during the past week.

When asked why Ford "seems to get speedier service (from the IRS) than the rest of us," Nessen gave no answer other than to smile.

Nessen said Ford paid $38,200 more in federal taxes in 1975 than he did the previous year.

Gross income included the President's salary, his $50,000 expense account and $1,991.24 in savings account interest, small dividends and a net return on rental property the Fords own in Virginia, Michigan and Colorado.

"The President hopes this will be a model for the degree of detail on tax information that all candidates should issue to the voters whom they are asking to elevate them to the presidency," Nessen said.

Nessen said $106,200 tax was withheld from Ford's weekly paycheck.

Ford claimed $750 personal exemptions for himself and his wife and three of his four children. He did not claim son Steve, who is working parttime on a ranch in California.

When the federal taxes are added to state and local tax payments of $11,941.91, Nessen said, they accounted for 42 per cent of the family's gross income — the same percentage as in 1974 when the Ford's gross income was some $104,000 lower because the President had earned a White House salary for only five months of the year.

The Ford's 1975 state, local and other taxes was nearly double the 1974 figure of $5,985. The President's higher income largely accounted for that, Nessen said.

Of his $50,000 expense account, Ford deducted $23,000 as business expenses. The largest single item in this category was the cost of buying and mailing 35,000 Christmas cards.

60 flee hotel fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Firemen evacuated some 60 residents of a Hollywood-area hotel that was damaged slightly by a predawn blaze which engulfed a recording studio next door, causing damages estimated at $250,000.

One worker in the one-story Pro Audio Co. also managed to escape the fire without injury, fire department spokesman Bill Baird said.

He said some 75 fire fighters fought the blaze, which broke out at 3:30 a.m. and caused slight damage to the third floor of the Colehurst Hotel.

Cause of the fire is under investigation, Baird added.

Arm break adds to Martha's illness

NEW YORK (AP) — Martha Mitchell, who has been under treatment for a painful bone cancer since last fall, now is a patient at the Hospital for Special Surgery. She was admitted after breaking her arm.

Mrs. Mitchell, 57, entered Sloan-Kettering Memorial Cancer Center here last November. She was released from the center several weeks ago, but rehospitalized at Special Surgery for the fracture. Hospital officials would not say when she entered Special Surgery.

She previously underwent surgery there on a broken hip.

Mrs. Mitchell's physician, Dr. Klaus Mayer, confirmed that she is hospitalized, but declined to say anything else about her condition.

Mrs. Mitchell and her husband, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, have been separated since 1973.

A report in the May issue of McCall's magazine pictures Mrs. Mitchell as thin, weak and fighting for her life in self-imposed silence.

Many other health program changes proposed

Panel urges heroin treatment program in S.B. County

By L.T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

San Bernardino County supervisors should consider asking the federal government to allow the use of heroin to treat addicts as an alternative to the present methadone program.

This is one of the recommendations made by the county Grand Jury's health care services agency committee in an interim report to supervisors.

The report, released this month, also recommends that methadone treatment be conducted on the clinic premises and no client leave the treatment area with additional dosages.

Regarding the heroin use, the committee reported that methadone is a stronger and more addictive drug than heroin, thus making it more difficult for addicts to discontinue the use of methadone than it would be to cure their addiction to heroin.

"Methadone merely makes an addict functional so that he does not have to engage in criminal activity in order to support his habit. However, the treatment does not assist the client to restore himself to a normal state of health. The purpose of the program seems oriented toward protecting society rather than rehabilitating addicts.

"This (heroin) concept has been used successfully in Great Britain and has recently been recommended by the California state health director," stated the report.

Regarding the restriction of methadone treatment to the clinic premises, the committee stated that law enforcement and probation officers reported methadone is being sold and dealt throughout the community.

"The committee recognizes the necessity for the clinics to remain open on a seven-day-a-week basis if this recommendation is followed but feels the advantages outweigh the inconvenience and additional expense.

"There is considerable danger of accidental ingestion by someone other than the client when dosages are allowed to leave the clinic," the committee noted.

The committee also suggested the methadone clinic counselors be allowed to make home visits, handle job referral and placement of clients and assist in the formation of educational goals designed to help the client restore himself to society.

"During repeated visits to the methadone clinics there was little evidence of counseling to clients. The staff is not being utilized to its fullest potential and a valuable resource is being wasted. The staff is more than ample to meet the increased requirements for counseling."

The committee recommended the program's director be required to follow the county's affirmative action program when hiring counselors so they can more closely reflect the racial backgrounds of the clients.

"The majority of the clients of the methadone program are Mexican-American, yet only one of the counselors is a Chicano. In addition to language barriers, the sociological factors relating to the Chicano lifestyle can only be understood by a person who is intimately involved with that culture."

The Grand Jury's study group also recommended a committee be formed to screen applicants to the methadone program. This should consist of the program director, a physician, probation officer and a minority representative.

"It is the feeling of the committee that the current method of selecting clients is too lenient and allows for considerable abuse of the program," the report stated.

In another area of county health care, the committee recommended the health care services agency make greater use of physician assistants and nurse practitioners in the county to alleviate problems caused by the lack of qualified physicians in remote areas.

Specifically, the committee suggested these persons be included on the staffs of ambulatory care clinics.

Members asked county supervisors to direct the health care services agency to review the physician assistance training program at the County Medical Center with the intent of revising it so the physician assistants may be used wherever feasible within the county.

"Since the inception of the program at the County Medical Center in January 1971, not one graduate has been hired by county government. There are several area within the county where physicians assistants can be used," the report stated.

The committee also noted that studies have clearly indicated the use of a physician assistant and nurse practitioner can enable a physician to increase his productivity by 60 per cent at less than 40 per cent the cost of a physician.

In its opening statement, the committee noted the health care services agency appeared to be functioning satisfactorily under the agency system and there were numerous examples of cooperation between its departments which have increased the effectiveness of services to the public.

"The committee has become increasingly aware of the low priority given by the Board of Supervisors to the fiscal needs of the health care services agency. We realize that all areas of county government are being forced to operate under considerable budgetary restrictions, but feel the area of health care is one that, for the safety of the citizens of the county, should not be compromised," it stated.

County supervisors received the reports for study. No action has been taken.

Alger books now popular

NATICK, Mass. (AP) — Horatio Alger Jr. is very much in vogue on university campuses, according to Max Goldberg, president emeritus of the Horatio Alger Society.

"Students are now reading the Alger books as part of sociology courses," Goldberg said. "Just a couple of weeks ago, I had a college student from Ohio visit me. His thesis is going to be on Alger.

"Our Horatio Alger Society now has thousands of members," Goldberg added.

Pomona to re-examine inn denial

Pomona City Council will reconsider its denial of a dance permit for the Do Drop Inn, 905 W. Second St. because it was presented with a petition signed by 268 persons supporting the owner's request for the permit.

The council two weeks ago denied the permit unanimously on the grounds that police officials recommended against issuing the permit because of police problems in the area.

Attorney Ken Davis, representing owners Phillip and Lois Brevard, noted that the city has granted similar permits to more than a dozen Pomona establishments, all of which serve alcohol while the Do Drop Inn does not.

"They just want a dance permit for two nights a week," said Davis Monday night.

Davis intimated that the Police Department's recommendation might be racially biased because of the low percentage of black police officers and the high percentage of black customers at the restaurant.

The new hearing was scheduled for May 10.

CGS alumni to honor 3

The Claremont Graduate School Alumni Association will honor a former CGS president and two alumni at its annual dinner Saturday night.

To be honored are Robert J. Bernard, CGS president emeritus; Bhekh Bahadur Thapa, finance minister of Nepal; and Jerry Voorhis, author, former executive of the Cooperative League of U.S.A. and former congressman.

The dinner will be at 6 p.m. in the Claremont Colleges Faculty House. Reservations may still be made both for dinner and for a concert by the Romeros in Garrison Theater at 8:15 p.m. The alumni association has reserved a block of seats for the performance.

Bernard will receive a special award of appreciation for his work over the last half century for CGS and the other Claremont Colleges. He was assistant to James A. Blaisdell, founder of the group plan, from 1917 to 1927, when Blaisdell was Pomona College president.

When the group was organized in 1925, Bernard became secretary of the central organization, now Claremont University Center. He was managing director of the center from 1944 to 1959 and was president from 1959 to 1963 when he retired.

Thapa and Voorhis will be given the annual Distinguished Alumni Award.

Thapa earned a Ph.D. in economics at CGS in 1966. While a student, he was also secretary of finance and secretary of planning for the government in Nepal. Since graduating, Thapa has become both minister of finance and minister of general administration of Nepal.

Voorhis was a member of the first graduating class at CGS, earning a master's degree in education in 1928. He was headmaster of Voorhis School for Boys in San Dimas for 10 years after graduation and became a congressman in 1937, serving 10 years.

From 1947 until he retired in 1970, Voorhis was executive director of the Cooperative League. He is the author of seven books, including "The Strange Case of Richard Milhaus Nixon."

A display depicting the history of the graduate school has been set up at Honnold Library on the campus and will be on view for alumni from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7:30 to 8 p.m. Saturday.

Prices Good Thru Tuesday, April 27. While Stocks Last! We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities. No Sales to Dealers.

CITRUS COLLEGE student body membership fees were increased from $10 to $12.50 last week.

This is the first increase in student fees at the college in over 20 years and was prompted mostly by a doubling in insurance premimums. Among the services covered by the fee are health services, accident insurance, student awards and scholarship, student aid and a wide range of activities in the fields of music, art, drama, speech, journalism, vocational technology and athletics.

The Office of Continuing Education at CAL POLY POMONA is sponsoring a two-day workshop Saturday and Sunday at Kellogg West for couples and single people who want to learn practical communication techniques to develop more satisfying intimate relationships.

The workshop will be conducted by Carol and John Bacheller, counselors who have trained with Dr. George Bach, author of "Creative Aggression."

Persons interested in information on the workshop, "Constructive Use of Conflict in Intimate Relationships," may call 595-7511, ext. 272.

LOMA LINDA UNIVERSITY Medical Center will begin a weight control program on Sunday at 7:30 p.m., according to V. Joyce Lim, coordinator of the medical center health education department.

Participants will meet for four consecutive nights and then once weekly until July 26. The initial fee of $10 is due the first night of the course.

The course will stress cooking, meal planning, exercise and motivational aspects of proper eating.

The public is invited to the classes in the Fellowship Hall of the Loma Linda University Seventh-day Adventist Church in Loma Linda.

The CAL POLY POMONA Recreation Club will sponsor a competitive car rallye and pancake breakfast open to the public on Sunday.

Scheduled on the campus, the breakfast will begin at 9 a.m. and the rallye at 11 a.m. The rallye is expected to last three hours and required two-man teams. Prizes will be awarded.

Proceeds will be used to assist with costs of student participation in educational conferences off the campus. For registration or other information, interested persons may call the Cal Poly Pomona recreation office, 598-4623.

Valley briefs

STREET LIGHTS — Street lights in various unlit areas of Alta Loma have been ordered turned on, said San Bernardino County Supervisor Daniel Mikesell.

"It is a long standing county regulation that new subdivisions be initially equipped with street lights. This policy has been uniformly applied by the county Planning Commission. As time passes and people move into a new area, it is only natural for them to request that lights be turned on," he said.

READING SPEED — A free demonstration on how persons can increase their reading speed will be given April 28 at 7 p.m. at the West End YMCA.

Ron Rosenwasser, a reading specialist and president of Educational and Industrial Research, Inc., will give the demonstration.

Reservations may be obtained by phoning the YMCA office at 986-5847 or Rosenwasser at (213) 559-5700.

R.H. man admits slaying

Charles Anthony Rector, 22-year-old Rowland Heights man, is scheduled for sentencing May 7 on a charge of second-degree murder in the slaying 3½ years ago of Lee Thierman, 21-year-old Whittier resident whose body was found dumped along Grand Avenue near the Diamond Bar Country Club.

Rector pleaded guilty before Pomona Superior Court Judge Howard D. McClain who scheduled his probation hearing and sentencing for May 7. The young man was ordered to remain in custody in lieu of $50,000 bail.

Authorities said that Thierman was shot to death June 4, 1972, inside a Hacienda Heights residence by Rector who feared the victim was going to inform about the group's drug use. The body was found by a passing motorist.

Shortly after the slaying, Thierman's wife, Kathy Ann Thierman, 18, and a friend, William Michael Lanz, 21, were charged with the murder but those charges were dismissed when then Pomona Municipal Court Judge Norman Vroman ruled evidence against them was insufficient.

Jane Fonda at Poly

Actress Jane Fonda will discuss current political issues Thursday at Cal Poly Pomona.

The program, starting at 11 a.m., will be held at the University Theater. Her appearance is sponsored by the Associated Students and University Union speakers committee.

The public is invited and admission is free. The actress is campaigning for her husband, Tom Hayden, in his race for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate.

Police hand out 1,000 Easter gifts

Richard Tefank, president of the Pomona Police Officers Association, reported that police officers distributed more than 1,000 Easter baskets this year in Pomona.

The candy-filled baskets are passed out each year by Pomona police officers, who solicit the candy from local merchants.

Tefank said the association hopes to expand the program next year to reach children in all parts of the city.

Full bilingual program gets push in Pomona

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

A full bilingual program is top priority for preschool through 12th grade students in Pomona's public schools.

In a unanimous vote Tuesday night, the school board agreed to hire a bilingual-bicultural program expediter as soon as possible, step up efforts to determine students' languages by checking homes, recruit a qualified staff and begin immediately to plan the program.

In a second unanimous vote, the board instructed the administration to return to the May 18 regular board meeting with personnel, program and budget estimates.

The direction was clear. The board intends the full bilingual instruction to begin in September in compliance with board and state policy and the U.S. Supreme Court Decision (Lau vs. Nichols) which requires public schools to instruct children in the language of the home.

Board actions followed requests made by Rafael Chavarria, spokesman for Pomona Unified School District's Concerned Parents Committee. He asked that the district make a commitment to use all available resources to recruit Mexican-Americans for employment for the bilingual program next year, and also to achieve ethnic balance on the district teaching staff.

Currently the district employes 78 Spanish surnamed teachers. However, when testing for bilingual abilities, "that number dwindles rapidly," admitted Ray L. Thomas, assistant superintendent of educational services.

David Evans, assistant superintendent of personnel services, said approximately 30 new teachers would be recruited for next year, probably all for the bilingual program.

Chavarria also asked the board to establish a Mexican-American parent task force to interview and make suggestions in the final hiring of personnel.

His last suggestion was that by next September, the district implement the full bilingual-bicultural program in five elementary schools and all senior high schools, that the staffs be bilingual-bicultural and the programs meet state law requirements for non and limited English-speaking students.

Evans told the board he "needed all the help" he could get, that he would be working with the district's Affirmative Action Committee in selecting the new people, but certainly would work with a parent task force.

Alfred Ramirez of Pomona cautioned the board that "these programs have to be met fiscally, by the taxpayer. No one who is rational and sensible opposes services that meet legitimate needs."

But, he charged, bilingual programs do not. Ramirez said Spanish surnamed children of school age who do not speak English are not American born.

However, all board members were in agreement on the importance of the bilingual program, and on meeting the requirements of the court decision.

"I confess my impatience (with the district's not implementing a full bilingual program) and I can understand the impatience of some of the parents," said board member, Allen Braswell.

He read minutes from a June 12, 1973 board meeting which stated: "The need to provide all learners with an early opportunity to experience academic success through their home language . . . thus insuring educational survival" shall be the district's bilingual-bicultural commitment.

"That was three years ago," Braswell continued, "and virtually no effort has been made to implement that commitment. I do not blame the parents who are angry. I join them.

"I personally am committed to this program for next year. I do not want to wait. I am ready to move. We need to make a hard decision now to implement what this board passed three years ago."

The board agreed. The audience applauded.

Board President Mary Montes said she felt the position of program expediter was an extremely important position.

"I would like that person to be responsive to the superintendent, with line staff authority. I think it would be desirable if that individual held a valid teaching credential."

Board member Gene Whitlock disagreed. "The expediter should have free access to the superintendent, but we should not destroy the intra-departmental confidence," he said.

Existing bilingual-bicultural programs in Pomona's public schools, set up eight years ago with federal funding, were never criticized in the discussions. However, it was evident from attitudes of both parents and board members, that the federal programs fall far short of what is desired for Pomona's non and limited English-speaking children.

Chino water hike plan awash in criticism; decision stalled

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Faced with protests from some angry residents, the Chino City Council Tuesday night postponed action on proposed water rate increases until May 4.

Councilman Angel Martinez moved to table action on the matter after seven residents told the council that water rates already are too high.

"A lot of people are very unhappy about this," said Martinez. "We should postpone the increases until we can discuss it at a study session."

The council agreed to the delay, although Mayor Bob McLeod and Councilwoman Eileen Carter felt the city's operating costs for water have risen and increases are necessary.

"We surely can't do without water," said Mrs. Carter. "It's customary for people to complain about new costs and then in the next breath demand more service."

Homeowners would be facing a 22 per cent boost in water rates if the increases eventually are approved. A monthly increase from $9.22 to $11.26 for average homeowner's using 3,000 cubic feet of water has been proposed by John Gerardi, public works director.

"Low users" of only 800 cubic feet of water will not be subjected to an increase. Their bills will remain at $3.50 per month. Commercial and industrial users' rates will jump $7 to $31.86, light agricultural users' rates would go up $24 to $107.86 and heavy agricultural users would pay $34 more, or $155.86.

Light and heavy agricultural users who water during nighttime "non-peak hours" would have slightly lower rates — and this was protested by several homeowners.

"Those users will have the availability of lower rates," said Ron Calvert, a Chino resident. He emphasized the fact that city officials would be unable to monitor whether they actually are watering during nighttime hours.

And Calvert said those heavy users should pay for an additional water meter that would record whether they are watering at night.

"The average homeowner pays through the nose, and larger users get a discount rate," complained Robert Wagner, another resident. "It's inconceivable the meter reader can monitor rates on night users."

Users will pay a quarter of a million to the city to cover $188,000 in costs, Wagner declared.

BICENTENNIAL FLAVOR

Chino Optimist Club members presented a marble plaque to the City of Chino Tuesday night to commemorate the nation's Bicentennial. The Bicentennial collage will be placed in the new Civic Center. From left are Mayor Bob McLeod, Optimists' president Tom Kyle and secretary George Balogh. Kyle said the collage was etched in marble by the Optimists.

$4,000 cash in seven months

Witness tells of gifts to defendant

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

A wealthy Ontario woman testified Tuesday that she had given murder trial defendant Samuel Jones a total of $4,000 in cash over a seven month period preceding the death of Raymond Meras and was paying for his attorney in West Valley Superior Court.

Mrs. Frances Taffolla of Ontario said that about two weeks prior to the slaying of Meras, an Ontario drug counselor, she had given defendant Jones $3,000 in cash. She also said she had given him approximately $1,000 more since meeting him at the Friendly Corners Bar in Ontario.

Jones is accused of slaying Meras who was found shot to death in his Sunkist Street home on Nov. 26. Police believe that Meras was shot to death and robbed of approximately $300.

Mrs. Taffolla told Judge Clifton L. Allen and the jury that she had inherited a large sum of money and also had won a settlement in a personal injury suit. She estimated she had $140,000 in the bank. She said that after meeting Jones in the Ontario bar she had given him cash, gifts, and paid for many of his meals.

Asked by Deputy Dist. Atty. James Faust how often she gave Jones money she said "every payday." She explained that she gave him from $10 to $150 every two weeks when her husband got paid.

Following Mrs. Taffolla's testimony, Ontario Detective Roy Cole took the stand to testify that during the murder investigation he had asked Mrs. Taffolla how much money Jones had a few days before the murder. He said she told him that Jones had no money at all.

Further, Cole rebutted testimony given by Mrs. Taffolla that the .22 long rifle shells she found in Jones room would not fit a .22 Derringer. Cole picked up the small two barrelled gun and easily dropped two .22 long rifle shells into the chamber.

In earlier testimony a San Bernardino County pathologist testified that Meras had died of a .22 caliber gunshot wound in the head. A criminalist testified that the bullet that killed Meras was a .22 long rifle.

Pomona family flees blaze; house ruined

A Pomona mother and her three young children escaped unhurt late Tuesday when fire virtually destroyed the home they were buying at 2433 Alder St.

Pomona Fire Chief John M. Fowlkes said the house was valued at $18,500. The loss estimate was $17,200 with $15,000 to the structure and $2,200 to the family's furnishings.

Fowlkes said it appeared the fire had started when clothes piled too close to the water heater ignited.

The occupant, Rosemary Johnson, told firemen her 5-year-old son ran to her to report fire in the hallway. She said she opened the door to the water heater room and flames exploded. She said she quickly got two other children out of the house. There were no injuries.

Fowlkes said there was a delay in reaching the Fire Department to report the fire because apparently someone tried to place the call through the long distance operator. He urged homeowners to post the Fire Department number and to dial direct in an emergency.

Five truckers help fight fire

A new pickup truck loaded with auto parts caught fire on the eastbound San Bernardino Freeway at White Avenue in Pomona Tuesday and five truckers stopped to fight the blaze with their portable extinguishers.

According to Pomona Fire Department reports, the truck was owned by Fair City Ford, 611 E. Holt Ave., Pomona, and driven by Kenneth Keen.

Firemen said a lighted cigarette flipped out by Keen may have set the blaze.

Loss estimates were approximately $800 to contents and $800 to the truck. There were no injuries. Time of the fire was 4:27 p.m.

Union wants to study it

Ontario delays refuse truck plan

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

The Ontario City Council Tuesday night delayed for at least two weeks a decision on changing from two-man to one-man refuse collection vehicles.

The city's administrative staff has urged the council to approve the one-man collection vehicles because they are safer, cheaper to operate and provide greater productivity than the two-man rear loader trucks.

Roger Hughbanks, city manager, said the recommendation followed a year's study on trash collection.

The matter was included on the City Council's Tuesday night agenda but Alex Rubalcava, staff representative for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes, requested a continuance for at least two weeks so union members could hold a "meet and confer" session with the city staff.

"The union position is that when we agreed to this (study), it was to jointly look into this and then come to a mutual agreement," said Rubalcava. "This has not happened. In two or three years we have met once. We want to meet with city officials and come up jointly with an agreement."

In response, Hughbanks said he was willing to discuss with employes any concerns they may have in implementing the one-man collection service.

Union and city offcials agreed to meet before the next City Council meeting. The matter is then expected to be on the next council agenda.

The city presently has three one-man side loaders and six two-man rear loaders for collecting refuse. City administrators propose changing to nine side loaders and retaining only one rear loader for special refuse collection within the next three years.

Officials stressed in their reports that conversion to one-man loading operations will not require the removal of any permanent employes. As the side loading vehicles are introduced, the refuse department may reduce its personnel through normal attrition or transfers to other city departments.

In other action, the council authorized the San Bernardino County Real Property Division to sell two, five-unit apartments and a duplex structure located within the city-county complex now being developed. The structures will have to be removed to allow for future city and county buildings.

The council also approved a request by the Pomona Community Chorus to hang a banner on Euclid Avenue to publicize a choral festival with Roger Wagner to be held May 8.

Departing Upland school chief appoints two new principals

By STEVE TABOR
PB Correspondent

In one of his final acts as superintendent of the Upland School District Bill R. Plaster named two new principals during a special school board meeting Tuesday night.

The board approved both appointees, Frank Migaiolo and Miss Roberta Rowland. Migaiolo was assigned the principalship at the Magnolia Elementary School and Miss Rowland was assigned to the Sycamore Elementary School.

Migaiolo's credentials include a B.A. degree from Fairmont State College and an M.A. degree from West Virginia University. He also has an administrative credential from Cal State Los Angeles and he has done graduate work at UCLA.

He has been a teacher in the Upland Schools since 1965 and was, at one time, an acting principal in the Upland schools.

Miss Rowland comes to the Upland School District after teaching in the Los Angeles Unified School District. She received her B.A. and M.A. Degrees from Cal State Los Angeles and has done graduate work at UCLA.

Miss Rowland has also been acting principal of Robert Hill Lane Elementary School in the Los Angeles Unified School District. She was a coordinator for Early Childhood Education Title I program and the Mentally Gifted Minors program all in Los Angeles.

The two new principals will assume their positions on July 1.

During the special meeting Plaster submitted his resignation from the superintendent's position of the Upland School District. Plaster had been superintendent of the 11-campus district since January 1973.

Plaster resigned the position to take the superintendent position with the Fountain Valley School District. He will begin his work with the Fountain Valley Schools July 1.

Teen talent show slated

A talent show featuring high school students from Pomona and Claremont will be presented Friday night at the Pomona Education Center auditorium.

The fund-raising program will feature 14 acts beginning at 7 p.m.

The program is being sponsored by Open Choices, a youth service center at 809 S. Gordon St., Pomona, with proceeds to be placed in a scholarship fund.

Cucamonga

Support for school bond issue sought

By DAVID READER
PB Correspondent

A citizens meeting to discuss community involvement in the upcoming Central School District $10 million bond election will be held at 7 p.m. on Thursday at the district offices in Cucamonga.

District Supt. Donald R. Sperry, who made the announcement at the Board of Trustees meeting Tuesday evening, said that the main purpose for the citizens meeting will be to select a committee to go out into the community and solicit support for the passage of the bonds.

In a related matter, Central Teachers Organization President Andrew Carlmark read a letter of CTO support for the bond election, and offered the services of the group in aiding the passing of the bonds.

The board also adopted a statement of philosophy concerning the building program that would result from a successful bond election.

The statement, drafted by board President Patton Lewis, included the following points:

— The available existing school buildings in the district have reached their "saturation point" with the present average daily attendance of almost 2,000 students.

— The rate of new homes being built in the district will mean an increase in student attendance of 200 per year for the next several years.

— The district and board of trustees have an obligation to provide classroom facilities consistent with state standards.

— The facilities to be built would not be substantially in excess of the standards set by the state, so as to not put a burden on the district's financial capabilities.

In a progress report to the board on the coming district school budget, Supt. Sperry stated that currently there were "too many unknowns" with regard to estimates in expenditures.

The board approved the repair of a school bus engine at the cost of $1,750. It also agreed to allot $1,179 for the repair and maintenance of the industrial shop equipment at Central Junior High.

The board also approved the continuing of membership in the California School Board Association at the cost of $561.75 for the coming year.

School sex discrimination policy rejected

Because Walnut school board members believe a proposed pupil policy to avoid sex discrimination is too broad to be enforced, they returned it Monday night to administrators for rewording.

The proposed policy was: "No student in the Walnut Valley Unified School District shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded or be subjected to discrimination in any education program or activity."

An example of what worried board members about the policy was contact sports.

The board named Marshall Manthorne assistant principal-teacher for Chaparral Intermediate School, to open next fall in Diamond Bar.

Manthorne has been teaching elementary grades in the district for the past six years. Currently he teaches a class for the educationally handicapped at Walnut Elementary School.

Another prophet fated to be right?

The United States is not the only democracy to have been admonished by Alexander Solzhenitsyn, that latter-day Jeremiah passionately warning against the snares of detente.

The exiled Russian writer, who now lives in Switzerland, took the British to task in a recent lecture over BBC radio, and many were the sins and shortcomings he detailed.

Not only did Britain, and all of Western Europe, countenance the enslavement of millions of their fellow Europeans by Soviet communism after World War II, "whenever a new tyranny came into existance, however far away — in China, say, or Laos — Britain was always the first to recognize it, eagerly pushing aside all competitors for the honor."

Tank columns rolled in East Berlin, Budapest and Prague, but not once did the British government recall its ambassadors in protest from any of these places.

"But when five terrorists—who had actually committed murder — were executed in Madrid, then the British ambassador was recalled and the din reverberated throughout the world. What a hurricane burst forth from the British Isles!"

And what of Europe today? asked Solzhenitsyn. "It is nothing more than a collection of cardboard stage sets, all bargaining with each other to see how little can be spent on defense so as to leave more for the comforts of life."

Europe, he says, has of its own accord abandoned not only its strength and influence in world affairs but its intellectual influence as well. "Modern society is hypnotized by socialism. It is prevented by socialism from seeing the mortal dangers it is in.

"And one of the greatest dangers of all is that you have lost all sense of danger, you cannot even see where it's coming from as it moves swiftly towards you . . .

"But the greatest danger of all is that you have lost the will to defend yourselves."

Solzhenitsyn expressed little hope that the West would heed the warning voices of the oppressed peoples of Eastern Europe. "Experience," he acknowledged sadly, "cannot be transmitted. Everyone must experience everything for himself."

In that respect, Solzhenitsyn may be less akin to the Biblical Jeremiah than to the Greek prophetess Cassandra, who carried the curse of never being believed.

But Cassandra, we tend to forget, was also fated always to be right.

Garbage in . . .

To paraphrase poet Robert Frost, something there is that doesn't love a computer. Something there is, also, that's delighted whenever these electronic marvels come a cropper, as they did by projecting a victory by Rep. Morris K. Udall, (D-Ariz.), over Jimmy Carter in the Wisconsin primary.

Computers of course, are no more infallible than their human operators. As computerologists say, if you put garbage in, you'll get garbage out.

The reason the computers of two television networks misfired in Wisconsin was due not to a misinterpretation of information on the part of the computer but to a lack of complete information to work with. The Udall victory forecast was upset by a late surge of slow-counted Carter votes from rural areas.

Our delight, however, is tempered by the sober realization that this nation's security is dependent in great part upon intelligence fed into computers about the capabilities, intentions and activities of potential adversaries.

We wonder how much garbage is going into them.

Think on these things

Little girl, with your solemn brown eyes and sometimes quiet manner . . . I often wonder if I should have spanked you more . . . for even now it seems that I could not have loved you more . . . not that love stops when spanking begins or instruction stops when wisdom begins . . . for a mother is a mother and she has things to say to you . . . very often, whether you want to hear it or not.

When I see you doing the same silly things I did as a girl . . . I want desperately to say, "Must we do these things all over again!" . . . and then I remember you have the same right to decision, you need the same space in which to grow and breathe . . . and the teaching has not all been one way . . . for your common sense has often given me new insight . . . and new reason to love you more . . . if that is anyway possible!

Ethnic communities

Dear Editor:

Sometimes all of us seem to be arguing against what we have and want. Actually supporting what in reality we don't want. For example the other day the Democratic Presidential candidate "Jimmy" Carter talked about not destroying "Ethnic Communities." Immediately he was given such a "hard time" for what he said, he had to apologize. Insisting he used the "wrong words."

Wonder why? America is by choice one ethnic community after another. I'm from Philadelphia with just about six years here in California. Decidedly a city of ethnic communities. The Italians in South Philadelphia fight for the right to live together as Italians. In Chinatown the Chinese there do the same. There are decidedly Jewish communities. Roman Catholic communities with their church insisting they attend the parish church and parochial school. Necessitating Catholics living together in a community of their faith.

In Philadelphia there is a Puerto Rican ethnic community. Even communities of people whose ancestry goes back to England or Germany. Though I personally believe in the integration of all the people having served an Episcopal Church in Philadelphia with almost half of our 1000 members Negro — black — I soon learned Negroes wanted to live together in their own ethnic communities. The fortunate living together in better communities. The less fortunate living together "on the other side of the tracks."

As one travels through Pennsylvania one comes again and again on certainly the equivalent of ethnic communities. The Amish wanting to be together as such. Someone from the city would be "language uncomfortable" in the upstate Pennsylvania Dutch communities. The state of Utah is a community completely under control of the Mormons where if you are not a Mormon it is difficult to obtain work. And they are one of the fastest growing "Ethnic Communities" among our nation's religious groups. In Hawaii one is surprised to find native Hawaiians, Chinese and Japanese each as separate groups banding together in what could be considered "Ethnic Communities."

I believe the various "Ethnic Communities" in our nation want this. Despite their too hasty objection to what "Jimmy" Carter said. And all he said was he felt the government should not deliberately "break up" such communities. I live in an apartment house complex of senior citizens. Here youths under sixteen years can't live. While I believe it ridiculous to so separate senior citizens from junior citizens under 16 the parents of such youths would be subject to the law if brought here. Yet there is an excellent rapport between the senior citizens and the college and high school students. Isn't it much more important that we do things together. Rather than that we live together. I think so. — W. Hamilton Aulenbach, D.D., Claremont

WASHINGTON — A secret study suggests that the Pentagon is squandering $500 million on a cruise missile system because Secretary of State Henry Kissinger wanted it as a bargaining chip at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

The General Accounting Office study reports that in 1973 the Air Force had abandoned its air-launched cruise missile and the Navy had downgraded its sea-launched cruise missile.

But then Kissinger proposed that a long-range, air-to-surface missile "made sense strategically and would assist the U.S. in the SALT negotiations." The Defense Department immediately took a new interest and the unmanned, jet-powered, subsonic missile.

Apparently Kissinger wanted to build the cruise missile system merely so he could offer to scrap it. It has already cost the taxpayers about $250 million for Kissinger to make this point at the SALT talks. The final cost, according to the GAO's calculations, could surpass $500 million.

Yet except for its use as a diplomatic ploy, the expensive missile has stirred little enthusiasm in the Pentagon. The secret GAO study questions "whether a valid need has been established for a long-range missile."

The Strategic Air Command, which is supposed to be equipped with cruise missiles, "has not expressed an operational requirement for the system." And the Navy hasn't yet found a use for its cruise missiles except to deploy them as a reserve force on attack submarines.

To add to the cost, the two services are developing separate but similar missiles. The Pentagon is supposed to save money by stopping the duplication of weapons.

Government fuddling has also added to the cost of developing the cruise missile. The Defense Department, for example, hasn't gotten around to providing the Defense Mapping Agency with the missiles' mapping requirements.

Nor has the Energy Research and Development Administration been given the data it needs to complete its work on the nuclear warheads for the cruise missile. The delay, of course, will increase costs unnecessarily.

But if the cruise missile has dubious value for defense, it already is being used for diplomacy. A State Department spokesman acknowledged that the missile has been mentioned at the SALT negotiations. But he claimed "nothing substantive" has been discussed. "The negotiating points," he added, "are very closely held."

WATCH ON WASTE: The price of a first-class stamp has more than doubled in four years. Only a few months ago, the price jumped again from 10 to 13 cents. Postal authorities predict that in another five years a stamp will cost 23 cents.

Other postal charges are also going up, up, up. The cost of special delivery shot up this week from 60 to 80 cents. The fee for registering mail climbed from 95 cents to $1.25. And money order fees rose from 25 to 30 cents.

Yet as mail rates have gone up, the service has gone down. Mail users might be excused for wondering, therefore, where their stamp money is going. Here are a few specifics:

— The postal plight hasn't restrained the top officials from raising their own salaries. Postmaster General Benjamin Franklin Bailar, for example, upped his salary from $60,000 to $63,000 at the same time that he was explaining how necessary it was to increase the price of stamps another three cents. In the western states region alone, more than three dozen postal officials wangled promotions for themselves.

— As a bicentennial project, the Postal Service shelled out $120,000 for two 28-foot motor vans, which were supposed to be outfitted as traveling exhibits. The postal authorities unhappily concluded, however, that the mail service was in such bad grace that it wouldn't be a good time for postal displays. As a result, the bicentennial vans have been quietly set aside for use as "emergency" post offices in areas hit by natural disasters.

Investing in South Africa

Despite a natural reluctance to discuss the venture publicly, the huge Joseph E. Seagram and Sons company is now seriously considering a $10 million investment in KwaZulu, one of minority white-ruled South Africa's Bantustans.

The word is that the proposed project involves the construction of a distillery, in partnership with a South African corporation. The plant would employ perhaps 100 people and aim primarily at the export market.

Apparently anticipating opposition to this venture from those concerned about African liberation in the U.S. and Canada (Seagram is a Canadian corporation with a U.S. subsidiary), Seagram has tried hard to project an image of social concern. It sent a team of investigators to South Africa and hired an American consulting firm, headed by noted black psychologist Kenneth Clark to examine the issue and propose a set of conditions which would make such investment acceptable to the critics.

Such efforts, designed to find "clean" ways of investing in South Africa today, ignore reality by pretending that it will be possible to run a non-apartheid operation in an apartheid system; or, more seriously, that such an operation will serve to advance the cause of freedom by undermining apartheid.

Here's Dr. Clark's criteria for the investment:

"The joint venture board of directors should make clear by public statement that this joint venture is an affirmative action which is being developed in ways consistent with the positive future of South Africa and all its people. In no way should it be seen or interpreted as an acceptance or reinforcement of apartheid or present forms of racial inequities."

It is precisely because it is impossible to meet those criteria that Seagram and other corporations ought not to invest in any sector of the racist South African economy.

Investment in the Bantustans is a new form of foreign investment in South Africa. It appears to be proposed as a way of meeting the mounting criticism that aid to the South African economy is supporting racial oppression and exploitation. Even voices inside South Africa, who have until now urged investment as a spur to economic growth and ultimate social change, have now come to recognize the falseness of that view.

The Seagram decision involves much more than one $10 million project. It comes at a critical time and will serve as an important symbol in the period just before us.

Only a few years ago, in solidarity with the struggle for liberation in South Africa, black workers at the Polaroid plant in Boston demanded that Polaroid stop doing business in South Africa. They spearheaded a struggle which united community, church and other groups in the U.S. around the slogan of American corporations out of South Africa.

But Polaroid devised a strategy which promised better jobs, better training, more scholarships and "progress" for its workers in South Africa . . . and many people accepted the "practicality" of the so-called Polaroid experiment.

In the years since the Polaroid experiment, life has gotten worse, not better for the workers of South Africa. It is important that the same arguments should not be allowed to prevail again. There is no way to improve apartheid. It must be abolished.

Just in jest

Now and then in the sex discrimination free for all that is raging these days the men may actually win a round. Unfortunately, however, one round doesn't constitute a victory, for usually it's the women who end up scoring the most points. And that's just what happened recently.

A Superior Court judge ruled that lower prices for women on so-called "ladies nights" constitutes discrimination unless similar price concessions are made available to the men.

But never underestimate the power of women where sex and discrimination are involved. While the men were rejoicing over their apparent victory, another judge promptly took the wind out of their sails by ruling that when ladies of the evening are arrested for their somewhat questionable activities, it becomes an act of discrimination if their male companions are allowed to go free.

Discourage the dealers

Editor's Note: During his hospitalization, top state officials are filling in for Earl G. Waters. Today his guest is Robert Presley, State Senator, RIverside County.

Misuse of narcotics in California causes all the people of this state — not just the victims — a heavy toll in both human and financial terms.

Misuse of narcotics means money flowing into the pockets of the unscrupulous dealers whose profits have allowed them to become very sophisticated importers and sellers.

An obvious answer is to give law enforcement authorities the legal tools to investigate and apprehend violators. Another is to make the price of getting caught and convicted heavy enough to discourage narcotics traffic.

For that reason I have introduced, along with State Senator George Deukmejian, a package of 17 bills designed to get at those big dealers who keep a steady flow of illegal drugs flowing to the rich California market.

We spent considerable time studying the problem and concluded that new laws are needed to properly equip both law enforcement officers and the courts to crack down on those who profit on human frailties. The big dealers are clever, organized, and well-financed. Surely they must spend some time laughing at the obstacles confronting authorities who would stop their profitable enterprises.

A major part of our program will be to increase the use of electronic eavesdropping on those suspected of being major traffic dealers. Our subcommittee has been told repeatedly that law enforcement must have added means of getting the necessary evidence for conviction. State and local law enforcement now know who is making, transporting and selling major amounts of narcotics, but need additional ways to get court-approved recordings that cannot be refuted in a later trial.

We also believe that the sale of cocaine is increasing so fast and its effects are so severe that those who deal in it ought to get mandatory prison sentences as is the case in the sale of heroin. In other areas we are asking that the potential fines be increased up to $50,000.00 as a deterrent to dealing in illegal drugs.

Further, we think the state ought to have the right to confiscate the very sophisticated vehicles, boats and even airplanes that are used by narcotics merchants. That would be yet another device to cause the illegal dealer to think twice about continuing in business.

In addition, the legislation would tighten record-keeping procedures, give the state attorney general the right to keep up with banning new drugs that come on the market and allow drug prosecution in the courts of only one county where the operators have been doing business in a number of counties.

These bills may be described as "tough", but I like to think of them as giving needed protections to people whose lives are tragically affected by the criminal element that surrounds them. They move us closer toward sure and certain punishment for convicted dealers. Most important, they give law enforcement authorities a chance to get at the truly big traffickers who profit in human misery.

Until we shut off the supply, society is going to pay a heavy price in wrecked lives, in terms of attempts at rehabilitating victims of drugs and watching the crime rates continue to soar.

Address change fouls up vet benefit check

My children are entitled to veteran's death benefits and were receiving them until three months ago.

I have moved since first filing my claim. At the time I moved I filed a change of address with the San Bernardino County Veterans Affairs Office in Ontario.

However, the checks continued to come to the former address and were forwarded to my present address. I again went into the office to see why and while there filled out another change of address card.

My check was sent to my former address and was forwarded to my present home.

The following month my check failed to arrive.

Although I was told the Veterans Administration office in Los Angeles verified receiving the address change, this problem still persists. — J. R., Pomona.

We took your problem directly to the VA office in Los Angeles.

Our answer was a copy of a letter to you from R. K. Sorenson, veterans service officer, saying steps were being taken to correct your address and resume your payments.

You go a check for $244.50 representing payment for the three months and thanked us for our quick action.

I am writing to see if you can get my refund of $10 for a book on "How To Lose Weight."

My check was mailed to Christopher Lynn in Tulsa, Okla.

Right away I received a letter asking for $7 for an extension of a weight-loss newsletter subscription. This request came from Lincoln Press, also in Tulsa.

I immediately wrote requesting my refund because I had never received the book I ordered and had not ordered a subscription. I wrote a second letter asking for my refund.

On the same day, the book arrived but I mailed it right back.

Six weeks have passed since I placed the original order. I cannot understand how a company can keep your money that long. — M. S., Upland.

We wrote to Christopher Lynn but our answer came from Lincoln Press on the back of a copy of an envelope which showed that you did indeed return the package containing the book marked "refused — return to sender, please."

Mary Lemaster of Lincoln Press said she would authorize a refund of $9.24, deducting 76 cents of postage due.

She explained that refunds are made in the order in which they are received and that Lincoln Press had just received the book you returned.

I have a 17-year-old son who has never been in any trouble.

He finished high school in 1975 and went into the Marine Corps but had to leave the service because of his health.

When he got out of the Marines it was too late to get a grant to help him pay for a college education but we hope he can get one in the future.

His father has never done a thing for him. I tried to get child support for him when his father was in the Air Force but his father went overseas to avoid paying.

There are no jobs to be had for my son. He needs an education to make up for his health, which won't allow him to do work that might strain his health.

Is there any way his father could be forced to help me send him to school? — C. H., Pomona.

Ed Braveman of the Office of the District Attorney in Pomona told us he had looked into your problem.

He said your son would be 18 and "emancipated" in a month or so and consequently would not be eligible for child support.

Collection of back support appears to be close to an impossibility because you and your son's father weren't married and paternity is difficult to prove after so many years.

We are sorry to give you a negative answer.

Curtail habit of frankness

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend (we are both girls, age 17) who is a beautiful person, but last week she decided to turn herself into a "completely honest human being." I'm afraid it's going to get her into a lot of trouble.

Yesterday she went up to a rather shy girl and said, "I'm telling you this for your own good. Go on a strict diet and lose 30 pounds." The girl almost cried.

Within the hour she advised a black student to get her Afro shaped. "Your head looks like a bush," she said. "You'd be much more attractive and civilized-looking if you trimmed your hair." Five minutes ago she told a TEACHER she needs to use a deodorant.

All her advice is good and I know she means well, but what will this "frankness" do to her relationships? — Don't Know

Dear D.K.: Plenty — and none of it good. Suggest to your well-meaning friend that she cool it.

Unsolicited advice is almost always resented. It can also be interpreted as a personal attack.

I admire the girl's wish to be completely honest, but she should restrict the self-improvement program to herself and leave other people alone

Dear Ann Landers: For two years I have been engaged to marry a man who is divorced. He has two young children to whom he is devoted.

This past summer I was alone many Sundays while my fiance went picnicking and attended ball games with his children and the ex-wife. Now he tells me he is planning a week's vacation to Williamsburg with his children and their mother. When I asked why she was going along, he said, "To share expenses." I told him I did not approve of the arrangement and he replied, "She is the mother of my children. Divorce is tough enough on the kids without adding the problem of parents who are completely estranged."

What do you see ahead? — App-Ree-Hensive

Dear Ap: Trouble. And lots of it. Unless you are prepared to spend several weekends and holidays alone, think twice before you marry this man.

I firmly believe divorced parents should be civil to one another and friendly, if possible, but picnics and picnics and trips are out of line. If they like each other THAT much, they ought to remarry.

Dear Ann: I'm going with a young woman I've grown quite fond of. She has many fine qualities — the ones I want in a wife — but . . .

When I inquired about her past she told me she had been in love with a man for two years, had sexual relations with him, and then they went their separate ways. It later turns out there were two others, not love affairs, just sexual encounters. She saw nothing wrong with what she had done, said it was "natural and normal" and that her parents knew and did not disapprove.

My cultural background is quite different. I feel she lacks moral and ethical standards. Should I terminate this relationship or try to be "broad-minded" and concentrate on her positive attributes? — Uncertain

Dear Un: Chop it. Now. Feeling as you do about this woman's past, the chances of a successful marriage are slim. If she smiled at the mailman you'd probably think she was up to something. You would never trust her completely and she'd be forever on the defensive.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Fine time for Daylight Saving

What time is it?

Simple question. Asked frequently — anxiously by the secretary scurrying late to work, angrily by the boss wondering where the blazes she is, by the weary worker waiting for the end of the day, by the restless schoolboy waiting for the end of class. Time is important to everyone, from cradle to grave, but no one is ever sure of the exact time. Business appointments, plane departures, theater curtains — what is it by the hall clock? Is the kitchen clock right? What did the radio say?

One problem is that man is always messing around with this great intangible, Time, toying with it, changing it, playing games with it. One of our messings around occurs Sunday when a large part of the nation will turn the clocks ahead one hour to get onto Daylight Saving Time, costing everyone an hour's sleep and getting the religious to church an hour after the service starts.

That "costing an hour's sleep" is a meaningless cliche, because most people sleep late on Sundays, and an hour one way or the other won't even be noticed unless you have a starting time on the golf course. And we all "get back" that lost hour next fall when we turn the clocks back again. Remember — in the spring we turn them forward; in the autumn we turn them back. Spring ahead — fall back. Isn't that cute? It doesn't do a thing for the family dog, unfortunately. He doesn't go by clocks. When he wants out, he wants out!

Daylight Time was first thought up by an Englishman named William Willett in 1907. (Well, he was William Willet in 1906 and in 1908, too, but you know what I mean.) America tried it for the first time during World War I to save fuel. (Please don't ask me to go into that — I don't understand it anymore than you do.)

Those of us who have been rising with the sun these days, will find ourselves getting up in what the Postal Department calls "the gloom of night." On the other hand, at the end of the day we will have an extra hour of sunlight for tennis or golf. Unless it is raining.

Farmers reportedly do not like Daylight Saving Time. Maybe cows don't give milk properly or chickens lay decent eggs on the altered schedule. It is hard to plow a straight furrow in the dark, and as for digging potatoes, well!

But there are a lot fewer farmers these days than there used to be, just as there are a lot fewer church-goers than in days gone by. A lot more people are interested in when the Dodger game starts than when to slop the hogs.

So, whether you are on the first tee at 7 a.m. Sunday or singing in the choir at 11 a.m. or milking cows at 4 a.m., be sure you have turned your alarm clock forward one hour before retiring. Or you can wake up at 2 a.m. and do it — the legal hour for the change. Then you don't close your eyes until 6 a.m.

Happy Daylight Time.

Fiber really isn't 'roughage'

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have diverticulosis or pockets of the colon. Eating roughage hurts and cramps my colon with gas, yet I know I must have fiberous foods. On the other hand, I am told not to eat roughage. I do suffer more when I eat raw fruits and vegetables. Could you give me an idea of what to eat for roughage that would not cause discomfort? Is there anything better to take than Metamusil for my condition?

DEAR READER — The proponents of fiber for the diet believe that it will relieve many of the problems in diverticulosis. The idea is that those pockets of the colon are really a complication of a spastic or over contracted colon associated with inadequate bulk in the diet.

The word roughage is not a good word for the type of food you really need. What you need in your diet is "softage." The best source of bulk in food really is the cereal fiber found in bran or the husk of wheat. This is superior to the amount of fiber you'll get in either fruits or vegetables and since those bother you, you should try cereal fiber.

Among the readily available prepared cereals that you can get from the supermarket to satisfy your problem are Kellogg's All-Bran, Bran Buds and Nabisco Bran. If you will eat one ounce (about one teacup dry measure) of any of these a day you will get enough "softage" to obtain whatever benefits you might expect from this procedure. In case you don't like any of those, you can use two ounces of Bran Flakes or Raisin Bran. Use two ounces of these a day because they don't contain as much cereal fiber.

Cereal fiber is not roughage. As soon as it is moist, as would happen in the stomach, it swells and becomes soft, not greatly different from the consistency you might see in cooked oatmeal. It won't irritate the digestive tract.

You may have an increased amount of gas during the first three weeks of using these foods. If you have too much, cut down on the amount you are using and gradually increase it. If you do well on this program you can then add other whole wheat products to your dietary plan, including whole wheat bread as opposed to the white flour types. In general try to increase your cereal fiber. For information on Diverticulosis send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 5-6. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What causes mastoid trouble? When my daughter was about 1 year old she had it and had an operation. She seems to think it was caused by something I gave her. It bothers me.

DEAR READER — Most mastoid trouble is caused by an infection. That does not mean an infection that your daughter would have gotten from you. Mastoid infections were common complications of ear infections and the types of infections we classified as respiratory infections in years past. We don't see them much anymore because antibiotics eliminate most of the bacterial infections that would cause mastoiditis. You can be fairly certain that your daughter's problem was a complication of an infection that she developed as a child totally unrelated to anything that you might have done or anything she may have gotten from you.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

John Crawford's last major tournament was in Monte Carlo last summer. Playing with Alvin Roth, Matt Granovetter and James Jacoby, he finished second to the World Champion Italian team.

In the methods used by Roth and Crawford the two-club response was forcing to game unless followed by three clubs. Hence, two hearts would have been forcing so that three hearts was a slam try.

Crawford's three-spade bid showed that control. Four diamonds showed second-round control in that suit. Five notrump was the grandslam force to ask about trump honors. It was no problem for Roth to jump to the grand slam, since he held both ace and king of trumps.

The play illustrates Crawford's excellent technique. He started by cashing dummy's ace and king of clubs in order to jettison his two losing spades. Then he went after diamonds and was careful enough to ruff the third diamond with one of dummy's high trumps. He decided to return to his hand by ruffing a club. A spade play would have been fatal. Then he ruffed his last diamond with the last high trump, drew trumps and had his grand slam.

Ask the Jacobys

An Illinois reader wants to know what the forcing notrump response is.

Certain people who never open a four-card major suit also play that the response of two in a lower suit shows at least 11 high-card points.

Hence, when they respond one notrump opener is asked to rebid to two of a three-card minor or two of his own suit if he holds six. What he does with five spades, four hearts and two of each minor is his problem.

Comic books hook teachers

Pollsters say one out of every eight teachers is a comic book fan. They don't start out that way, necessarily. But they have occasion to confiscate a lot of comic books. And sooner or later, one or another catches their eye. Pretty soon they're into it.

The real Roquefort cheese, please note, is not made from goat's milk as commonly reported, but from ewe's milk. What's the difference? Quantity, for one thing. Ewes only turn out about a quart of milk a day for six months of the year.

Used to be the custom in Old Germany to give a wife who lived with her husband for 25 years a wreath of silver. If she managed that chore for 50 years, she got a wreath of gold. The husband, poor fellow, received no such reward. Anyway, that's how the custom of wedding anniversary presents got started.

Credit Henry David Thoreau with the observation: "Almost any man knows how to earn money, but not one in a million knows how to spend it."

How you earn your living has something to do with how you handle pain, evidently. The science boys say their studies indicate those three occupational types who seem best able to deal with injuries are farmers, construction hands and auto mechanics. It's not that these professionals don't feel the hurts. They just don't so easily give in to them.

Lloyd on gun controls, post officer . . . NAACP on Carter

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., has introduced bills in Congress to require mandatory sentences for crimes involving use of guns and to require the Postal Service to expand its considerations for closing small post offices beyond purely financial circumstances.

Lloyd said he introduced the gun measure to deter the use of firearms because crime is an "epidemic" in the nation.

Previous gun control measures before Congress have not provided viable solutions because they have not addressed the criminal aspect to a sufficient degree, he said.

Lloyd said he introduced a bill to require a more careful examination of small post office operations to prevent small communities from being shut out of mail service.

"This nation was a collection of small communities when it was formed 200 years ago and I believe this is an important way of life that should not be penalized with a cutoff of mail service or a reduction in service which would certainly result if the small postal stations were closed."

Lloyd said he wants to see the Postal Service become self-sufficient and also provide service to rural and isolated communities.

Officials of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF COLORED PEOPLE (NAACP) expressed concern during a recent executive board meeting about presidential candidate Jimmy Carter's remark about "ethnic purity."

Monroe Jones, political action chairman, stated in an official response: "Mr. Carter's statement that ethnic purity should not be disturbed by busing has been termed by himself as both unfortunate and a poor choice of words.

"It has been observed by news reporters following Mr. Carter in his campaigns throughout the country that he speaks out of both sides of his mouth on certain issues, depending upon the color of the audience he addresses.

"This time the real truth came out for all to hear. There can be little doubt that with this frame of reference, if elected President of the United States, Carter would severely set back equality of opportunity for all people, especially blacks and other minorities."

STATE SEN. H. L. RICHARDSON, R-19th Dist., has introduced legislation that would permit union members unemployed for more than 30 days not to pay their union dues and prohibit them from being suspended or lose union benefits for the period of unemployment.

"Thousands of rank and file union members would benefit from the bill," said Richardson. "For instance, an unemployed person must now maintain his or her union dues with unemployment or welfare money. Such funds are meant for food and other necessities.

"However, if a union member does not keep current on dues, he or she is dropped from work lists. If you are not on a work list, you can't get a job," he added.

Georgia Grove, chairman of the CITIZENS FOR REAGAN in the 65th Assembly District, has appointed members of the advisory committee.

They are Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire, Frank Carr, John Fleishans III, Mrs. Hollis Page and Mrs. Richard Speier.

England's Queen Elizabeth 50 years old today

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II observes her 50th birthday today after a 24-year reign that began with hopes for a second glorious Elizabeth Age but has been downhill all the way for Britain.

When George VI died on Feb. 6, 1952, and his older daughter became queen while on a visit to Africa, Britain was Western Europe's leading nation, the pound sterling was one of the world's more stable currencies, there were 100,000 British soldiers in the Suez Canal Zone, and British air and naval bases stretched to Hong Kong.

Today as the queen prepares for a quiet family birthday at Windsor Castle, Britain's wealth and power are sharply diminished, its empire dismembered, its economy in disarray.

"Future historians will have little choice but to dismiss this period of our national life as one of unrelieved failure," the weekly New Statesman said recently. But it added: "The monarchy still appears a stable feature of our national life: perhaps the only thing that is."

The 19th century constitutional expert Walter Bagehot once commented that only three rights remained to the monarch: "the right to be consulted, the right to encourage, the right to warn."

But "after 24 years on the throne, the queen is the only person in Westminster and Whitehall who has followed, at the very highest level, the process of top-level decision-making going back over a whole generation," Paul Johnson, former editor of the New Statesman, wrote in the Daily Express.

"She has outlasted five British prime ministers, four U.S. presidents, three changes of regime in Russia, four German chancellors, two popes, and countless French and Italian governments — to say nothing of such venerable fixtures as De Gaulle, Franco, Chiang Kaishek and Haile Selassie.

"Only Mao Tse-tung and Marshal Tito can claim greater continuity at the top, and they are in their 80s."

Public criticisms of the queen are confined almost entirely "to the marginal aspects of her existence — her dress-sense, her voice, her ferocious small dogs — and testify merely to the poverty of the material that can be amassed against her personally," the New Statesman said.

Scottish Laborite Willie Hamilton never lets up in his campaign to abolish the monarchy, which he attacks as an expensive, useless anachronism. But in his anti-royalty book last year, "My Queen and I," he said he had never said "a cruel or critical word" against Queen Elizabeth personally.

Most Britons view the royal establishment with quiet pride.

"She's good value for money, she is," one young Londoner said.

Millions still follow the unfolding royal story as if it was their favorite soap opera. The queen and her family are still persistent headline-makers in Britain and among the country's biggest crowd pullers. Thousands throng the Mall and Whitehall every year for the queen's coach ride in October to open Parliament and the Trooping of the Color for the official celebration of her birthday in June, when the weather is most likely to be good.

The queen's oldest son and heir, Prince Charles, has matured into a serious, 27-year-old man with all the attributes Britons look for in a monarch — good looks, a sense of humor, tact, a quick mind and a talent for making people feel at ease.

This has prompted some speculation that his mother may abdicate some day in his favor. But despite the prince's popularity, most Britons would probably not favor the change for many years to come.

The queen has been less lucky in her younger sister, Princess Margaret, who has presented her with the two biggest personal crises of her reign. One was Margaret's romance with a divorced man, Group Capt. Peter Townsend, in 1955. The other was her separation this year from her husband, the Earl of Snowdon.

VAL STUART — LILA STUART — HAGOP TOPOUZIAN

West End Opera plans two one-act works

The husband and wife duo of Val and Lila Stuart will sing leading roles in the West End Opera Company presentation of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" in Spring Auditorium, Ontario, at 8 p.m. Saturday.

In the evening's companion piece, Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci," Stuart will take the part of Canio and Hagob Topouzian will sing the role of Tonio.

Mrs. Stuart holds a master's degree from Indiana University where she appeared in many performances of the Opera Theater. She has sung with the opera companies of Cincinnati, San Antonio, Phoenix, San Diego and others. Stuart, who also did graduate work at Indiana University, has sung with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, the Roger Wagner Chorale and other major musical groups.

Turkish-born Topouzian sang with the Municipal Opera of Istanbul for 10 years and came to Southern California in 1965 for further voice study. He recently returned from successful performances with the Spendiarov Opera Company in Russia.

Wayne Eikenberry, first place winner of the western regional auditions of the Metropolitan Opera last year, will sing Alfio in "Cavalleria." Betty Jackson, a third Indiana University graduate, will portray Mama Lucia, and Dolores Burt will be Lola. The latter has appeared with Carol Channing in "Wonderful Town," with Dorothy Kirsten in "The Great Waltz" and with Robert Merrill in "Fiddler on the Roof."

With Stuart in "Pagliacci" will be Carole Anne Powell as Nedda. She has been soloist with the Glendale Symphony and other orchestras and is a former member of the Metropolitan Opera National Company. Andrew Taylor, who has performed with the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra and the Lakewood Philharmonia, will play Silvio.

Others in the cast are Octavio Orochena as Beppe, and Paul Vander Heyden and Anthony Niccola as villagers.

Utah became the 45th state, Jan. 4, 1896.

'Man of La Mancha'

VCT to offer musical play

Dale Wasserman's Tony Award-winning musical, "Man of La Mancha," will open at Valley Community Theater at 8:30 Thursday night. The opening night performance will be followed by a champagne reception in the Green Room for members of the cast, crew and audience.

The play will be staged at 8:30 Friday and Saturday nights through June 12. Reservations can be made at 622-6954. Students and senior citizens are admitted at reduced prices, and group rates are offered.

"Man of La Mancha," containing such well-known songs as "The Impossible Dream," "Dulcinea," and "Golden Helmet of Mambrine", features Ed Waterhouse as Don Quixote, Lynda Hershey as Aldonza, and David Bushner as Sancho.

Also in the large cast are Clint Miller as the Duke — Dr. Carrasco, Ron Carroll as the Governor-Innkeeper, Tina Geer as the Housekeeper, Manny Suarez as the Captain of the Inquisition, Susan Boulanger as Maria, the Inkeeper's wife, Tom Schultz as the Padre, Andy Case as the Barber, Rochelle Young as Firmina, a servant girl, and Lynne Lundquist as Antonia.

The Muleteers are played by Mike McCann, Vin Newborn, Richard Frazer, Victor Troxil and Bob Bennett.

"Man of La Mancha" is the musical adaptation of "Don Quixote," in which Wasserman has preserved all the irony, the humor, the soaring poetry of Cervantes' masterwork, while producing an original work of art with music and lyrics by Joe Darion and Mitch Leigh.

Director Annette Roon, a graduate of Pasadena Playhouse and a well-known area actress, has directed "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running" at VCT, as well as appearing in "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "The Lion in Winter." She has won several awards at the Riverside one-act play tournament.

Assistant director of the production is Gene Kohil. Musical director is Schultz. Production accompanist is Dena Carper. Choreography is by Dan Miller, set design by Margot Andrews, and lighting by Jess Ray. Jim Gardner designed the costumes.

Art show, auction slated

A benefit art show and auction will be held at the Glendora Library and Cultural Center starting at 7 p.m. Friday. Admission is free and refreshments will be served.

Lawyer convicted of theft

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A disbarred lawyer accused of diverting money from the estates of dead and elderly persons has been convicted on six counts of grand theft.

Sentencing for C. DeForrest Cutler, 53, who was convicted Monday, was set for May 20 by Superior Court Judge Jack T. Ryburn.

Cutler diverted much of the nearly $300,000 he imbezzled from clients' funds to an Anaheim organization that promotes girls' softball tournaments, investigators alleged.

Israeli recalls 1970 dogfight over Egypt

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An Israeli air force officer described Tuesday how he shot down a Soviet pilot's MIG21 in a dogfight over Egypt six years ago, and claimed Russian flyers at the time "were no better than their Arab pupils."

In the first published account of a 1970 air battle near the Suez Canal, the pilot said Israeli Phantoms and Mirage jets used air-to-air missiles to down five MIGs flown by Russians. No Israelis were hit.

"By the time the Russians understood what was happening it was too late. One Russian plane caught fire immediately on our first contact," said the Israeli pilot, identified only by the initial A. "There were 16 planes altogether ... Disposable fuel tanks were flying all over the place ... I could see bonfires of MIGs on the ground."

The account was published in the newspaper Maariv, from an interview to appear in the Israeli air force journal. The pilot's identity was concealed for security reasons, but Maariv printed a photograph of his Phantom emblazoned with "one MIG 21 killed, July 30, 1970."

The Russians' flying skill "was the same quality we found among Egyptian pilots ... The Russian instructors were no better than their Arab pupils," he said.

The Israeli military command announced its planes shot down four MIG 21s on the July date during the two-year war of attrition across the canal but never officially confirmed that the pilots were Russians.

Censorship banned details for six years, but former Prime Minister Golda Meir once disclosed in the United States that Israeli pilots had fought and beaten Soviet airmen in Egypt.

An Egyptian confidant of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser, former newspaper editor Mohammed Heikal, said in his book "The Road to Ramadan" that Nasser admitted Israeli Phantoms shot down five MIGs in the dogfight.

The battle began at 17,000 feet near Ras Gharb on the southern edge of the Gulf of Suez where Israeli reconnaissance planes were flying eight miles off the coast, recounted the Israeli, now a 30-year-old economist. Israeli Phantom jets were on escort duty.

"The Russians were patrolling ... Then the Russians arrived in three formations of four planes each, MIG21s ... There were a lot of Russian planes there, a real convoy of MIGs ... The Phantoms waited (until) we were pair against pair...

"I saw a missile launched by a Mirage that cut in ahead of us ... A MIG was hit ... I was looking for a MIG for myself and at last I got lucky ... He came at me from the right," said A.

"I don't know what the Russian boy was thinking, but he was clearly an inexperienced pilot ... He didn't know basic tactics ... We locked the radar onto him

... We launched a missile ... There was a great explosion ... I could see bonfires of other MIGs on the ground and one pilot still parachuting ... I think he was dead."

Joyce Brothers

Please don't handle

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I work for a man who can't pass me in the hall without touching me. I really don't like it but I'm afraid to complain because he is the boss. According to the other secretaries, this touching habit doesn't necessarily mean he wants more. They say it's just his way of trying to make his employees feel he likes them. What can I do? — J.S.

Dear J.S.: How about approaching this casually, making a joke of it. Try, "Don't bend the fabric," or "Don't finger the goods." The boss might get the point. You could try to move out of his way, or you could tell him your feelings quite directly and honestly. Without knowing him — or you — it is difficult for me to suggest the best approach.

Men touch much more frequently than women, at least in casual encounters. While women are much less likely to reciprocate a man's touch, few men are able to resist the opportunity for contact with a woman when she makes the first move.

The male tendency to pat seems more prevalent outdoors. Once inside buildings, men tend to touch less, perhaps because the touch would more likely be misinterpreted.

I think you might consider the possibility that your boss simply considers this a friendly, reassuring gesture, especially since he doesn't seem to want or expect further intimacy.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm very worried about my mother because she is drinking heavily and taking too many pills. Since my father's death two years ago she has been unhappy and lonely. I don't know what to do. Most doctors would think I was crazy if I said my 70-year-old mother is an addict, but she is. Having her live with me would break up my marriage and yet I hate to see her destroy herself this way. — H.K.

Dear H.K.: If your doctor doesn't take you seriously, you should get another medical opinion. Most doctors are aware that drug abuse by the elderly isn't uncommon. It may begin, as in your mother's case, with an attempt to escape boredom and loneliness.

Often, too much medication is given for symptoms that are common to old age, such as insomnia, depression, and mood changes. Doctors sometimes prescribe multiple drugs which may interact. When you add alcohol to other drugs it can create a serious problem. Even worse, alcohol, a depressant, when used along with sleeping pills, can be fatal.

The most important thing you can do for your mother is to try to involve her in some activity. You might not feel she is an alcoholic, but if she attended a few meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous it might have a therapeutic effect. If you could persuade her to go to at least six meetings, she could then decide for herself whether she wished to continue. I'm sure if you explained her situation, someone from your local chapter of AA would be happy to call on your mother.

You might be saving her life.

Pasadena mansion will open to public

One of Pasadena's most beautiful old estates will open Sunday for three weeks of public tours, until May 16, sponsored by the Pasadena Junior Philharmonic Committee. Members of the Pasadena Chapter of the American Society of Interior Designers have transformed 22 rooms of the home into elegant showcases for their talents, and the five acres of gardens have been replanted by landscape experts to be ablaze with spring color.

Tickets are available at the main gate at 1211 Wellington Ave. in the Linda Vista section of Pasadena, at $3 per person. The hours for touring are daily except Mondays, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., with evening hours on Wednesdays and Fridays until 8 p.m.

Complimentary refreshments will be served daily, with wine and cheese tasting scheduled for the evening hours. Luncheon will be available every weekday at the house by advance reservation to 793-1976 or 449-3232.

A continuous art show featuring the work of local artisans will be offered visitors to Showcase, and various musical groups will be performing on the Antique musical instruments included in the furnishings of the mansion or in the garden areas.

Nearly 180,000 people have toured the eleven previous Showcase homes, making it possible for the Pasadena Junior Philharmonic Committee to donate over $400,000 to the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. "Pegfair," as this year's home was once named by an owner, is expected to attract at least 25,000 visitors during the three weeks it will be open.

Secretaries can become executives

With the right skills and the right attitudes, women secretaries can move up if they want to, according to an internationally known training consultant.

She is Eleanor Macdonald, a well-groomed, articulate Britisher who has been staff controller — in charge of 2,500 women — at Selfridges, London's largest store; one of five women to reach senior executive level at Unilever, a large British corporation; and women's adviser to an industrial complex subsidiary, traveling throughout West Africa and the United Kingdom.

"Women say they want to move forward," she says, "but deep down, they don't make the right noises. When I was young, my mother didn't ask who I was going to marry, but what I was going to do in life. It has made all the difference."

Mrs. Macdonald, who has lectured throughout the world, is in town to conduct a "Secretaries Update" May 7 and 8 for UCLA Extension, a concentrated course designed to improve skills and techniques and build more understanding of the productivity and human aspects of the job. She feels such improvement is necessary if a secretary is to be prepared to move up through different levels — or to do her job with skill and self-satisfaction if she chooses to remain a secretary.

"Women here in the United States as well as Great Britain are not going to make top managers in five minutes," she says. "Many women, for example, are reluctant to think in terms of accountancy. Yet everything ends up with cost, whether at a university or in the private sector. Women say they are disturbed ny figures and don't want to bother with them. But management includes management of money. Women have enormous qualities but they must learn how to apply them."

During "Secretaries Update," she will emphasize practical ways of improving communication between management and employees; motivation, attitudes, self-appraisal, reassessment of values and objectives; organizing time, paper, people and money; and creative and logical thinking.

The program will meet Friday, May 7 from 7 to 9:30 p.m., and Saturday, May 8 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., in Room 4000 Math Sciences Building, UCLA. The fee is $35.

Many companies send secretaries to her course as "more and more intelligent and farsighted men begin to utilize womanpower," she says.

Further information is available weekdays through UCLA Extension at (213) 825-2301.

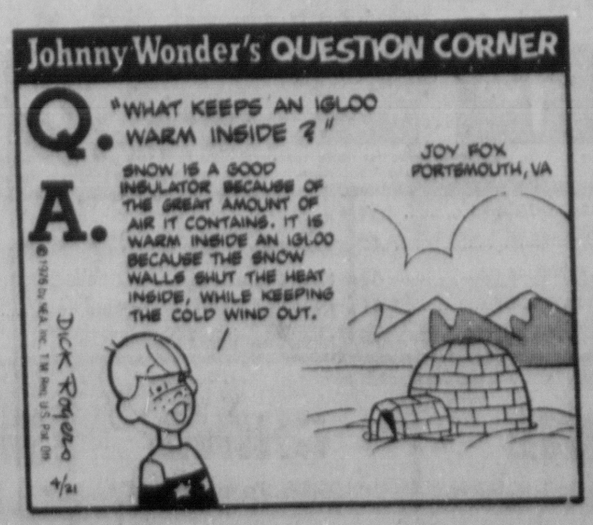
JOHNNY WONDER



If you are an Eskimo in the far north of Canada, you may build your winter house from snow. We call this kind of snow house an "igloo."

To make a snow house, blocks of hardpacked snow are cut from the ground and stacked up to form a round shelter, big enough for one family to live in.

Even though it is made of snow, it is warm inside the igloo because snow is a good insulator. It shuts the heat in while keeping the cold air out.

An oil lamp lights the igloo and provides enough heat to keep the Eskimo family snug and warm.

The family crawls into their snow house through a low tunnel that keeps the freezing wind from blowing in. They eat and sleep on a bed of snow covered with furs.

Of course, when winter ends and the temperature rises, the igloo melts. During the summer, the Eskimo family may live in a tent, called a "tupek," made from canvas or sealskin.

Many Eskimos today live in modern houses just as we do.

Culinary team chef reviews international tastes

Among his favorite foods, Bruno Ellmer lists hot Salzburg pastries and desserts, Middle East goat cheese and yogurt and South American and Chinese specialties. A strange variety for the ordinary palate, but Ellmer's tastes have been cultivated by years of culinary experience in some of the foremost kitchens of the world.

He is currently chef-instructor at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, N.Y., and teaches seven international cuisines plus refresher courses in buffet catering and classical cuisine.

"French cookery is quite complicated," he explained, "but I'd rate it as one of the best along with Chinese. American cuisine," he continued, "is permeated with foreign influences. Nowhere can one find as much variation in food preparation. It's a country of unlimited culinary possibilities." As a member of the team of chefs which will represent the United States in the International Culinary Competition, Ellmer will explore those endless possibilities and help create innovative American menus to set before the panel of judges next October in Frankfurt, Germany, the site of the contest.

Intrigued with cooking since childhood, Ellmer comes from a family of restauranteurs and cheese wholesalers in Salzburg, Austria. At the age of 13, he entered his chef apprenticeship and began a foodservice career which took him to the top hotels in Austria; Montreal, Canada; and Amman, Jordan, before settling in New York.

"Eating habits in the Middle East were the most fascinating," said the award-winning chef. "Food was prepared differently because of dietary laws. Western guests at the Amman hotel were unaccustomed to various delicacies and handling procedures, so they were served carefully-washed foods and pasteurized products to avoid illness."

But not everyone was spared. The first week on the job, Ellmer himself was poisoned by drinking the local water. During the following months as he planned state banquets for King Hussein and attended to his other duties, he learned to enjoy the Jordanian specialties and became pleasantly addicted to many of the native dishes.

Throughout the experience, he maintained the philosophy that a good chef must be a hard worker and willing to sacrifice in order to establish a firm ground in the culinary art. "One must be serious about cooking. When a chef prepares food, he must respect it — it's almost sacred," Ellmer asserted. "Knowing how to work with a piece of food to enhance its qualities is far more important than following any recipe from a book. Basic culinary principles must be thoroughly understood for successful end results," he added.

At home, Ellmer and his wife Wilhelmia do a lot of the cooking together, particularly when serving those hot Austrian pastries at a party or get-together. And in their footsteps are two daughters, Brigitte who is married and 6-year-old Denise, a first-grader who already feels at home in the kitchen. Luckier than most, she's one beginner who has a world of culinary knowledge and expertise to help her.

Duck still a favorite in America

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

For generations roast duck has been a favorite entree on American dinner tables, and today about five million of the birds are grown in this country each year, from the mallard to the Muscovy. Not to mention the thousands of canvasbacks and teal brought down by hunters each year.

The Chinese, who seem to have blazed the trail in so many culinary fields, were the first people known to have bred ducks for the table. By the first century of the Christian era, however, ducks had been domesticated in Europe.

The Romans fattened their ducks on figs and dates and served them perfumed with wine and truffles. In Europe, where they favor the bird rare, duck is still prized as one of the greatest of delicacies.

It is especially popular in France, which is famed for the ducklings raised in the Rouen area. The French baste their ducklings with orange juice, an admirable custom which I think is improved still more by lacing the sauce served on the bird with some orange-flavored cognac.

The Danes also have a way with duck and often stuff the bird with a dressing of apples and prunes that is delicious.

The duck is the most soughtafter of all game birds in this country, and hunters tell tales of the canny ways of the elusive quarry.

Most American ducks are descended from the mallard or the Muscovy varieties. The mallard dwells in the northern hemisphere and the Muscovy comes from Latin America. The latter was introduced into Europe by the Spaniards after their conquest of Peru.

New York's Long Island is the home of the largest duckraising industry in America. These white-feathered birds are said to have been descended from three ducks and a drake brought to America from China back in 1873.

Here is a recipe for duckling a l'orange with some orangeflavored cognac to dress it up.

- 1 duckling about 5 pounds
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 pinch mace
- 2 ounces orange-flavored cognac
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- Thin slices unpealed orange

Sprinkle body cavity of duckling with salt and pepper. Truss bird and put on rack in shallow roasting pan. Peel and quarter oranges. Slice about 1 tablespoon orange peel, put in consomme with mace and pour over duck. Roast uncovered in 325-degree oven 3 hours basting occasionally with liquid in pan. When done, remove duck to a platter, removing all but ¾ cup liquid. Add orange cognac to liquid. Blend cornstarch with little water and stir into sauce. Stir till thick and pour over duckling. Garnish with orange slices. Serves 4. Good with chilled rose wine.

New sandwich

Make sandwiches of thinly sliced ham, thinly sliced chicken or turkey breast and cheddar cheese. Dip the sandwiches in a mixture of egg and milk or light cream; fry in butter. Good served with tart cranberry sauce in a small lettuce cup.

The business of bunnies: a growing industry

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Rabbits are still multiplying like rabbits these days, and growing up to become, more often than not, food for the table.

To many people, the word rabbit conjures up visions of bunnies and Easter. But to others, rabbits mean sales for food, fur and laboratory use. To these people, rabbits are livestock.

The rabbit business is still relatively small, but interest in the animal as a commercial proposition is growing steadily. The American Rabbit Breeders Association, Inc., founded 52 years ago, has 20,000 members, up from 8,000 five years ago.

Bob Bennett, former publicity director of the association and author of a book on rabbits, estimated that there are 200,000 breeders in the nation, ranging from commercial farmers producing thousands of animals to individuals who keep a few rabbits in the backyard.

Bennett said almost 35 million pounds of rabbit meat representing about 8.5 million animals are sold annually, with wholesale prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.25 a pound, depending on whether the animal is live or dressed. The fur used in coats and as trimming on a wide variety of items is a by-product of these rabbits. So are such novelties as the "lucky" rabbit's foot.

behind more conventional meats in popularity, however. The amount of rabbit meat sold every year in this country is only about one-thousandth of one per cent of the total U.S. meat production.

Rabbit has long been a popular food in Europe and South America; the average Italian ate over five pounds of rabbit in 1973. The U.S. Department of Agriculture says rabbit meat has more protein and less calories than any beef, pork, poultry or lamb. Why, then, don't Americans eat more rabbit meat?

The problem, according to Bennett, is partly in the name.

People think of rabbits as pets and the idea of eating the meat is repulsive to many. "Other meat animals get less sympathy," Bennett said, "partly because they are not as appealing while alive and partly because their promoters have contrived a pseudonym for their carcasses: beef, pork, mutton.

Many people don't know what rabbit meat tastes like. Even the experts can't agree, saying it does — or doesn't — taste like chicken.

Not even the U.S. Department of Agriculture knows for sure how many rabbits there are in the country, mainly because, unlike beef, rabbit meat does not have to be inspected before it is sold.

Bennett estimated that about 12 million of the long-eared animals are raised in the United States every year.

In addition to the 8.5 million animals raised as food, two million are used in scientific and pharmaceutical laboratories for tests. An uncounted number are raised as pets or for show.

The rabbit breeders association says rabbits can make fine pets. But they stress that you need space for a hutch and proper food, including commercial pellets that include alfalfa and grains.

"There's more to feeding a rabbit than giving it a carrot," said Miss Tischbein, adding that contrary to what most people believe, fresh greens can be fatal to a rabbit who isn't used to them.

Milton C. Searle, executive director of the Denver-based American Humane Association, said the baby rabbit "is one of the most popular pets." He said no one knows how many pet rabbits there are, "but I would imagine 10 million or so. Very few people have just one rabbit. If they have a rabbit, they have two or three."

The giving of rabbits at Easter, however, is a problem, according to Searle. "No consideration is given as to what's going to happen afterwards. People buy them on the spur of the moment."

Within a few days, Searle said, the child gets bored with the rabbit, the parents don't want to bother with it and the animal is turned over to the local humane society and destroyed.

If you're serious about wanting a rabbit and you have the space and time, there's one other thing to remember, especially if you purchase more than one: it's true what they say about rabbits.

"Rabbits are rabbits," said Bennett. "They mate like rabbits."

'EARS LOOKING AT YOU — A floppy-eared tan, one of an estimated 12 million rabbits raised for fun or profit each year, peers inquisitively from his backyard cage. The hoppy critter, belonging to breeder Bob Bennet of Wycoff, N.J., will probably escape the fate of about 8.5 million domestic rabbits in the U.S. which will be sold for their meat and pelts.

Jury urges end to honorary sheriff badges

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An end to giving out honorary deputy sheriff's badges was urged Thursday by the San Diego County grand jury.

There are about 350 members of the Honorary Deputy Sheriffs Association whose bylaws say it is a law enforcement-oriented group pledged to help the sheriff's department financially and by lobbying.

In a letter to county supervisors, the grand jury said the organization should be abolished if Sheriff John Duffy declines to recall the badges.

No violations of the law were uncovered, the jury said.

Sardine cracker snacks packed with nutrition

The recent emphasis on nutrition has caused snacks to fare rather badly in many households. Realistically, this fate is undeserved and unnecessary. For, if you plan on eating wholesome foods, between-meal snacks can be essential for fulfilling your daily nutritional requirements.

A handful of nuts, fresh and dried fruits, crisp vegetables and canned fish, such as sardines, all offer good flavor and nutritional benefits.

Sardines in particular are an excellent choice for snacking. Besides being tasty, a snack of sardines will provide for some of the nutrients that people often don't get enough of in their regular meals. For example, sardines supply some of the nutrients found in green vegetables, fruits and grains, such as vitamin A, some B vitamins, niacin and several key minerals.

A simple midday snack of sardines, offered with crisp crackers, contribute many of the nutrients found in that glass of whole milk and hamburger patty planned for dinner. In comparison to a glass of milk, a three-ounce serving of sardines provides the same amount of calcium and phosphorus and more vitamin D. That same serving will also contribute the same amount of protein and iron as in an equal weight of cooked hamburger, yet will be lower in saturated fats.

Of course, sardines shouldn't be limited to just snacks. As fine as they are for snacking, sardines can also be the basis for wholesome everyday meals. And with such fine nutrition outlined above, it takes only a serving from the grain and vegetable food groups to build a balanced menu.

NORDIC BUTTERTHINS

12 crispbread wafers
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1 tablespoon seasoning salt (optional)
1 can (3¾ ounces) sardines, drained

Brush one side of wafers with melted butter. Sprinkle with seasoning salt, if desired. Arrange on cookie sheet. Bake at 400 degrees about 5 minutes, or until lightly browned. Cool on rack. Serve with sardines. Pass lemon wedges.

Makes 1 dozen.

CRACKER SNACK PUFFS

1 cup mayonnaise
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ teaspoon onion salt
12 rye crackers
Paprika
1 can (3¾ ounces) sardines, drained

Blend mayonnaise, Parmesan cheese and onion salt. Spoon rounded tablespoon of mixture onto crackers. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 425 degrees 5 minutes or until golden. Top with 2 sardines. Serve at once.

Makes 1 dozen.

GRILLED CHEESE TOASTIES

2 dozen rectangular crackers (like rye wafers or rye crisp)
Mustard (optional)
12 slices American cheese
1 can (3¾ ounces) sardines, drained

Arrange half the crackers on cookie sheet. Brush with mustard, if desired. Halve cheese slices and place 2 halves on each cracker. Broil or bake until cheese melts. Arrange 2 sardines on melted cheese. Top with second cracker. Serve at once.

Makes 1 dozen.

MIDNIGHT CRACKER SNACKS

¼ cup each butter and Worcestershire sauce
24 whole wheat wafers
2 cans (3¾ ounces each) sardines, drained

In small skillet, heat butter and Worcestershire sauce until butter melts. Dip crackers in mixture quickly, to coat both sides. Arrange crackers on cookie sheet. Bake in 350 degree oven for 10 minutes. Cool on rack 2 minutes. Top each cracker with 2 sardines. Serve warm.

Makes 2 dozen.

Veal dish a tasty one for dieters

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Not many Americans eat veal, probably because of the high prices being asked for this delicate meat. Our per capita consumption, I am told, is only about five pounds a year compared to 114 pounds of beef.

In Italy, veal is generally preferred to beef and it enjoys popularity in France and Germany. The Italians dress the meat up in a wide variety of ways, from vitello tonnato with a sauce of tuna fish and anchovies to parmigiana, which consists of very thin slices coated with parmesan cheese.

Veal should be braised or roasted or, if cut thin, sauteed as you do for scaloppini. Since it is very lean, it should never be broiled.

Veal is usually abundant in late winter and spring. At other times of the year, meat sold as veal may be darker in color, a sign that it comes from an older animal than the true veal calf.

America's ultimate grade of veal raised in Wisconsin from Holstein stock and marked "plume de veau" on its outer skin has a creamy white flesh and costs plenty, much more than you ordinarily pay for the standard veal roast.

Veal need not be a prohibitive luxury. If you have the time for lengthy cooking, there are some fine dishes to be made from the shin of the calf, the breast or the strips of meat cut from between the end of the ribs next to the flank.

One of the best reasonable veal dishes is ossi buchi, from the Lombard region of northern Italy. It is made from the shin of very young veal sawn into short chunks and stewed with tomato and white wine.

Weight watchers will find that veal is a good diet dish that comes in many attractive, nonfattening forms. This delicate meat serves, for example, as the base for a tasty dish known as the veal bird. It is true that the cutlet used for this entree is costly, but bear in mind that the one pound called for in the following recipe feeds four people.

2 tablespoons margarine
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ pound chopped fresh mushrooms
10 ounces frozen chopped spinach
¼ teaspoon tabasco
½ teaspoon dried leaf basil
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 pound thin-sliced veal cutlet (8 clices)
1 cup chicken broth

Melt margarine in skillet, add onion and mushrooms and cook until tender. Add thawed spinach, tabasco, basil, salt, cheese and lemon rind. Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Place 2 tablespoons stuffing on center of each veal slice, roll and secure with toothpicks. Place veal rolls in skillet and add chicken broth. Cover and simmer about 20 minutes until veal is tender. Serves 4. Good with chilled dry white wine.

Supper idea

If the whole gang is coming for a casual evening, you'll appreciate this late night supper idea that's hot and hearty yet free from last minute fuss. Simply fill split individual rolls with your favorite sloppy Joe recipe and top the ground beef mixture with a sprinkling of shredded mozzarella cheese. Wrap each sandwich in aluminum foil and refrigerate. All that's left to do before serving is to place the sandwiches in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for approximately 30 minutes or until heated through.

America's menu variety traced back to 1776

The diverse food heritage which Americans enjoy today is due to the influence of many ethnic groups. In 1776, as now, there were vast differences in what families ate in different parts of the colonies.

In early New England, even after the Revolution, most people in rural areas raised their own food, buying only salt. The earliest grocery stores were founded for selling spices, tea, coffee and sugar.

Today, in contrast, only seven percent of the population produces food for the entire country and the average supermarket carries 8,000 items.

Salt was most important to the early colonists, as it was used not only for flavoring, but also for preserving food.

Wild game and fish were abundant in early New England. Beef was available only when cows had outlived their usefulness. Sheep were used only for wool and chickens usually only for eggs.

Leafy green vegetables were believed to have little nutritive value. Vegetables such as carrots, cabbages, parsnips and turnips were popular because they could be stored during the winter.

The New York Dutch added doughnuts, cruellers and waffles to the American diet and the Germans introduced coleslaw, knockwurst, hamburgers and frankfurters.

Pork was the main meat of the Southern colonists, although chicken and fish were also popular.

Southerner Thomas Jefferson introducerd ice cream to the White House and probably was the first to serve french fried potatoes with beef steak. Martin Van Buren complained that Jefferson used public money to raise strawberries, raspberries and cauliflower for his table.

The Creoles, a mixture of Spanish and French ancestry, were another group whose food preferances influenced American diets.

When the pioneer families began moving west, they depended on the jolting of the wagons to help raise bread dough.

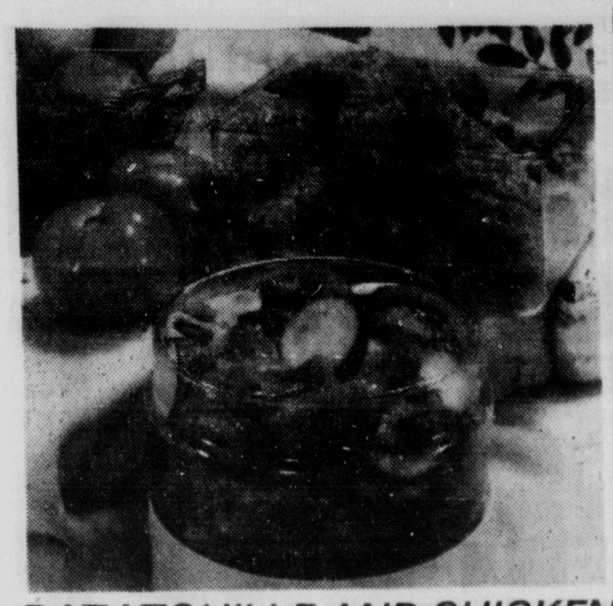
When on the trails, frontiersmen carried in their pockets a "veal glew" prepared by their wives and undoubtedly a forerunner of either dried soups or bouillion cubes.

There is little information on how and what children ate in the early years of the country, but it can be assumed that they were considered of secondary importance since writers mention their being seated "below the salt." Often, at company meals, children ate in the kitchen.

Two centuries ago, colonial children were often victims of scurvy, rickets and epidemics. Today, the major nutritional disorders of children are obesity, dental caries and iron deficiency anemia.

To prevent nutritional disorders in both children and adults, the California Dietetic Association recommends daily selections from each of the Four Food Groups (milk, meat, vegetables and fruits and breads and cereals).

That's two servings from the milk group (children need three and teenagers four), two servings from the meat group, four from the vegetables and fruits group and four from the breads and cereals group.



RATATOUILLE AND CHICKEN

A fresh approach to picnic eating

Somebody shouts, let's go on a picnic, and everyone within hearing distance immediately seconds the notion. Alas, this jubilant reaction is sometimes followed by memories of soggy sandwiches and lukewarm drinks. A picnic, says the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, can be as delicious as the meals you serve at home when you include convenient, nutritious and flavorful fresh fruits and vegetables in the picnic basket.

For example, an excellent picnicker's choice is the famous medley of vegetables called Ratatouille, a French country dish. Chilled Ratatouille, made with summer vegetables — eggplant, zucchini, green pepper, tomatoes, seasoned with herbs, garlic and onion — can be prepared and refrigerated the day before the picnic. The garden fresh flavor goes well with grilled meats, sandwiches or fried chicken. A nutritious dish, it is suitable for an outdoor excursion where physical activity is often at peak. For instance, green peppers and tomatoes are high in vitamin C.

The refreshing, juicy tomato has a wide range of practical, mouth-watering picnic uses. You can slice tomatoes onto sandwiches or grilled meats, and toss them in green salads. Or pass them around with a little salt to eat like a fruit.

Select firm, unblemished tomatoes that are heavy for their size. And remember, for maximum flavor, the tomato should be eaten when it's red ripe.. Get into the habit of purchasing tomatoes several days before you use them, and place them atop the refrigerator in a brown bag three to five days or until they are fully ripe.

For another fresh idea to improve picnics, take along a choice of luscious, fresh fruits. They're colorful and thirst-quenching. Include them in your picnic meal plan as snacks and desserts. Neither plates nor utensils are needed, and there's no preparation at home. Peaches, plums, nectarines, dark sweet cherries and watermelon, to name a few, are in good supply during these picnicking months and are often attractive buys. Get a good selection and enjoy the picnicker's compliments on your choice.

PICNIC PACKING TIPS

PICNIC CHICKEN — Bake in 325-degree oven for 1 hour, or until chicken is tender. Cool slightly, after cooking, put in a shallow, lightweight covered container and refrigerate overnight. Pack in insulated picnic chest just before leaving.

FRESH ROLLS OR FRENCH BREAD — Pack an assortment of rolls or a loaf of French bread in a picnic basket that does not carry moist or wet foods. Place at top of basket to prevent being crushed. Freeze desired amount of butter or margarine in a small covered container, then pack in insulated picnic chest last minute.

FRESH FRUITS FOR SNACKS AND DESSERTS — Most fresh fruits do not require refrigeration. However, if you prefer them cold, refrigerate overnight and pack in insulated chest just before leaving for picnic. Pack the larger fruits and those with rigid surfaces, such as melons, at the bottom of picnic basket. Pack softer fruits like peaches, plums, nectarines, grapes, cherries, etc. in bags and place them at the top of the picnic basket to prevent crushing. All berries should be kept cold. Leave them in store-bought containers and pack securely at top of insulated chest where they will not be crushed or jostled.

PICNIC DRINKS — Fill plastic milk jugs or other plastic containers that have tight-fitting lids with fresh lemonade or fresh orange juice, leaving about an inch of air-space at the top. Place jug in freezer overnight, pack in insulated chest the last minute. Pour off the juice as it melts for an ice cold fresh fruit drink. Large block of ice helps keep insulated chest cold. You can also tote picnic drinks in a vacuum jug.

CHILLED PICNIC RATATOUILLE

- ¼ cup salad or olive oil
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 onion, sliced
- 1 green pepper, seeded and cut in strips
- 3 medium unpared zucchini, cut into ¼-inch slices
- 1 medium eggplant, pared and cut in cubes
- 2 teaspoons dried leaf basil
- 1 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 3 tomatoes, peeled and cut in wedges

Heat oil in large skillet, add garlic, onion, green pepper and zucchini; cook about 3 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring frequently. Add eggplant, basil, oregano, salt and pepper; cover and cook over medium heat 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add tomato wedges, cover and cook 5 minutes longer or just until tomatoes are heated. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Pack in container with a tight lid to carry to picnic. Makes: 6 servings.

Note: To remove skins from tomatoes, plunge tomatoes one at a time in saucepan of boiling water for about 30 seconds. Skins will slip off easily.

HOLT AND INDIAN HILL — POMONA

Sardines with salads make entire meals

By Cecily Brownstone

When I was growing up in Canada, off our large kitchen was a small windowless room where the "groceries" were kept. My mother called it the "larder" and woe to anyone who misnamed it the "pantry"!

Our pantry, always called the "butler's pantry," was the narrow passageway between the kitchen and dining room where dishes, glassware, silver and table linen were stored. To a little girl the only interesting part of that long narrow room was the special sink with its extraordinarily long-necked faucets for washing tall glass decanters and pitchers, goblets, large soup tureens and platters and so forth. The pantry itself held no allure because it was too intimately connected with a job I disliked but often had to do: setting the table.

But the larder was another matter. That was where the cookies were in fancy tins, the wheel of "rat" cheese was in its special glass container and there was other provender I relished: catchup, chili sauce, ripe olives, pickles, sardines.

The sardines were particularly interesting. First, the flat can itself — so different from others. Next, the can had a key! Most miraculous of all — the way my mother could unroll the top to reveal the ingeniously packed fish. And I loved the snacks she concocted with the sardines — each rolled in a slice of bread, the outside of the roll buttered and then oven-toasted.

I think one of the best ways to serve small (brisling) sardines is with salads and so here are suggestions of my own. I find that each of these six salads makes a substantial main course for lunch or supper when accompanied by the sardines. I like to serve the sardines separately, right in the can — camouflaging its outside with a ring of parsley clusters — and let eaters help themselves.

A platter of stuffed eggs, cooked artichoke hearts, lettuce, cherry tomatoes, ripe olives, feta or another cheese with oil-and-vinegar dressing.

Waldorf Salads, that popular combination of apple and celery or apple, celery and walnuts with mayonnaise.

Fresh young spinach leaves, sliced fresh raw mushrooms and crisp bacon with oil-and-vinegar dressing.

Cabbage and carrot slaw made with mayonnaise or cooked dressing.

Cooked green peas tossed with small cubes of cheddar cheese, sliced tiny gherkins and mayonnaise.

Romaine or endive, pickled beets and sliced hard-cooked eggs with oil-and-vinegar dressing.

BLENDER PANCAKES
- 2 cups milk
- 1 cup flour
- ½ cup wheat germ
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons salad oil

In an electric blender whirl together all the ingredients until smooth; let stand a few minutes. Ladle batter onto a hot (380 degrees) greased electric griddle; turn when top surfaces are almost dry. Yield will depend on how large you make the pancakes.

Fruit and Cheese

SARDINE EGG SALAD
- 4 hard-cooked eggs
- 1 tablespoon mayonnaise
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon anchovy paste

CHERRY COBBLER
Revised version of one of the best recipes for this dessert.
- ¾ cup flour, stir to aerate before measuring
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- ½ cup quick oats
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- Two 16-ounce cans red tart pitted cherries (water pack)
- 2/3 rds cup granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 teaspoon slamond extract
- 1/3 rd cup butter or margarine, melted

In a medium mixing bowl stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon; stir in brown sugar and oats; with a fork or pastry blender work in egg until mixture is crumbly. Drain cherries, reserving 1 cup liquid. In a medium saucepan stir together the granulated sugar and cornstarch, keeping smooth; gradually stir in reserved cherry liquid; over moderate heat, stirring constantly, cook until thickened, clear and boiling. Off heat, stir in cherries and almond extract; pour into a 9 by 9 by 1¾-inch cake pan; sprinkle evenly with oat mixture; drizzle with butter. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until browned — 25 to 30 minutes. Serve warm. Top with vanilla ice cream. Makes 9 servings.

A good glaze

Chinese duck sauce, usually served along with hot mustard, with Chinese egg rolls, makes a good glaze for baked ham or smoked boneless pork shoulder. You can thin the sauce with a little orange juice and add a little prepared mustard, if you like, when you are using it as a glaze.

Cost-saving meal features chicken with pineapple

All of us know how costly it can be to entertain friends, particularly if they are coming for dinner.

To save on your budget and still serve a meal that will delight your guests, consider "Sesame Baked Chicken," and inexpensive springtime dish, which features a very distinctive pineapple sauce.

Your family also will enjoy this classic recipe. The method is quick and easy.

Chicken halves are crusted with a sesame seed coating, then oven-baked. Turn after the first 20 minutes, continue baking until almost tender. At this point, push the chicken to one end of the pan. Add canned pineapple chunks along with some of the pineapple syrup, a little lemon juice, mustard and ginger. Continue baking about 15 minutes longer.

To serve, cut the chicken pieces in halves and surround each portion with the golden pineapple sauce.

SESAME BAKED CHICKEN

- 1 (1 pound 4 ounce) can pineapple chunks
- 1 frying chicken (about 2½ pounds), cut in halves
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 1 large egg
- 1 tablespoon water
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons sesame seeds
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1¼ teaspoons salt
- 1/3 cup pineapple syrup
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon prepared mustard
- ¼ teaspoon powdered ginger

Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. Rinse chicken, and pat dry. Place butter in shallow baking pan (9 x 13 x 2 inches) and set in oven to melt slowly as oven heats to moderate (350 degrees). Beat egg with 1 tablespoon water in a small bowl. Combine flour, sesame seeds, paprika and 1 teaspoon salt on a sheet of waxed paper. Brush chicken with egg mixture, and roll in flour-sesame mixture to coat thoroughly on all sides. Place skin sides down in pan with melted butter. Bake 20 minutes. Turn carefully, and bake 20 minutes longer. Combine drained pineapple chunks, 1/3 cup reserved pineapple syrup, lemon juice, mustard, ginger and remaining ¼ teaspoon salt. Push chicken to one end of pan, and drain off any fat. Add pineapple mixture to pan, and return to oven for 10 to 15 minutes, or until chicken tests done. To serve, remove chicken to serving platter, and pour sauce around it. Cut each chicken piece in halves to serve. Makes 4 servings.

Jewish dessert to top off meal

No meal is quite complete without a tasty ending. Just as a good letter needs an appropriate complimentary close and just as a good novel needs an exciting climax, a good meal needs the right dessert.

For many, dessert is the best part of the meal. This peach noodle kugel recipe represents an unusual taste treat with which to conclude a meal.

A baked pudding, this dessert of Jewish origin is served with a streusel topping. This is one of those Old World recipes that have flourished in this country with the growing interest in ethnic cooking.

PEACH, NOODLE KUGEL

- 1 8-ounce package wide egg noodles
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 eggs
- 4 cup sugar
- 1½ tablespoons grated lemon peel
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- ½ cup dark seedless raisins
- 1 16-ounce can sliced cling peaches

Streusel topping (below)

About two hours before serving, preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 1½-quart rectangular, heat-resistant glass baking dish. Prepare noodles as label directs; drain. In large mixing bowl, toss hot noodles with butter or marmarine. In medium bowl, with wire whisk or fork, beat eggs, sugar, lemon peel and salt until well mixed; stir in milk and raisins. Stir mixture into noodles; pour into dish. Bake 30 minutes. Remove dish from oven; arrange peach slices on top and sprinkle evenly with streusel topping. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes or more. Let stand about 30 minutes for easier cutting and serving. Serve warm. Makes 10 servings.

Streusel topping is made in small saucepan over low heat. Melt two tablespoons butter or margarine; stir in ¼ cup dried bread crumbs and ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Cutting fudge

It's easiest to cut fudge into neat uniform pieces when it is removed from the pan. If you want to do this, line the pan with foil with lap-over edges, then lightly butter the foil. When the fudge is cold, it can be lifted out of the pan onto a cutting board.

Flavor added

Grated orange rind or slivered orange peel (yellow part only) gives beef or lamb stew an interesting flavor.

To enjoy the weekend, make Friday count

A weekend to relax! It's become the American mini-dream!

We don't have the magic formula but we do have the common sense approach.

Make Friday count. Plan, shop and prepare so that at least the weekend meals come off handsomely without destroying the cook's chance for some relaxation.

While weekend plans are often spur-of-the-moment and subject to quick change, a skeletal meal plan, to be given a casual or a fancy fillip as the occasion demands, will ease the mind of the cook.

Start with a couple of chickens. Simmer them on Friday, then refrigerate the diced cooked meat for use in sandwiches, with noodles, in casseroles, or for a fancy touch in crepes. The latter might be for a company luncheon, a family dinner or Sunday morning brunch.

The crepes, of course, have been prepared days earlier and kept fresh in the refrigerator or have been stored in the freezer.

Baked ham is another good week-end staple. Try it with our mild, yet distinctively flavored, Mustard Sauce which is better the second day when the flavors have mellowed together. Securely covered, the sauce will refrigerate for a week or more.

For dessert, surprise the family with cheesecake, made in minutes, then refrigerated to "ripen." Be sure to wrap tightly in plastic wrap to avoid picking up other flavors. This is particularly important with delicate flavors, as in the cheesecake, which are very vulnerable to "absorbing" other flavors. Serve the cheesecake plain or topped with canned fruit pie filling or your choice of frozen fruits.

CHICKEN IN CREPES

Crepes: Prepare according to manufacturer's directions for crepe pan. Separate the stacked crepes with a single sheet of paper towel if they tend to stick together. Wrap securely in plastic wrap to prevent drying. Store in refrigerator or freezer.

Chicken Filling:
- 3 cups diced cooked chicken
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- ½ cup cream
- 1 can (5 oz.) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
- ¼ cup sliced green olives, optional

Stir ingredients together and heat gently, just until hot. When ready to serve, spoon into center third of crepes, cover with sides. Top with sauce. Serve immediately.

Sauce:
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- ½ cup white wine
- ½ cup shredded Swiss cheese

Mix and heat gently just to serving temperature.

CHEESE CAKE

Crust:
- 1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
- 1/3 cup brown sugar, packed
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/3 cup melted butter or margarine

Mix all ingredients until crumbly; press onto bottom and sides of buttered 8x8x2-inch pan (cover about 1½ inches on sides).

Filling:
- 12 oz. cream cheese
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 1 carton (16 oz.) dairy sour cream

Beat together cream cheese, eggs, sugar, vanilla and 1 cup of the sour cream until very creamy. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. Spread the remaining cup of sour cream over top of hot cheesecake. Cool.

For optimum flavor, cover the cooled cheesecake securely with plastic wrap, refrigerate for one to several days to allow flavors to mellow.

MUSTARD SAUCE
- 1 cup light cream or evaporated milk
- ¼ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons dry mustard
- 1 tablespoon flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
- ¼ cup hot vinegar

In a heavy saucepan or double boiler, heat ¾ cup of the cream. Add sugar. Stir remaining ¼ cup cream into a mixture of the mustard, flour and salt. Stir into hot mixture and simmer, stirring, until thickened.

Add a little of the hot mixture to the egg yolk, stirring constantly, then stir into remaining mixture. Simmer, stirring, until thickened and smooth. Gradually stir in vinegar. Serve warm or chilled with ham. Flavor mellows and improves if refrigerated, tightly covered with plastic wrap, for a day or so before serving.

Meat counter values waiting for consumers

Consumers can expect continued low retail beef prices in the immediate future and reductions in pork prices later this year, a leading executive of the country's meat industry said.

David H. Stroud of Chicago, president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, said beef is expected to remain in good supply for the next few months and prices will remain attractive to consumers.

He also said that increases in hog production will become apparent in the market by late summer, accompanied by declining prices for pork.

"Beef prices broke sharply in late February and have continued at very low levels," said Stroud. "Although cattle producers and feeders are once again in a serious economic situation, consumers have an excellent opportunity to stock up on beef."

The meat industry executive said the drop in beef prices was caused by the large marketing of fed cattle. With a good crop of feed grains in 1975, cattle feeders placed more animals on feed. They started coming to market in large numbers early in 1976. He predicted that supplies would decline slightly toward the middle of the year, causing prices to stabilize or perhaps increase slightly.

Stroud cited recent government figures indicating an approximate 12 per cent increase in hog production for the period December 1975-May 1976 as the basis for his prediction that pork prices would drop.

"The increase in hog production reported by the most recent U.S. Department of Agriculture bulletins, marks the first time in several years hog producers have been optimistic," said Stroud.

Stroud said the bottom has fallen out of the market for beef cattle and that the outlook for hog and sheep producers is "uncertain."

"After two years on an economic roller coaster, the cattle sector especially finds itself struggling once again to get back up to the break-even point," Stroud said. "It's expected that supplies will return to a more even flow by early summer. That, of course, is small solace to those who are taking a beating in the marketplace now. But given good weather, and another year of good feed crop production, there is hope for a return to orderly production and marketing and a resultant stabilization in prices."

STRAWBERRY ALMOND FLOAT

Keep it simple with strawberries

Strawberries are elegant and delicious no matter how you serve them. Simply is the best way.

This is the time of year to really enjoy them in their natural state; served for dipping in sour cream and mounds of brown or powdered sugar or for dunking into chocolate fondue.

Thanks to Mother Nature's gift of sandy loam soil and mild California climate this year, strawberries will be available from early April till late fall. But right now is the peak of fresh California strawberry season and that means the supply will be especially plentiful in local markets.

For the homemaker who knows how fast these tempting red beauties disappear, it's a great time to be extra generous with strawberry purchases. Buy enough for that scrumptuous dessert you are planning but don't forget to allow for strawberry snitchers. Some people just can't wait to bite into that fresh-as-springtime flavor.

When choosing strawberries in your market be sure to shop for fully ripened, bright red strawberries. They do not ripen appreciably after being picked. Choose berries that are plump and well rounded, with a natural shine, rich red color and bright green, fresh looking caps. Strawberries are delicate and require the gentlest of handling. Never wash strawberries or remove caps until just before using. Washing removes the natural protective outer layer. The caps protect the strawberries and help preserve flavor, texture and nutrients.

Strawberry simplicity is at its best in this Strawberry Almond Float, an orientally inspired recipe that really shows how strawberries can be used to show off their fresh, delicate flavor and texture.

A simple but elegant dish, this dessert combines a lightly almond flavored gelatin with slightly sweetened strawberries and crunchy sliced almonds.

STRAWBERRY ALMOND FLOAT
- 2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup sugar
- 3½ cups milk
- 2 teaspoons almond extract
- 1 pint fresh strawberries, sliced
- Sliced almonds

In saucepan, combine gelatin and sugar. Stir in 1 cup of the milk. Heat, just until gelatin dissolves. Remove from heat. Add remaining milk and almond extract. Pour into 1 quart mold. Chill until firm. Meanwhile sweeten sliced berries to taste. At serving time, invert mold onto dessert plate. Unmold. Surround with berries. Sprinkle with sliced almonds. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: Can be molded in 6 custard cups, as well, for individual servings.

A salmon loaf may fill the bill

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I've been using your recipe for salmon patties and my husband, likes them so much. I'm wondering whether you have a recipe for salmon loaf. Perhaps I missed it. — PRACTICAL

DEAR PRACTICAL: Here's a new recipe for a salmon loaf that I've just tried. It's different from the usual recipe of this sort because it calls for grated Swiss cheese. Two of my sisters tasted it and liked it very much. I'm hoping your husband will approve. — C.B.

SWISS SALMON LOAF
- One 15½-ounce or two 7¾-ounce cans salmon
- Milk
- 1 egg
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1 cup grated (medium-fine) Swiss cheese, not packed down
- ¼ cup finely chopped celery
- ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ cup fine dry breadcrumbs
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted

Shape a sheet of regular-weight foil around the outside of an 8 by 4 by 3 inch loaf pan, having the foil extend 1 inch over the edges. Remove foil and fit it into the pan, bending the extended edges over the rim so they are on the outside of the pan. Butter foil. The foil is used so the loaf can be lifted out of the pan; it can not be turned out in the usual fashion.

Drain and flake salmon without removing skin and bones; add enough milk to the salmon liquid to make ¾ cup. Mix salmon and the liquid with all the remaining ingredients except the dry breadcrumbs and the butter. Turn into the prepared pan. Mix the dry breadcrumbs and the butter and sprinkle over top. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until lightly browned on top — 50 minutes. Let stand for 10 minutes. Turn up the edges of the foil and lift loaf out of pan to heated serving platter. Cut away foil from around sides; do not try to remove it from the bottom. Cut loaf and lift slices from foil. Makes 6 servings.

KITCHEN SINK POT PIE

Prepare pastry (1 package — 10 ounce — pie crust mix) as package directs, except before adding liquid, stir in ½ cup shredded cheddar cheese. Roll pastry into a 9-inch circle; line a 2-quart casserole or deep dish pie pan. Save enough pastry for strips. Combine two cans of wide-ruffled canned pasta and meatballs, 1 can (8 ounce) whole potatoes (drained and diced), 1 can (8 ounces) diced carrots (drained), 1 can (12 ounce) luncheon meat (diced), ¼ cup chopped green pepper and ¼ cup chopped onion. Pour mixture into casserole. Place pastry strips on top. Bake 20 to 25 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Serves 4 to 6.

New England Temptation recreated

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

Like many other advocates of cooking from scratch, we also appreciate quick-to-make dishes from prepared products that are really good. When we find one of the latter, we're eager to pass it along.

Our latest find is a baked dish made with a package of scalloped potatoes and a can of minced clams plus ingredients likely to be in the refrigerator. It's fine to serve as a main dish with a salad, followed by dessert, for Saturday lunch or Sunday night supper. Or it may be used as a buffet dish with turkey or ham. It's clam flavor is delicate.

We call the dish New England Temptation because the friend who created it modeled its flavor after creamy New England clam chowder and its form after a famous Swedish offering called Jansson's Temptation in which sliced potatoes are baked with cream, butter, onion rings and anchovies. The antecedents of New England Temptation are honorable — and so is the dish.

NEW ENGLAND TEMPTATION

1/3 cup thin strips lean salt pork (each about ½-inch wide and 1-inch long), rinsed and dried
5⅝ ounce package scalloped potatoes
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
8-ounce can minced clams
Boiling water
2/3 cup milk
2 tablespoons minced parsley
Fresh ground pepper to taste

In a small skillet over low heat cook the salt pork until golden.

Into a 1½-quart oblong glass baking dish (10 by 6 by 1¾ inches) or similar utensil pour the potatoes from the package. Dot with the butter. Sprinkle with seasoning mix from potato package.

Drain liquid from clams into a 1-quart measure; add enough boiling water to make 2 and 1/3 cups; stir in milk. Pour over potatoes and stir to mix. Add drained clams, parsley and pepper; stir to distribute clams. Top with salt pork strips.

Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 325-degree oven until potatoes are tender and their edges plus those of the salt pork strips are lightly browned — about 1 hour.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

A dessert to go along with turkey

Celebrate spring with elegant menus featuring turkey. Turkey is more than holiday fare and an ever-popular entree to offer your family and guests.

Plan on 1½ pounds per person for ready to stuff birds. This allows general servings with extra for snacks and other turkey dishes.

For festive springtime fare, serve roasted turkey with fresh asparagus salad and Lime-Fluff Dessert.

To prepare the asparagus salad, use fresh or frozen spears. Precook and chill the asparagus. At serving time arrange the asparagus on a large serving platter with cherry tomatoes. Heat Italian salad dressing and pour over the salad before serving. Crisp crumbled bacon may be added, if desired.

Lime-Fluff Dessert is an easy to prepare dish which can be made in advance. Lime gelatin is added to whipped evaporated milk creating a cool; refreshing dessert, perfect for springtime and an elegant turkey dinner.

Lime-Fluff Dessert
Yield: 10 — 12 servings

13 ½ ounce can evaporated milk, chilled
3 ounce package lime gelatin
½ cup boiling water
½ cup sugar
Juice of 1 lime

Whip evaporated milk until stiff. Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add sugar to gelatin. Gradually fold gelatin mixture into whipped milk. Add lime juice. (Green food coloring may be added for brighter color.) Pour into a 13 by 9 by 2-inch pan or into a 2-quart souffle dish. Garnish with fresh lime slices and strawberries.

Car radio may not be same

MIAMI (AP) — That new General Motors' car you bought may not have the American-built GM radio you thought it came equipped with. It's a good chance you've paid top dollar for a cheaper, foreign imitation.

Hundreds of GM dealers, primarily Chevrolet outlets, are making extra profits by installing Japanese radios for new car buyers who think they are getting radios by Delco, a GM division. The customer pays the same retail price and apparently gets as good a product, but the Japanese radios cost the dealers only half as much as Delco's.

The problem is so widespread that Delco has placed advertisements in national magazines advising purchasers to "Tell your dealer 'Delco.' Don't settle for a look-alike radio in your new GM car."

John Crawford, general sales manager for Delco Electronics in Kokomo, Ind., said the firm also has started putting a standard Delco-GM trademark on its radios to help consumers identify them.

Spokesmen for Ford and Chrysler said they knew of no such situation in their firms. An American Motors spokesman said a preliminary check showed his company "may have a few isolated instances of this."

Moose learn

At Jackson Hole, Wyo., a rancher feeds his horses at 10 o'clock each morning. Knowing this, the horses line up at that hour to trot single-file into the corral gate. Invariably, at the end of the line are three or four moose who have learned of the daily handout, the National Geographic Society reports.

Her Refrigerator Rolls are still a favorite

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

When a friend of mine, Nancy Bates, was 10 years old her mother taught her how to bake Refrigerator Rolls. Now in her early 30s, Nancy is still baking them from the same fine Southern recipe.

But two changes. Nancy remembers, as a child, putting cooked potato through a ricer to have the mashed potato called for. These days she uses instant mashed potato granules as a time-saver. She also uses salad oil instead of shortening to speed things.

When I tasted the rolls at Nancy's house I couldn't stop eating them — they're that good. When I looked around, I saw Nancy's other guests doing exactly the same thing — downing them by the handful!

BETTY BATES' REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

- ¾ cup water
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1¼ cups milk
- ¼ cup (½ of a 5-serving envelope) instant mashed potato granules
- 1 package active dry yeast
- ½ cup warm water
- 2/3 rds cup oil
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 6½ cups (about) flour, stir to aerate before measuring
- 2 eggs

In a small saucepan over medium heat bring to a boil the water, butter and ¼ cup of the milk; add potato granules, whipping briskly with a fork. There should be about 1 cup. Cool to room temperature. Scald the remaining milk. Dissolve the yeast in the warm water. Into a large mixing bowl turn the potatoes, oil, sugar and salt; pour in scalded milk; stir to dissolve sugar. Add 2 cups of the flour; beat well. Thoroughly beat in the eggs, one at a time. Stir in the yeast. Stir in enough of the remaining flour to make a moderately stiff dough. On a well-floured surface, knead until smooth and satiny (about 5 minutes), sprinkling on a little flour if necessary. Shape into a ball; place in a large greased bowl; turn to grease top. Cover; refrigerate several hours or overnight. Punch down; let rest 5 minutes. Cut dough into quarters. Roll out to about ¼-inch thickness. Cut with floured 2¾-inch round cutter. Place, about 1-inch apart, on greased cookie sheets. Treat remaining portions of dough the same way. (Dough may be covered and refrigerated up to 5 days and baked as needed.) Cover and let rise in a warm draftfree place until doubled — about 1 hour. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until golden-brown — 8 to 10 minutes. (For browner rolls, brush with melted butter just before baking.) Serve at once with butter. Makes about 5 dozen.

A real Italian lasagne

This meatless Almond-Spinach Lasagne provides substantial protein, is low in saturated fat and is relatively low in calories, but does not strike a severe blow to a food budget.

Besides all this, it's good! The flavors are definitely Italian! What could be better than a little garlic, sweet basil and marinara sauce combined with ricotta and Parmesan cheeses, spinach, and crunchy roasted diced almonds layered with pasta? Although easy to prepare, it does take some time to assemble. We suggest making it several days before serving and refrigerating. Why not make two while you're at it and freeze one for a later date?

ALMOND-SPINACH LASAGNE

- 1 package (10 oz.) lasagne
- 1 cup chopped cooked or frozen spinach
- 1 cup ricotta or low-fat cottage cheese
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 clove garlic
- ½ teaspoon sweet basil
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- ¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons diced almonds, roasted
- ½ teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1 tablespoon salad oil
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 2 cups meatless spaghetti or marinara sauce

Cook lasagne according to package directions. Meanwhile, combine spinach, ricotta and ¼ cup of the Parmesan cheese. Crush garlic and basil and stir into spinach mixture along with parsley, ¼ cup almonds and seasoned salt. Heat oil; add onions and green pepper; cook until crisp-tender; combine with spaghetti sauce.

Lightly oil a 7 x 11-inch baking dish. Arrange a layer of cooked lasagne in dish; top with about ¼ of the spinach mixture. Repeat, making 4 layers. Top with spaghetti sauce. Sprinkle with remaining Parmesan cheese and almonds. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until very hot and bubbling. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Ducklings duck-naped by chicken

SAN DIEGO (AP) — June Goldsmith of the Mt. Helix area has a Rhode Island Red hen which is the proud mother of three mallard ducklings.

But Mrs. Goldsmith says it's a pure case of kidnaping. Or rather, ducknaping.

She says her hen took over the duckling nest two weeks ago, driving off the mother duck that laid the eggs.

"Everytime the duck would try to go back to the nest, the chicken would chase her off," she said.

But the misguided hen is taking fine care of her rudely adopted brood, said Mrs. Goldsmith.

"She's just a hen with a strong mother instinct," she said.

Banana Fudge can be sensational

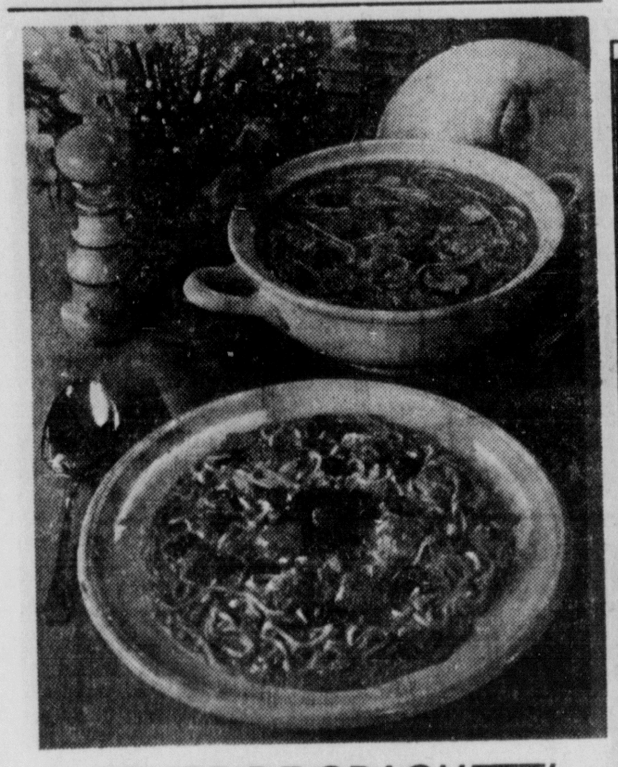
By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

Once in a while a cook creates a marvelous new recipe, but it has a short life. Somehow it doesn't make the mainstream of cookbookdom. That's what happened to a recipe for Banana Fudge; to the best of our knowledge it was developed in the '30s or '40s, but hasn't been widely heard of since. Now another cook has come up with another version, this creamier than the original formula, and we're happy to pass it along. From the point of economy alone, this candy is worth making; at current New York City prices, it costs only about $1.65 for three pounds and can double for a good many desserts.

NEW BANANA FUDGE

- 3½ cups sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup (8-ounce container light cream
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- 3 tablespoons light corn syrup
- 1 cup mashed ripe banana (3 medium)
- 1 tablespoon vanilla
- ½ cup chopped (medium-fine) walnuts

Into a heavy 2½-quart saucepan turn the sugar, salt, cream, butter, corn syrup and banana. Over moderate heat, stirring constantly, bring to a boil; over low heat continue boiling, still stirring constantly, until mixture reaches 238 degrees on a candy thermometer or a half-teaspoon of it, dropped into a cup of very cold water, forms a soft ball when it is removed to the palm of the hand. Cool without stirring until the temperature on the candy thermometer drops to 110 degrees or the bottom of the pan feels warm to the touch. Add vanilla and nuts and beat until candy becomes thick and begins to lose its gloss. Turn into a buttered 8 by 8 by 2 inch cake pan. Let stand until firm; cut into 1-inch squares. Makes 64, about 3 pounds.



SOUPE DE SPAGHETTI

Saute ½ cup sliced carrots, ½ cup sliced onion and 1 cup sliced zucchini in 2 tablespoons cooking oil until lightly browned. Reduce heat; cover and cook for 5 minutes. Add ½ cup water and ½ can (40 ounce) spaghetti and meatballs. Stir; cover. Simmer for 10 to 15 minutes. Sprinkle Parmesan cheese on top before serving. Serves 4.

This Arizona hot sauce still lives

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press
Food Editor

Before our Jane Street community garden in New York City was so willfully devastated, one of the most dedicated workers in it was Annette Gilpin, a young woman who grew up in Arizona. Although Annette helped tend the trees, shrubs, flowers and herbs in the garden she took particular care of some stray green peppers in the herb bed. No one could understand her devotion to them!

Then when harvest time came she carried off a few of the peppers in triumph and announced that she was going to use them in a specialty of her Grandfather Barney's so we could taste "a real Arizona hot sauce." Although Annette's sauce is different from her grandfather's — all the vegetables in his were fresh from his garden — it was voted super by its recipients. Her version is for all seasons and especially for urbanites.

Because Annette leads a busy life as director of volunteer workers at a large hospital, she likes to entertain informally. She usually has her sauce on hand to use the following ways:

1. As a topping for hamburgers on toasted English muffins. With the addition of the muffins and the sauce, the hamburgers are special.
2. As a topping for eggs scrambled with cheese.
3. As a topping for grilled cheese sandwiches.
4. As a stuffing for tacos along with beef, cheese and shredded lettuce.
5. As a stuffing for tomatoes and eggplant topped with cheese and baked.
6. As an addition to pinto beans.

ANNETTE GILPIN'S ALL-PURPOSE HOT SAUCE

- 1 tablespoon corn oil
- 1 large onion, chopped medium-fine (1 cup)
- ½ cup chopped (medium-fine) green pepper
- Garlic clove, minced
- 7-ounce can whole-kernel corn, drained
- 16-ounce can tomatoes, drained and chopped
- 4-ounce can roasted peeled green chilies, undrained, chopped fine with seeds included
- ½ cup small pitted ripe olives, if desired
- 3 tablespoons hot chili sauce, from an 8-ounce jar
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper

In a 10-inch skillet heat the oil. Add onion, green pepper and garlic; cook gently, stirring often, until vegetables are wilted. Add remaining ingredients and heat, stirring several times. Serve hot or cold. Store in refrigerator. Makes about 1½ pints.

Green peppers

Some eaters like their green peppers peeled, cooked and marinated with oil and vinegar. Buy green peppers without any curvatures and then you can peel them with a swivel-blade vegetable peeler; it will remove only the thin outer skin.

Homemade mint tea can be a great refresher

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press
Food Editor

We've tasted all kinds of herbal teas. How can you avoid it? They're so "in" that friends bring them as gifts; hostesses serve them at the drop of a teabag.

But it wasn't until we tasted a simple homemade formula for Mint Tea that we were fired to offer you a recipe for a herbal infusion. If you try it we hope you, too, are enthusiastic about it. In cool weather, Mint Tea is delightful served hot. In warm weather, Mint Tea is wonderfully refreshing served iced.

MINT TEA

1 tablespoon whole cloves
1 cup loose tea leaves
½ cup dried mint flakes
2 tablespoons dried diced orange peel

Wrap cloves in a piece of clean old sheeting or tripled cheesecloth. Pound with a mallet or hammer until finely crumbled. In a mixing bowl stir together the crumbled cloves, tea, mint flakes and orange peel. Store in a container with a tight fitting cover.

To brew, use one rounded teaspoonful of the Mint Tea mixture for each teacup of freshly boiled water used. Use boiling water to rinse out the inside of the teapot so it will be warm. Add the Mint Tea to the teapot; pour the boiling water over it; stir. Cover and let stand for about three minutes. Pour through a tea strainer into teacups. Pass sugar for those who wish it. To use for iced tea, pack tall glasses with ice; pour the hot Mint Tea over the ice; serve with spoon-sippers and pass finely granulated sugar for those who wish it.

Note: The dried orange peel clled for is widely available because many herb and spice companies pack it.

MORE ABOUT MINT

The British photographer and mountainer Tom Stobart, in his fascinating book titled "Herbs, Spices and Flavorings," (McGraw-Hill), writes that mint is commonly used in Spain and Italy. It is his belief, however, that "mint does not combine well with garlic." Thus he does not recommend it for Spanish and Italian dishes in which garlic is used.

Stobart goes on to say that "In all the countries of the Levant and Middle East, mint is again a common flavoring, as it also is in India."

We have always met up with mint tea served "as is" or with lemon or lime or-and sugar. Stobart writes that in India mint tea is served hot, sweet and milk-flavored.

Forget bread's ingredients

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (AP) — The color of bread and its list of ingredients are not indications of whether it's nutritious, the Consumers Union says.

The Consumers Union, which publishes its findings in the monthly Consumer reports magazine, said in a statement recently that test results of 33 brands of bread found no correlation between the ingredients in the breads and the way they performed nutritionally.

A possible explanation, according to the union, is that the body may be able to utilize the nutrients in some breads more efficiently than those in others.

Eight of the breads tested proved nutritionally deficient for the test animals that ate them, the statement said. Laboratory rats were kept on a diet confined to bread while scientists studied their growth and health. The union said the nutritional needs of its test rats were similar to those of humans.

The statement also said none of the breads tested was completely free of foreign matter and some were very dirty. A Consumers Union spokesman said the contaminants found included insects, insect fragments and rodent hairs.

The magazine said fortifying or enriching breads doesn't necessarily make them superior, nor does any particular brand name identify a bread as consistently superior.

Master Charge adds 50 cents

NEW YORK (AP) — Customers who immediately pay their bills under Citibank's Master Charge plan will have to pay a 50-cent monthly service fee.

And industry spokesmen said recently that the practice probably will spread to other banks across the country.

Until now, most of the millions of Americans who used bank charge cards paid no membership fee. The only exceptions were in a few areas where interest rates are lower than normal and an annual fee is charged to make up the difference. Citibank, the nation's second largest bank, is the first bank in the country to impose this kind of monthly charge.

The Citicorp Credit Services division of Citibank, formerly known as First National City Bank, said Tuesday the charge will be applied only during months when the cardholder makes a purchase and pays the full balance within the billing period. No charge will be imposed during months when the card is not used or when payment is deferred. The maximum annual fee would be $6.

Two literary prizes given

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bancroft Prizes for 1976 have been awarded by Columbia University to historian David Brion Davis and American literature scholar R.W.B. Lewis, both of Yale University.

The awards of $4,000 each recognize "books of exceptional merit and distinction in American history, diplomacy, and the international relations of the United States" which were published in 1975.

Davis' winning book was "The Problem of Slavery in the Age of Revolution, 1770-1823" (Cornell University Press) and Lewis' was "Edith Wharton: A Biography" (Harper & Row.)

Ryan not satisfied

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The only person unhappy with the way Nolan Ryan is pitching right now is Nolan Ryan.

After overpowering Baltimore, 5-0, striking out 12 and allowing three scattered singles in the process, you would think the Halos' meal ticket would be wildly joyous. He has given up just eight hits in 25 innings.

Remember, Ryan (2-1) had arm problems last year and surgery in the off season. But was he satisfied Tuesday night?

"I had control problems and didn't start hitting the corners consistently until the second called strike three (in the third inning)," Ryan told writers after the game.

"I wasn't nearly as pleased with my stuff tonight as I was at Kansas City (in a 5-1, four-hit win)," Ryan continued. "I liked my stuff the last two innings at Kansas City. Tonight the only time I felt in the groove was in the fifth inning."

The flame thrower allowed one of the three Oriole hits in the fifth and struck out two. The first hit was in the third inning on a ground ball that Jerry Remy ordinarily would have handled.

It was by Mark Belanger, who also singled in the eighth. Brooks Robinson, batting .071 at the time, got the fifth-inning hit.

The 12 strikeouts marked the 58th time as an Angel and 72nd overall that the slender Texan had struck out 10 or more batters in a game.

As he always was before the arm problems, Ryan was stronger at the finish. He fanned six in the last three innings and struck out the side in the eighth.

How does the slim (6-2, 180 pounds) Texan account for his strong finishes?

"I'm a power pitcher," he replied matter of factly, "and I take good care of my legs. The type of delivery that I have doesn't put much strain on my arm."

Ryan threw 144 pitches Tuesday, a modest (for him) number. Of those 89 were strikes and 57 were balls.

He struck out every Baltimore player but first baseman Tony Muser at least once. Six of his strikeouts came on called third strikes.

While Ryan was dominating the Orioles, the Angels put together a 10-hit attack, three by Dave Chalk, that produced a single run in the third and a pair of two-run clusters in the sixth and seventh innings.

Chalk, who raised his average to .395, opened the third with a single, advanced to second on Ed Herrman's sacrifice and scored on Remy's sacrifice fly.

Remy, who has snapped out of his slump, opened the sixth with a single and then stole second and third (with a headfirst slide) while Bobby Bonds was striking out. With the infield drawn in looking for a play at the plate, Bill Melton slapped a single up the middle for one run.

Bruce Bochte, who is on his way to a record for "short doubles," punched a two-base hit down the third base line by Robinson. Joe Lahoud was intentionally walked. Chalk brought in Melton with a sacrifice fly. But Herrmann fanned.

In the seventh with two out, Remy and Bonds singled and both scored on Melton's double down the third base line. It gives the big slugger 10 RBIs for the season.

Melton was very happy with his work. Remy (two hits, two stolen bases and two runs scored) was very happy. Chalk was happy (although he was twice thrown out at second trying to stretch two of his hits into doubles).

Manager Dick Williams was happy. Gene Autry was very, very happy.

And Ryan?

"I'm not going to be happy until I get in the groove for a whole game," he said seriously.

If he does, the other team might as well leave their bats behind.

ANGEL ANGLES — Don Kirkwood (0-1) and Cy Young winner Jim Palmer (2-1) will be the pitchers in tonight's finale (7:30 p.m.).

If the Halos win tonight, it would be the first time they have swept three games from the Birds since May 3, 4, and 5 of 1974. Angels attendance, with Tuesday's 13,805, is up 20,911 so far.

Frank, "Top Banana," Tanana produced another blooper for radio listeners Tuesday night. On the pregame interview show, Tanana, in relating his thoughts on a pitching mistake, said, "Oh Bleep, here we go again."

Former La Verne star John Verhoeven picked up his first win of the season in the second game of Pacific Coast League season at Salt Lake City. Verhoeven is a reliever.

Halo pitching now has fanned 24 Orioles in the last 18 innings. "I don't think they can give up a Don Baylor and not get a Reggie Jackson back," observed Chalk. "They're hurting."

Tonight will also be Autograph Night. Ryan, Bochte, Herrmann, Rusty Torres, Mickey Scott and Jim Brewer will sign autographs from 6:20 p.m. to 6:45 p.m.

BRUIN STAR

UCLA's star triple jumper Willie Banks will be competing in the MSAC Relays Saturday. His best jump this season is 55-1. Banks also competes in the long jump.

Boston Bruins throttle Kings

BOSTON (AP)—Less than seven weeks ago All-Star defenseman Brad Park underwent left knee surgery to repair torn cartilage. He joined superstar Bobby Orr on the sidelines and the Bruins had reason for considerable concern.

Unlike Orr, however, Park made a remarkable recovery and managed to get himself into playing shape. Now he's leading the Bruins in the National Hockey League playoffs.

Park scored two goals, one while Boston was shorthanded and the second on a power play, and assisted on two others Tuesday night as the Bruins whipped the Los Angeles Kings 7-1 for a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final series.

"I feel good, better with every game," Park said. "Some shifts I feel better than on others, but I don't think about anything like that on the ice. I try to play according to the tempo of the game."

With unusually warm weather settled in the Boston area, the Garden was hot and sultry for the fifth game of the series. However, Park summed up the Bruins' reaction saying: "It was hot out there, but you put it out of your mind."

"Park played well, but he's still only 75 to 80 per cent fully back and has got quite a way to go," Boston Coach Don Cherry said. "However, it's sure nice to have him."

Cherry admitted the Bruins played well after spotting Los Angeles an early lead on Marcel Dionne's power-play goal.

"I think we played a little better in our 3-0 win in Los Angeles in the fourth game the other night, but we played well tonight," Cherry said. "The last two games have been the best we've played in a month or a month and a half.

"This is the way we played most of the season. Then we eased up while just about clinching our division. Now we have to continue playing well. We have a long way to go. This is not in our pockets yet. We're not thinking Philadelphia, or the next round. We're still thinking Los Angeles."

The Bruins picked up a couple of injuries in taking the series lead. Defenseman Joe Zanussi suffered a left knee injury which may require surgery and spare forward Hank Nowak received a cut which necessitated 23 stitches on his left hand.

"Now we have to go back home and win Thursday night," Dionne said. "We're not going to quit. The Bruins are playing with confidence, but we can play better hockey and we're going to have to win in Los Angeles."

In the other two NHL playoff games Tuesday night, Philadelphia whipped Toronto 7-1, and the New York Islanders beat Buffalo 4-3. The Flyers and Islanders each lead their series 3-2. These three series — Montreal already has eliminated Chicago — all change venue for games Thursday.

Don Saleski scored three goals, two in a 1:33 span in the second period when Philadelphia scored three times, to power the defending Stanley Cup champion Flyers past Toronto.

Bill Barber gave the Flyers a 1-0 lead at 3:55 of the first period when he poked a five-footer past Maple Leafs' goalie Wayne Thomas, who was partially screened. Then Thomas and Philadelphia goalie Bernie Parent took over and neither team scored until Saleski set off the Flyers' burst at 10:04 of the second period.

Twenty-eight seconds later, Toronto's Bob Neely lifted a 12-footer over Parent's shoulder, and the score was 2-1. But 52 seconds later, Gary Dorhoefer steered in a shot by Larry Goodenough, and it was only another 13 seconds before Saleski deflected in Bob Kelly's bullet from the left circle. Saleski scored his third goal at 4:17 of the third period.

Islanders defenseman Bert Marehall, an 11-year NHL veteran, scored his first goal of the season with 19 seconds left in the game to beat Buffalo.

Marshall said the puck "was a foot off the ice when I hit it. I think he (Sabres goalie Gerry Desjardins) was scrreened on it. There were a couple of guys in front of him."

Marshall was surprised that his shot, which he claims is one of the slowest in the league, went in.

"You usually can read the label on my shots," he said.

MSAC Relays

Pole vault looks strong

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Three field events — the pole vault, high jump and discus — should be the competitive highlights of the invitational portion of the 1976 Mt. San Antonio Relays.

This year, for the first time, the Relays will feature a streamlined program of invitational events, featuring some of the nation's top track and field athletes, all to be held Saturday between noon and 4 p.m.

The strongest group of pole vaulters in MSAC Relays history — including five 18-foot vaulters — will take to the air beginning at 2:45 p.m. World record holder Tom Woods (18 feet, 6½ inches) will be pressed by Sweden's Kjell Isaksson (18-4¾), the winner at the Relays in 1972 and 1973, Russ Rogers (18-1½) of USC, Roland Carter (18-½) of Gulf Coast Track Club, the 1974 Relays winner, Larry Jessee (18-½) of the Maccabi Track Club, as well as six invitational entrants who have bests between 17 and 18 feet — including defending Relays champ Ron Mooers (17-8½) of the Beverly Hills Striders. All entrants below 17 feet have been delegated to the open pole vault.

The invitational high jump should be just about as competitive as the pole vault. That event will include the nations second, third and fourth-ranked jumpers, according to Track and Field News.

They are Tom Woods (7-5½) and Rory Kotenik (7-4) of Pacific Coast Club and Ron Livers (7-4¼) of Philadelphia Pioneer Track Club.

Woods was both the Pan American and AAU champion in 1975 while Kotinek was runnerup in both the AAU and NCAA.

Also in the field will be Canada's John Beers (7-4) and Rey Brown (7-2) of All-American Track Club, who has won every Relays high jump since 1971 at 7 feet or better.

The high jump, as well as the discus, will begin Saturday at 2:45 p.m.

The discus will also feature the nation's No. 2, 3 and 4 performers. Mac Wilkins of the Pacific Track Club, who had a best effort last year of 212-1, is ranked second in the United States and sixth in the world. Olympic medalist Jay Silvester, who holds the meet record of 220-4 (1971) is currently rated third in the nation and Ken Stadel (205-2) of the Beverly Hills Striders ranks fourth. That trio of Americans will have to contend with Canada's Bishop Dolegiewicz (214-4).

But that is not to say that all the top entrants in this year's Relays are in the field events.

Jamaica's Don Quarrie, ranked No. 1 in the world in the 200-meter run and No. 2 in the 100-meter, will head both events as well as running on the Beverly Hills Striders 400-meter relay team. Quarrie beat Steve Williams in five of nine head-to-head confrontations in 1975. The 200 will be run at 1:15 p.m. and the 100 will go at 2:40 p.m.

Both hurdle events promise good matchups. At 2:30 p.m., the 110-meter highs will feature Jerry Wilson (13.38) of the Beverly Hills Striders, ranked second in the nation and third in the world, against Clim Jackson (13.67) of Maccabi T.C., third in the nation, and James Shaw (13.6) of UCLA, fourth in the nation.

The 400-meter intermediates at 1:50 p.m. will include James King (49.03) of Maccabi T.C., ranked third in the United States; Bob Cassleman (48.89) of Pacific Coast Club, fifth; Wes Williams (50.08) of Maccabi T.C., sixth; and 1975 NCAA champ Craig Caudill (50.01) of Pacific Coast Club, seventh.

Dodgers retain their confidence

HOUSTON (AP) — Losing the first five games of a season would shake the confidence of most teams but not the Los Angeles Dodgers, according to first baseman Steve Garvey.

"Something like that (losing five in a row) happens to every team several times during a season," Garvey said Tuesday night after he collected three hits and helped the Dodgers whip the hot Houston Astros 6-2.

"It was just unfortunate for us that it happened at the start of the season," Garvey said. "It could have shaken the confidence of a lesser team. But we know what everybody is going to do over a 162-game season."

The Dodgers looked like the old Dodgers Tuesday night in winning their second game of the season in nine starts.

John Hale started it off with a two-run triple off Houston starter and loser Joe Niekro in the second inning. Los Angeles added another run in the third on Dusty Baker's double and the fourth run came in the sixth on pinch-hitter Ed Goodson's single.

That gave the Dodgers' young starter Rick Rhoden a shutout through five innings, but Dodgers Manager Walt Alston lifted Rhoden for Goodson's pinch single in the fifth.

"I didn't expect to go more than six innings anyway," said Rhoden, who was making his first start of the season after a bout with the flu. "My only concern was my control. I didn't know what it would be like after the layoff."

Mike Marshall, Rhoden's sixth-inning relief, had control problems, loading the bases in the sixth with a single by Cesar Cedeno and walks to Bob Watson and Cliff Johnson.

Two Houston runs scored in that inning on a groundout by Jose Cruz and Greg Gross' single. Gross singled again in the ninth and scored from third base on a passed ball.

Los Angeles scored two more runs in the ninth off Houston reliever Larry Hardy on a single by Baker and double by Garvey.

"We looked a little better with the bat tonight," Alston said. "We haven't been getting much of anything, hitting or pitching. We had a great spring training, our best ever, but we hadn't been able to put it together in the regular season."

LVC nears SCIAC title

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

La Verne College just about wrapped up its fourth SCIAC baseball title in five years Tuesday.

The Leos (10-2) outslugged Claremont-Mudd (10-5) by a score of 12-7 Tuesday afternoon at Stags' Field.

La Verne actually scored four more runs in the ninth inning and was ahead, 16-7 when the game was called because of darkness with the Stags due for their last at-bats.

Since the home team didn't get to bat, the score reverted to the last completed inning, in this case the eighth.

It was an odd game. With Jim Vallone and Joe Maiberger on the mound, it was a 2-2 pitcher's battle through the first five innings.

The Leopards knocked Maiberger (9-3) out in a seven-run sixth. The Stags came right back and KO'd Vallone (6-6) with two runs of their own.

La Verne scored three more Mitch Katlin and Bob Phee in the eighth. The Stags errupted for three runs off Paul McGuire and Fernie Tarin in their half of the eighth.

"I was very pleased with the win," said La Verne coach Ben Hines. I expected a low-scoring game it really surprised me at how many runs scored."

In addition to the 19 runs, there was a total of 27 hits including seven doubles and four home runs.

"Well we gave it a good shot," sighed C-M's Bill Arce. "Now I don't know who we'll pitch Saturday against UC Irvine. They hit everybody we put in.

"Maiberger couldn't hold them in the sixth with all those errors. They had to be the turning point."

Everything happened to the unlucky Maiberger after two were out. Six of the seven Leo runs that inning were unearned as the Stags made three of their five errors.

After Maiberger got the first two La Verne batters easily, Steve Polan clouted a 2-0 pitch over the left field fence. That gave the Leopards a 3-2 lead in the game.

Maiberger walked Gary Pierson. Steve Watson hit a ground ball to first that should have been the third out. But the ball went through Mark Stott for one error and Watson got to second when Jon Begerow's throw bounced away from Bob Turek and neither Andy Roundtree nor Maiberger covered second.

The shaken Maiberger gave up a two-run single to Pat Proulx and Proulx advanced to second on the play at the plate. Tim Burzette cracked his second of three singles driving in Proulx and when left fielder Al Golad overan the ball, Burzette raced to second.

That was all for Maiberger. Katlin came in and walked Wayne Redfearn. John Edwards bashed a 2-2 pitch over the left centerfield fence to the left of the 370 foot sign.

Burzette had singled on the first pitch of the game to extend his consecutive-game hitting streak to 24. In 28 games, he has scored 29 runs and batted in 22.

Vallone, before tiring, picked four C-M runners off base to kill possible rallies. In the fifth inning, the Stags would have scored at least two runs if Stott hadn't been caught off third on what was to be a double steal attempt.

"Jimmy pitched pretty good," said Hines. "I think the long layoff (between starts) and long sixth inning hurt him. It broke his rhythm."

The Leo coach watched most of the excitement from the stands. He was ejected in the fourth inning when umpire Lee Rolstan took exception to Hines' protest and told the La Verne coach to, "get back behind the line (at third base)."

"Get back behind the line yourself," replied the irate Hines and added a euphemism that, while not strong, sorely wounded the official who promptly gave a big league heave-ho sign with verbal accompaniment to the surprised coach.

"That's only the second time in 15 years that I've been kicked out of a game," muttered the Leo coach darkly, "but I deserved it the first time."

Assistant coaches Craig Bowser and Dave Long ran the Leopards the rest of the game.

La Verne, now 16-14 overall, hosts Caltech for two games Saturday. Claremont-Mudd, 17-11 overall, travels to UC Irvine for a pair.

Firemen, coaches play charity game

Firemen normally try and put out fires but on Sunday at 4 p.m., the Chino-Montclair-Pomona fire departments would like to build one.

On that day at West Covina High, the firemen will challenge the San Gabriel Valley coaches in a benefit full-scale football game to help soften a tragedy.

It was just slightly more than a month ago that Rick Bellino, a 14-year-old student at Edgewood High, came in to relieve a fellow pitcher on a lower division baseball team.

Bellino threw six pitches before collapsing of a heart attack. He died the next morning.

Since CIF insurance does not cover normal deaths, the family was left with whatever bills came about.

The game, scheduled for West Covina District Stadium, will be in Bellino's memory. Tickets for the charity game will be $1 per person.

Schools involved in the game are: Chino, San Dimas, Rowland, Baldwin Park, Edgewood, Glendora, Royal Oak, Los Altos, West Covina, Azusa and Wilson.

Saldivar's dad unhappy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vicente Saldivar aims to become the lightweight boxing champion of the world, but his Dad might still be unhappy.

For the 135-pounder from Gomez Valacio in Durango, Mex., fights under his mother's name.

He's really Gicente Mijares Saldivar and in the Latin nations, the middle name is that of the father and the last name that of the mother.

But more than a decade ago Vicente Saldivar of Mexico held the world featherweight title. So, figured manager Harry Kabakoff, what could be better than having another Saldivar in the title ranks.

"My father was unhappy about it, and he still is," admitted the 21-year-old Mexican who battles fellow countryman Tury Pineda at the Olympic Auditorium on Thursday night in a 12-rounder for the vacant North American Boxing Federation lightweight title.

"My father wanted his side of the family to be mentioned too," the fighter said.

Saldivar turned pro and had his first fight on Nov. 10, 1972, and now is rated the 4th challenger for the lightweight title. For that initial fight he took a bus from his home to Monterrey, Mex., a trip that took four hours and his purse totaled $40 in American money.

For the Thursday night fight, after building a 19-0 record with 11 knockouts, Saldivar will receive 27½ per cent of the gate which should earn him $8,000 or more.

"I read about Jesus Pimental and Ruben Olivares making up to $100,000 for a fight and I decided to become a boxer," Saldivar said through an interpreter since he speaks no English.

"Now I think I can make some of that big money."

If he does, he'll bank it since he has nearly every nickel he has earned in the ring. However, he's currently planning a large home for his parents and whichever of his seven brothers and three sisters who choose to remain at home.

Saldivar comes early for a fight, trains, boxes and then takes the first plane back to Mexico.

He's a homebody at heart and less than talkative. Some have dubbed him "mute" but he says that in Mexico he talks, but not in Los Angeles where he doesn't have too much chance to talk to those who converse in Spanish.

"I'll beat Pineda and then I'd like to fight for the title," Saldivar declared. "I still don't know if my father will be happy. He'll be happy for me, but not about the name."

Saldivar had won 12 fights when he took a bus to Mexicali to talk to Pimental who worked with Kabakoff. He then signed with them and was given a Los Angeles bout, his first outside Mexico, against Sanjo Takemori. The Mexican surprised with a fifth round knockout and then twice beat the local favorite Randy Shields.

In Pineda, the young Mexican will be meeting a boxer who fought twice for the world title, drawing with Guts Ishamatsu and losing to him by decision, both in Japan.

Kings keep Johnson

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Kings gave Coach Phil Johnson a salary increase in a new contract Tuesday despite the National Basketball Association club's low finish.

Johnson, the NBA coach of the year in 1974-75, accepted a one-year contract that was approved unanimously by the Kings' 11-man board. Terms were not revealed.

The Kings were 44-38 and earned their first playoff spot in seven years in 1974-75, but fell to 31-51 and out of the playoffs during 1975-76.

Hostetler slam lifts Owls

Citrus, Mt. San Antonio and Chaffey colleges all posted conference baseball wins Tuesday, but the Owls' victory was certainly the most dramatic of the three.

With Citrus, trailing, 8-5 in the top of the ninth inning at San Diego City College, Dave Hostetler slugged a grand slam home run with nobody out to give the Owls a story book 9-8 win.

It was the second round-tripper of the game for the Owls — Joe Sanson belted a solo shot in the second inning. Rich Valentine and Todd Ervin each collected three of the Owls' 15 hits.

John Huddleston picked up the win with two innings of one-hit relief. The Owls, 12-3 in Mission Conference play and 20-6 overall, maintained their two-game lead over Chaffey and San Bernardino Valley.

MSAC struck for a run in the first and four more in the second in its 6-1 win over host San Diego Mesa. Chris Borbon and Brian Menasco hit back-to-back homers — Borbon's coming with a man aboard — and Ron Roenicke doubled home a run in the Mounties' second inning.

Roenicke had tripled and scored on a double by Tracy Cowger in the first inning. Roenicke was two-for-five and teammate Danny Gans hit two doubles in four trips.

Bob Veselic won his eighth game against four losses. He fanned nine and walked seven, giving up only an unearned run in the fourth.

The Mounties, 8-3 in the South Coast Conference and 20-6 overall, trail Cerritos by a game.

Chaffey took advantage of eight walks, four hit batsmen and three errors to beat host Palomar on three hits, 5-2.

Virgil Moore went the distance to even his record at 2-2. He struck out four and walked two while scattering seven hits, two of them doubles by Randy Johnson.

Chaffey's Rufus Thompson drove in two runs in the top of the first after three errors and a walk put men at second and third.

The Panthers scored what proved to be the winning run in the second on three walks, a hit batsman and a wild pitch.

Larry Jones of the Panthers was hit by a pitch three times in the game.

Chaffey is 10-5 in Mission Conference play and 16-11 overall.

Broncos whip Loyola

LOS ANGELES — Cal Poly Pomona, after squandering a five-run lead, scored four times in the top of the eighth inning for a 9-5 win Tuesday afternoon at Loyola.

John Turriff of the Broncos touched off the big inning with a leadoff single and then stole second base. After Ray Pekarcik walked, Monty Cloward laid down what was intended to be a sacrifice bunt. But the Lions failed to cover first base and Cloward was credited with a single, loading the bases.

Alex Torres then drove in what proved to be the winning run with a base on balls. Dennis Sherow singled to right, driving in two more runs, and when the ball went through Loyola's rightfielder, Torres scored the game's final run.

Loyola had tied the game, 5-5, with two runs in the fifth, one in the sixth and two in the seventh after Poly twice in the first and three times in the fourth.

Sherow, Clay Harris and Ken Hellyer came up with consecutive singles to account for the first two Bronco runs.

Poly took advantage of two Loyola errors — the Lions made six in all — to score three runs in the fourth.

Rick Schwenn picked up the win in relief of Tom Rosenstein while Mike Livingstone, who came in to start the eighth, got the loss.

The Broncos, 24-22-1, will host Cal Poly SLO in a single game Friday and a doubleheader Saturday.

Knights, ACA lose

American Christian and Ontario Christian suffered defeats in Tuesday's prep baseball action.

The Knight's shaky fielding was their undoing in a 7-2 loss at home to Whittier Christian. After Don Franco of the visitors led off the top of the second inning with a home run, OCHS commited three errors in the frame to allow Whittier to score two more runs without a hit.

The visitors scored four more times in the fourth on two hits, two walks and another error. Whittier managed just four hits to five for Ontario Christian. Dave Boersma had two of the Knights' hits.

OCHS's record fell to 1-7 in the Olympic League and 2-11 overall.

American Christian suffered only its second setback against 11 wins in a non-league game at Maranatha. The hosts scored three unearned runs in the third inning to take a 5-0 lead and went on to win, 5-3.

Jim Keith of the Minutemen went two-for-two and walked twice. He scored on an error and drove in a run. Maranatha's Ron Johannson was three-for-three with an RBI.

The Minutemen will play a make-up game at Riverside Christian Thursday while the Knights will travel to Brethren Friday.

Ali fights former foe

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — Karl Mildenberger of West Germany, a 38-year old former European heavyweight champion, will fight Muhamad Ali as a warmup for the world champion's May 25 bout against Britain's Richard Dunn in Munich, it was reported today.

The daily mass-circulation newspaper Bildzeitung reported that the Kaiserslautern tire dealer, whom Ali knocked out in the 12th round of a title fight in Frankfurt Sept. 10, 1966, agreed to fight his former opponent in Munich or Augsburg May 15.

Mildenberger has already started his training, manager Josef Hartmann was quoted as saying, because he is also preparing for a bout against Uganda's boisterous President Idi Amin.

Nicklaus to battle youngsters, old pro

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two of the game's brightest young stars and a rebounding tough old pro loom as the chief opposition to Jack Nicklaus this week in the $175,000 New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

The old pro, of course, is Don January, the self-styled "Old Folks" of the pro tour who scored a popular upset victory last week in the prestigious Tournament of Champions.

"The old folks done pretty good, didn't they?" chortled the 46-year-old January after his front-running, five-stroke victory confirmed one of sports most unusual comebacks.

The young stars are Hubert Green and Ben Crenshaw, the hottest items on the tour this season and currently running 1-2 on the year's money-winning list.

Green, with $161,556 for the year, reeled off an improbable string of three victories in a row, challenged through two rounds of the Masters and then finished second to January in the T of C.

Crenshaw has been equally impressive. With $143,328, he scored consecutive triumphs in the Bing Crosby and the Hawaiian Open, was second in the Masters and made one big, last-round run in the T of C.

"I was really disappointed with the way I finished in the T of C," Crenshaw said. "I got to pressing and I let it get away from me."

Even with those impressive credentials, however, Nicklaus—as usual—is the man to beat in the 72-hole chase for a $35,000 first prize that begins Thursday over the 7,080-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club course.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by NBC-TV.

The tournament is sponsored by the 1st National Bank of Commerce.

It's a Racquet

WORLD TEAM TENNIS faces many unanswered questions, mainly over its own destiny, but one of its deeper mysteries seems to concern the value of the team coaches. Must the leader on the sidelines be a sage in court strategy and expert in motivating men and women? Or does he serve best by handing out towels to the players during the changeovers between geames?

The coach's importance apparently eluded the Pittsburgh Triangles. They fired the man who coached the franchise to the 1975 WTT championship. Of course that man happened to be Vic Edwards, who wasn't getting along with his adopted daughter, the newly married Evonne Goolagong, who happened to be the team's star player. The team management must have figured it this way: (1) Another Goolagong would be hard to find; (2) Any number of coaches would discover that, by putting Goolagong in the line-up, they become instant tactical geniuses.

But many in the WTT insist the coach can be a vital factor, just as he often is considered to be in Davis Cup competition, or the Super Bowl or NCAA basketball finals, for that matter. If this premise is correct, the Los Angeles Strings may have bolstered themselves considerably as they head into their third season next week. They've got Dennis Ralston in charge.

These days the name stands for cool, calm tennis expertise, but it wasn't always that way. Dennis the Menace they used to call him, and with good reason. As the U.S. boys 18 champ in 1959, he was a youngster out of Bakersfield recognized both for his great strokes and bad temper. Through his prime years in the 1960s, the great strokes never delivered him a major international singles title, although he did win the Forest Hills, Wimbledon and French doubles championships and gave the U.S. Davis Cup team many singles victories. All the time he never shook the bad boy image. One blow-up during a Davis Cup match against Mexico got him a suspension from U.S. tennis officials. "It was a long time ago," says Ralston now, at 33. "Ilie Nastase and Jimmy Connors have done a lot worse."

Ralston's career took a dramatic turn in 1971 when he took over the captaincy of the Davis Cup team. For the next five years he served in that role, mellowed and effective, and earned himself a new reputation. His incumbency produced two U.S. cup championships, which might not seem a threat to a sports legend like John Wooden, but even so was enough of a feat that many authorities have called him the country's best Davis Cup captain ever.

One occasion in particular is widely recognized as a gem in leadership. That was the 1972 finals in Bucharest where the elements against the U.S. team were awesome. Opponents Nastase and Ion Tiriac were insufferable clowns, the Romanian crowd was howling for blood and the linesmen were homering the visitors to death. Some of the American players wanted to quit after the first day, but Ralston pulled them together with a pep talk and nudged them on to a 3-2 win.

Disaster struck in Ralston's last two years on the job. The team lost in early zone competition to Colombia in 1974 and to Mexico in 1975, and it'll never be known how the U.S. would have fared had all its top players been available. Ralston was dropped from the post last year because one of the absentees had been Jimmy Connors. The U.S. Tennis Association wanted Connors but Connors didn't want Ralston.

With the Strings, Ralston will be a player-coach, as he was during the previous two WTT years with the Hawaii and San Diego teams. Because of a knee injury several years ago, he no longer plays much singles but he remains a top doubles performer. The Strings may provide him their best personnel ever. Rosie Casals, who coached the team last year, is back as a player, as is Bob Lutz. But the Strings made a couple of solid additions in recent weeks; Vijay Amritraj, the flashy 22-year-old from India, and Dianne Fromholtz, 19-year-old Australian who beat Chris Evert on the women's tour a few weeks ago.

In fact, if WTT is ever going to make a go of it — and the league insists that the time has arrived — this third season has to see the upsurge. Go down the list of the world's top women players and you'll read off WTT star attractions — Goolagon, Casals, Chris Evert, Billie Jean King, Martina Navratilova, Virginia Wade . . . Rod Laver used to scoff at WTT's ability to afford him. Now he's relocating his home in San Diego prior to his debut with the Friars there and saying things like: "The WTT has really come a long way in three years. I see now the idea is sound." Ilie Nastase should be big box office throughout the 10-team league, as well as a big scorer for his team, Hawaii. Whether he'll also present big disciplinary problems for the WTT remains to be seen.

In one other move, the league has altered scoring rules slightly to keep the team contests in doubt until the last game. On the games won scoring system, teams sometimes have had enough early points to clinch the victory even brefore the final set started. That is, a powerhouse like Pittsburgh might build up a 24-11 lead in the men's and women's singles and doubles. Its mixed doubles duo could lose 6-0 in the last of the five events and Pittsburgh still would be a ho-num winner, 24-17.

The new rule says "a match will not end until the winning team wins the final game." So if the leading team fails to win the final set, the match continues into overtime. If the leading team finally wins a game, it wins the match. If the trailing team ties the count, a nine-point tie breaker decides it. Another rule change provides that the home team chooses the order of the match and thus determines the contestants in that critical final set.

The Strings play 18 matches in their plush new home, the Forum in Inglewood, starting May 12, but they'll also appear four times considerably closer to the local area at the Anaheim Convention Center. San Diego has scheduled two matches at Anaheim.

WALNUT CAN TAKE A BOW as the valley's newest tennis hotbed. The Walnut High team has a bead on the school's first outright Hacienda League tennis championship, showing a perfect 10-0 league mark with only four meets to go before the CIF 2-A tournament.

Only two losses to non-conference opponents La Habra and Fullerton's Troy mar the Mustang players' record after 20 matches. Walnut's match at twice-beaten San Dimas High next Tuesday could be the title clincher for the Mustangs, who defeated San Dimas in a previous meeting.

Much of Walnut's strength, says Coach Charles Sismondo, comes from its singles depth, provided by John Reed, Doug Daley, Dean Phillips and Kelly Bowlin. "Those guys don't often beat the other team's No. 1 man but they win most of the others," Sismondo explains. More than that, two doubles teams are winning 90 per cent of their sets. Jeff Davis and Joe Mendoza form the No. 1 duo, but sophomores Joel Nunn and Jaime Goldfarb have lost only two sets — one less than Davis and Mendoza.

OUTSTANDING TENNIS on the junior college level will be on display April 29 through May 1 at Citrus College. The annual Mission Conference tournament is scheduled there, with play starting at 9 a.m. each of the three days.

The Mission covers a lot of territory, extending into San Diego, which means some high level players will be in action at the Azusa campus. San Diego City College, a perennial power, won the dual match portion of the conference season again this year, with Palomar finishing second.

Citrus ended up fourth by beating valley opponent Chaffey, 5-4, earlier this month.

The top conference performers include San Diego City's Bill Rennie, Canadian junior champion, and Palomar's Martin Bohn, Swedish junior champ.

Golden State wins easily

By Associated Press

When Detroit Coach Herb Brown was asked if there was any one area in which his team was weakest, he answered: "Yeah, basketball."

But, the Golden State Warriors can make almost any opposing coach feel that way. The defending National Basketball Association champions opened their quarter-final series against Detroit Tuesday night with a 127-103 victory. Phil Smith scored 26 points.

"We were horrible," Brown said. "The Warriors played well. They can just break you down, and I'm sure that contributed some to our being horrible."

Rick Barry was held to 13 points but he tied his season high for assists, handing out 11.

"The ball wasn't going in for me, so I guess I concentrated more on dropping it off to the other guys, and the guys I hit were hot tonight."

In the night's only other playoff game, the Phoenix Suns took a 3-1 lead in their quarterfinal series against Seattle, beating the SuperSonics 130-114. The Warriors-Pistons series continues in Oakland Thursday night, and Phoenix travels to Seattle for Game 5 Sunday.

Tonight, the Boston Celtics, after drawing a bye through the first round, begin their quarter-final series against the Buffalo Braves, and the Cleveland Cavaliers take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven quarter-final series into Washington.

Bob Lanier led Detroit with 18 points, 14 of them in the first quarter.

The Warriors, who drew a first-round bye and have not played in 10 days, showed early signs of rustiness, falling behind 18-12. But they outscored the Pistons 12-0 to move ahead for good, taking a 65-51 halftime lead.

In Phoenix' victory, Paul Westphal tied his season-high point production with 39, and Keith Erickson added 31 points. Seattle's Fred Brown was held to eight points in the first half but led a third-quarter surge that brought Seattle within five points. He wound up with a team-high 33 points.

"I think we're in trouble unless we make a good turnaround," said Sonics Coach Bill Russell. "We threw the ball away 17 times in the first half. They played consistently. I think this was their best game."

Asked if returning to Seattle would give his Sonics a lift, Russell replied: "If we played in my living room the way we played (tonight), it wouldn't make any difference."

Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn is worried about the Celtics' long layoff. "We're ready physically," says Heinsohn, "butI don't know how sharp we'll be after such a long layoff (10 days)."

Meanwhile, Buffalo Coach Jack Ramsay, whose Braves reached the quarter-finals by beating Philadelphia, says his team is both physically and mentally sound.

Washington Coach K.C. Jones will have to find a remedy for the poor shooting of Elvin Hayes and Lhil Chenier if he hopes to even up his team's series with Cleveland.

"Turnovers and poor free throw shooting have been our nemesis," Jones said, "and both 'E' and Phil haven't been consistent.

"When your two power shooters are off," Jones said, "it puts too much pressure on the defense."

Flyers' star top player

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Center Bobby Clarke of the Philadelphia Flyers has been named the National Hockey League's player of the year for the third time in four years by the Sporting News.

A poll of 249 league players was announced Tuesday by the weekly publication.

Left wing Bill Barber, a member of Clarke's record-setting line, was also named to the All-Star team. Others selected were right wing Guy Lafleur of Montreal' defensemen Denis Potvin of the New York Islanders and Brad Park of Boston, and goalie Ken Dryden of Montreal.

Center Bryan Trottier of the slanders was named the NHL Rookie of the Year.

Title fight rated even

LOS ANGELES — World lightweight contenders Vicente Saldivar, no. 4, and Tury Pineda, no. 5, are rated even for their 12 round North American lightweight title fight at the Olympic Auditorium Thursday night.

Saldivar, 19-0 with nine knockouts, is coming off two wins over contender Randy Shields. Pineda, 26-6 with 22 knockouts, has twice fought for the world's lightweight crown. September 22, 1974 he fought a 15 round draw with Guts Ishimatsu and June 6, 1975 he dropped a split 15 rounder to Ishimatsu. Both fights were in Japan.

Largest racing crowd in New York's mutuel history turned out to see the 1971 Belmont Stakes at Belmont Park. There were 82,692 on hand. Pass Catcher won the race.

Rockets stress defense

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets, who failed to make the National Basketball Association playoffs this season, fired coach Johnny Egan Tuesday and replaced him with Tom Nissalke, who promised a heavy emphasis on defense.

"Tom Nissalke and I happen to agree that defense can be taught," Rockets President and General Manager Ray Patterson said in making the announcement. "We've been talking about defense here for years but nothing has been done about it."

Nissalke, head coach of the Seattle SuperSonics during the 1972-73 season, said improving the Rockets defense would be one of his major goals.

"We played the Rockets in exhibition game once and our assessment was that they were not hard-nosed on defense," said Nissalke, a former coach of the Dallas, Utah and San Antonio teams in the American Basketball Association.

Nissalke, with a reputation for strong discipline and defense, said he thinks the Rockets, one of the top shooting teams in the NBA, can learn to play defense.

Egan, whose three-year contract expired at the end of the current season when Houston was 40-42, had been criticized for not improving the Rockets defensively. Egan took the Rockets into the playoffs last year but the Rockets fizzled down the stretch this season.

"We anticipated a continuation of progress this season," Patterson said. "Unfortunately, that was not the case. We feel it is our responsibility to our fans to be able to point to progress."

Nissalke, who last season served as a scout for the Rockets and Milwaukee Bucks, said he would make no immediate decision on the status of assistant coach Larry Siegfried or any trade possibilities.

Egan replaced Tex Winter during the 1972 season and the Rockets went 32-50 the following season.

Long Beach signs Stefl

LONG BEACH — Mark Stefl, a rugged 6-foot, 10-inch center from Yavapai (Arizona) Junior College, has announced that he will enroll next fall at Long Beach State. He will come to Long Beach as a junior after competing two years for Yavapai.

Stefl and current 49er star Anthony McGee were teammates on the 1974-75 Yavapai team that won its conference championship.

The 230-pound center, a graduate of Tulare High School, was an all-tournament selection in this year's Prescott Tournament where he was instrumental in Yavapai's 65-62 triumph over the powerful Compton Tartars, led by Larry Moffitt.

Stefl was the target of recruiters from Indiana State, New Mexico, Arizona State and Missouri. His decision to play for the 49ers will be a major plus for Dwight Jones' squad next season.

"Mark is a very strong, physical player and an outstanding rebounder," Jones said. "He will provide immediate help for us with his strength and experience."

Red Devils roll over Cavaliers

Pomona High ran over visiting Montclair, 108-8, in Tuesday's lone San Antonio League track meet.

The meet, originally set for today, was held Tuesday because of a minimum-day schedule today at Pomona High for teachers' meetings.

Pomona's Hank Zibell won the shot put with a heave of 62 feet, 7¾ inches, just shy of his school-record put of two weeks ago (62-8½). Teammate Barry Boettcher won the mile run in 4:24.0, a full second off the school record he set in the Red Devil's previous meet. Montclair's Mike Roza was second in the mile in 4:32.0.

Boettcher did not run the two mile, and Roza recorded the only Cavalier win of the meet in 9:57.6.

Pomona's Jim Donaldson won the 100-yard dash in 9.7 seconds and the 220 in 22.8. Terry Andrews took the 440 in 51.0 and Larry Martin won the 880 in 2:02.0.

Jim Middleton won the 120 high hurdles in 15.0 and the 330 lows in 41.0. Ernest Jarnagin missed the meet with the flu.

Charles Cole won the long jump at 22-4 and brother Lewis Cole took the high jump at 6-0. Terry Ludwig of the Devils won the pole vault at 10-6.

Pomona's 440 relay team of Karsem James, Donaldson, Anthony Miley and Andrews win 43.4 while James, Diamond Sherman, Charles Cole and Andrews covered the mile in 3:30.8.

Gorman heads Seattle club

SEATTLE (AP) — Lou Gorman, new director of baseball operations for Seattle's American League expansion franchise, doesn't expect the team to be an instant loser.

"We want to be competitive. We don't want to finish last next year," he said. "And my goal is not to finish last."

The 47-year-old Gorman, vice president and assistant general manager of the Kansas City Royals for the past year, was officially named to his new position at a news conference Tuesday.

Seattle businessman Lester M. Smith, managing partner of the Seattle club, which will begin play next season, introduced Gorman and his wife, Mary Lou, to the press.

Smith pointed out that the designation general manager is "a misnomer for the job here" and that Gorman's official title will be "director of Seattle baseball operations."

"My job will involve all the playing end, to build the baseball club and to put it on the field," Gorman said.

Gorman has been with the Royals since the team was organized in 1969 as a tandem expansion club to the Seattle Pilots, who moved to Milwaukee in 1970 after only one season.

He brings an impressive background of experience in baseball operation to Seattle. Under his direction, the Royals' minor league system has developed into one of the most successful in the sport.

He was with the Baltmore Orioles from 1963 to 1968 and, as director of minor league clubs, helped build the championship Orioles teams. Earlier he was in the San Francisco Giants and Pittsburgh Pirates farm organizations.

Gorman says his first priority will be "to gather the best scouting personnel I can get my hands on and get them in the field. I think I know the people I would like to get in this organization."

He said he already has reached a verbal agreement on the hiring of one fulltime and two parttime scouts.

He said Seattle will look primarily for youth in the major league expansion draft.

Mets, Cards get in brawl

By Associated Press

New York batters hit the St. Louis pitchers hard Tuesday night—almost as hard as Cardinals pitcher Lynn McGlothen hit two Mets batters and nearly sparked a brawl.

The hitting by the hitters took place in the first two innings, when Felix Millan, Del Unser and John Milner each slugged two-run homers to help New York carry a 6-0 lead into the third inning. That's when McGlothen started hitting the batters.

"I'm a big league pitcher and I want to be around a while," said McGlothen, who hit Unser and opposing pitcher Jon Matlack in the third, causing a charge from the Mets dugout led by slugger Dave Kingman.

McGlothen, who was ejected for his tactics, continued to defend his action. "I just think a pitcher has a right to try to contain the hitters. If a pitcher feels like he's been intimidated, he has to do something. I hit them as a certain measure that had to be done."

Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst, who along with New York shortstop Bud Harrelson was ejected from the game in the third inning, managed a light comment.

"I think it's bush," said Matlack, who pitched a six-hitter for the 8-0 victory. "I really think I have no respect for the man (McGlothen), even though I did before. When a guy hits a batter (Unser) after a home run, it's one thing. But not when the score is 6-0. Everybody's got to pitch inside, that's part of the game. But not a foot-and-a-half inside."

In the other NL games Tuesday, Philadelphia topped Pittsburgh 5-1, San Diego bested Cincinnati 7-5, San Francisco outscored Atlanta 12-11 in 10 innings, and Los Angeles clipped Houston 6-3. The Montreal at Chicago game was rained out.

Phillies 5, Pirates 1

Mike Schmidt, who is "fun to watch when you're on his side," according to teammate Jim Kaat, cracked his sixth home run in three games to tie six other players for the major league record and lead the Phils past the Pirates.

Kaat pitched a six-hitter in one hour, 47 minutes and hit a two-run double—"My first hit in three years—to help Philadelphia.

The veteran left-hander's fast work prompted a comment by Schmidt, whose two-run blast in the fourth was all the offense Kaat needed: "I missed the first pitch he threw in spring training this year. I was playing with the dirt on third base, and then next thing I knew the catcher was throwing the ball back."

Padres 7, Reds 5

Pinch-hitter Jerry Turner's bases-loaded single keyed a three-run San Diego rally in the eighth inning as the Padres handed Cincinnati its fourth defeat in five games.

The Reds were trailing 4-0 and held hitless by Bill Greif until the fifth, but scored five times in the seventh to take the lead.

Butch Metzger, 1-0, got the victory in relief and combined with Greif, Mike DuPree and Dave Tomlin to snap a 22-game hitting streak by Pete Rose.

Giaats 12, Braves 11

Gary Matthews hit two home runs—his second winning the game in the 10th inning—two singles, scored four runs and drove in three to lift the Giants past the Braves.

San Francisco trailed 8-1 at one point.

In the American League, the Cleveland Indians defeated the Texas Rangers 9-1, the New York Yankees edged the Chicago White Sox 5-4, the Boston Red Sox routed the Minnesota Twins 12-3, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Kansas City Royals 5-4 and the Oakland A's beat the Detroit Tigers 6-5.

Red Sox 12, Tigers 3

The Red Sox, held to six home runs in their first nine games, raked Tiger pitchers for four homers Tuesday night. Dwight Evans drove in four runs with a homer and a double, while Jim Rice, Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk also homered.

"We served them cookies and they ate them up," said a frustrated Minnesota Manager Gene Mauch.

Yankees 5, White Sox 4

RBI singles by Thurman Munson and Chris Chambliss helped the Yankees beat Chicago behind the standout relief pitching of Tippy Martinez, who held the White Sox scoreless for five innings.

Martinez replaced starter Dock Ellis in Chicago's four-run third and held them scoreless until the eighth, when he gave way to Dick Tidrow and then Sparky Lyle.

The Yankees, who had tagged Chicago starter Bart Johnson for three runs in the second, reached him for the winning runs in the third thanks to a running game. Roy White beat out a bunt, stole second and scored on Munson's single. Munson also stole second, continued to third on catcher Brian Downing's throwing error and came home on Chambliss' hit.

Indians 9, Rangers 1

Gaylord Perry returned to Cleveland, only to be routed in a seven-run seventh inning and tagged with the loss. Alan Ashby's two-run single and Frank Duffy's two-run double highlighted the burst, though both came off relievers who followed Perry, traded by the Indians last June.

"I want to win no matter where I play," Perry said quietly. "This game was nothing special. I was hitting my spots. I felt pretty good—but they hit the ball."

Brewers 5, Royals 4

Pedro Garcia drove in two runs and scored twice to pace the Milwaukee attack in a game twice delayed by rain, for a total of one hour 22 minutes.

Pete Broberg checked the Royals on two hits through five innings, then Billy Champion and Ed Rodriguez preserved the victory.

A's 6, Tigers 5

Don Baylor, obtained from Baltimore in the controversial Reggie Jackson trade, singled home Claudell Washington to cap a three-run rally in the ninth that lifted Oakland to victory. Joe Rudi had tied the game with a two-run single.

Seattle inks Richardson

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Ernie Richardson, a linebacker from Oregon State, has been signed as a free agent by the new Seattle Seahawks of the National Football League.

"My dream has been to get a chance at pro ball," said Richardson, a 6-foot-4, 228-pound athlete from New York City who became a starter for Oregon State midway in the 1975 season. "Now I've got my chance."

Richardson, who never played high school football, earned the Pacific-8 Conference's Defensive Player of the Week award after helping Oregon State blank Washington State 7-0 for the Beavers' only victory last season.

OSU signs Billy Reed

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State University has landed a top basketball prospect from the Los Angeles area in 6-foot-2 guard Billy Reed from North Hollywood, OSU officials said Tuesday.

Reed sat out much of the 1975-76 season after suffering a knee injury that required surgery. He was averaging 30 points a game when he was hurt one-third of the way through the season.

Top road racers set big day at OMS

Auto racing

High speed professional sports car action returns to the Ontario Motor Speedway Sunday, May 9 as the nation's top road racing drivers have been scheduled to compete in the $60,000 International Sports Car Spectacular, announced George Cheyne of Racepro, producers of the event.

Programed in the "Spectatular" will be a full day of competition featuring two major events: the Camel GT 100, which pits the 200 mph plus Corvettes, Monzas, Porsches, BMWs, Cameros, Mustangs, Datsuns and more; and the Mark C. Bloome TA 100 Championship race featuring the racing sedans of the B. F. Goodrich Radial Challenge Series.

"We're happy to see the Camel GT and B. F. Goodrich races back at Ontario Motor Speedway," said Ray Smartis, general manager of OMS. "We are extending all the excellent facilities to the organizers of the race so that everyone will be able to take full advantage of what we have to offer."

As the fifth race in the 15 event International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) sanctioned series, our event is shapping up to be one of the most exciting sports car road races in recent southern California history, commented Cheyne. "We should have a full compliment of cars in each race and as indicated by the first event of the year, the Daytona 24-hours, it should be an interesting race."

Considerable controversy developed during the 24-hour Daytona race (Jan. 31-Feb. 1) when water was found in the gas tanks of many top entries. Sabotage was at first suspected, but later discounted. The winner of that race was the defending champion, Peter Gregg of Jacksonville, Fla. driving a factory BMW CSL. Gregg also won the last Camel GT race held at OMS in 1974.

A top field of B. F. Goodrich racing sedans is also expected to enter the Mark C. Bloome TA 100. These include the BMW 2002 of last year's champion, Nick Craw of Washington D.C. Craw, a former director of the Peace Corps, gave-up that $40,000 a year job to devote full-time to motor racing. The Goodrich series features compact sedans — BMWs, Colts, Bobcats, Pintos, Capris, Vegas, Datsuns, Gremlins, Pacers and the like, in highly competitive road racing action. All Goodrich sedans use street approved radial tires. The winner of the 1974 Ontario Goodrich race was Colt driver Carson Baird of Laurel, Md.

"We are offering something special," noted Cheyne. "For one ticket price of $10 we allow full use of the Ontario facilities for both Saturday and Sunday (May 8-9), free parking and overnight camping in the infield, Victory Circle seating and garage tours."

Practice and qualifying for Sunday's "Spectatular" will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday. Sunday's full race schedule will begin at 10 a.m. Other events are to be announced.

Tickets are currently available through all Ticketron outlets and at the OMS Box Office.

Drivers stick with NASCAR

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Independent stock car drivers, mechanics and car owners have decided to remain in the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing, while seeking more money from speedways.

The independents claim they need emergency help to get through the remaining 22 races of the 30-race Grand National season. Forty-two of them met here Monday night but declined to form their own association as had first been indicated.

"We felt like this was the wrong time to form an association," said veteran driver James Hylton of Inman, S.C., a spokesman for the group. "We feel like we don't need an association. We are members of NASCAR and this is a NASCAR problem.

"It will be up to NASCAR and the (race) promoters to help us find a solution."

Hylton said most independents, those drivers without regular sponsors, can survive for another six weeks. But there are more than six months left in the Grand National season, which ends in November.

Hylton had indicated Sunday, before the Rebel 500 race at Darlington, S.C., that the group planned to ask for an increase in the $500 appearance money independents receive at most tracks. He also said tires and parts had become increasiningly expensive for the independents.

Six drivers drivers were elected at the Charlotte meeting to act as spokesmen for the independents.

They were David Sisco of Nashville, Tenn.; Elmo Langley of Charlotte; Richard Childress of Winston-Salem, N.C.; Cecil Gordon of Mills River near Hendersonville, N.C.; Bruce Hill of Union City, Ga., the NASCAR Rookie of the Year in 1975, and Hylton.

Hylton sid the six will try to meet with NASCAR President Bill France Jr. They will report back to fellow independents on April 23 at Martinsville, Va., two days before the next race.

"The number one problem is the financial problems that independents are having in order to stay in racing," said Hylton. It's estimated that a new Grand National race car today costs $40,000. Tires, for example, cost nearly $97 each.

"We have given the promoters and NASCAR the ball and asked them to run with it. All we are doing is asking the promoters and NASCAR to work out a solution to help us.

"We're extremely happy with the meeting and the things that were discussed. I am surprised that 42 drivers, mechanics and car owners could sit down together and talk about our problems in an orderly manner."

Lin Kuchler, NASCAR vice president and director of competition, had said said Sunday that the sanctioning body wanted to study the driver's plans before commenting.

"I can say, and I'm speaking for Bill France Jr., that NASCAR has never dealt with any bargaining agents or drivers' union. That policy has not changed, and won't," he said at Darlington.

Jones, Penske enter cars in Indy 500

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis 500 entries from the Parnelli Jones and Roger Penske racing teams, delayed in the mail since the deadline midnight last Thursday, arrived this morning.

The Jones team entered two cars for the May 30 auto racing classic, one of them for two-time winner Al Unser.

Denny McLain keeps busy promoting baseball

By A.J. FRIEDMAN
Toledo Blade

MEMPHIS — The face was familiar. The figure wasn't.

There he was, Dennis Dale McLain, with a midsection much like the one possessed by his ol' Detroit Tigers' pitching teammate and buddy, Mickey Lolich.

McLain scurried about to his appointed rounds as general manager of the Memphis Blues, getting ready to open the store for the team's International League baseball season.

And despite the rosey financial picture that McLain paints, he'll find it easier to put people into a ballpark as a 30-game winner in the major leagues than as a general manager in the minor leagues.

"This is the first time in three weeks I've sat down," said McLain, balancing himself on two railings of an unused turnstile and clutching a can of soda.

So the job isn't all it's cracked up to be, eh?

"The thing we took on that most clubs don't is the concessions and you have inventory control and every other thing. There were bad things last year in regards to service," McLain said. "But it's also the biggest profit item—to a degree."

Profit, prodit, profit. That, and nothing else, is the motivation for McLain and his longtime friend, Jerry Bilton, providing the bankroll behind the Blues. They claim it's no hobby.

"I'll put this organization against anyone's, don't care whether it's Cincinnati or Timbuktu," he said. "I'm the only former baseball player here. But we have people who have been associated with NFL, WFL, ABA and NBA teams. Everybody's had a tremendous amount of experience.

"We're involved in several other things, but this is something I always wanted to do. We're in chemical manufacturing and we're about to go in the clothing business."

That's as well since few minor league general managers rise to the big leagues.

"I have no intention of being a major league general manager. For some guys, it's hoopee-doopee-do, I'm a general manager of a baseball team. But not me. I have other interests," said McLain.

Those do not include an itch to give it one more try "in between those two white lines," as he likes to refer to the playing field, to see if, just maybe, whatever it was he lost as a pitcher could be found with one last search.

Some names were thrown for recollection and opinion at McLain and here were his responses:

On Detroit General Manager Jim Campbell: "Jim and I are still friends. I'm positive of it. He was just too conservative. He held onto the older players. The club wound up being destroyed. But I've made bad judgments myself."

On Lolich: "After I left, Mickey became a helluva pitcher. Had he matured earlier, it might have saved my arm a little bit. You've heard of that phrase, 'A million dollar arm and a 10 per cent head.' It certainly applied at one time. He came a helluva pitcher . . . finally."

FedMart Steel Belted Radial Tire Limited Warranty

FedMart warrants its FedMart steel belted radial tires for 40,000 miles, when used in normal family passenger car service. If you do not receive the total miles specified because your tire becomes unserviceable due to failure relating to the material or workmanship, normal road hazards or tread wearout: we will, upon return of tire, give you a refund on the proportion of the then current selling price, including all taxes, representing mileage not received. Nail punctures will be repaired at no charge.
